RECESS

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Please note that tomorrow is a recess day. We will convene again on Thursday, January 24 at 9:00 a.m. Following that we will recess and walk over to the Senate for the 10:00 a.m. State of the Judiciary address. For the purposes of today, the House will stand in recess for the purpose of convening in joint session at 10:00 a.m. for the Governor's State of the State address."

At 9:09 o'clock a.m., the Chair declared a recess and the House of Representatives stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair, and in accordance with House Concurrent Resolution No. 2 met in Joint Session with the Senate to receive the Governor's State of the State address.

JOINT SESSION

The Joint Session of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the Thirtieth Legislature, Regular Session of 2019, was called to order at 10:06 o'clock a.m. by the Honorable Scott K. Saiki, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The Speaker then welcomed and recognized the following honored and distinguished guests:

- Lt. Governor Josh Green, who was presented with lei by Representative Joy A. San Buenaventura;
- Senate President Ronald D. Kouchi;

The Speaker then called upon Representatives Della Au Belatti and Gene Ward on behalf of the House of Representatives, and Senators J. Kalani English and Kurt Fevella on behalf of the Senate, to escort the Honorable David Y. Ige, Governor of the State of Hawaii, to the rostrum.

The Governor was presented with lei by Representative Dee Morikawa on behalf of the House of Representatives, and Senator Rosalyn H. Baker on behalf of the Senate.

The Speaker then presented to the members of the Thirtieth Legislature and the audience, the Honorable David Y. Ige, Governor of the State of Hawaii.

The Governor then addressed the Joint Session as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, President Kouchi, former governors, distinguished justices of the courts, representatives of our congressional delegation, members of the Hawaii State Legislature, elected officials, military leaders, honored guests, and all of you who took the time to be with us this morning, aloha.

"Like the start of each new year, the State of the State address offers us an opportunity to both look back at where we've been and forward to where we want to go. The decisions we make today touch all of our lives. They are informed by our past and will affect the lives of many far down the road.

"As I look around the room and see the former governors, I am reminded of the hard choices they made during their tenure and how much we benefit from those decisions today. Yet the view from this crossroad is often obscured by our busy schedules and the day-to-day concerns we face as parents, students, employees and community leaders. But it's a view that we need to pay close attention to and perhaps look at from other perspectives.

"About a minute past midnight on January 1, 2019, Alekah Obra Garcia was born to Clarissa and Johnson Garcia of Kona, the first baby of the new year for the State of Hawaii. In 2037, when she and her classmates graduate from high school, some of us will be long gone. Perhaps one of your grandchildren will be among the Class of 2037. How will they view the decisions we make today? How will they grade the schools and education we provided for them? How will they assess the job and career opportunities that will be available to them? What will they say about the condition in which we left our ocean, beaches and rain forests? How will they view their past and their children's future? Will they look back with reverence the way we do at our parents' generation, or will they look back with disappointment and regret?

"Too often, when we talk about the future, we speak in macro-economic terms. But for me, the future is personal. In many ways, it has to be if we want to make good and wise decisions. The future has a name and it is the name of your son or daughter, your grandson or granddaughter. But whether you have children or not, I know many of you feel the same way about Hawaii.

"The future is personal because it is about our home. We choose one path over another, believing it will lead to a better, more secure, more nurturing Hawaii. We make choices for Alekah's sake, we make choices for our children's sake. Fortunately, we do so at a time when our foundation is strong.

"Hawaii is once again ranked the healthiest state in the nation. That's due in part because our health care coverage is among the broadest and most enduring. Our unemployment rate is among the lowest in the country. Our visitor industry is moving toward another record setting year, and both individual personal income and the state's gross domestic product have been steadily growing over the years.

"For four years, we have worked hard to put the state on sound financial footing by building our reserves and paying down our unfunded liabilities, including those to our employee pension and health benefit systems. We now have the highest bond rating in the state's history, resulting in lower interest rates when we need to borrow money. The state of the State of Hawaii is sound.

"More importantly, we are positioned to meet the challenges, both good and bad, because we have proposed a prudent budget that does not spend all that we project to bring in. As President Kouichi had noted in his opening day remarks, we will continue with that prudent stance even as we take care of the current needs of our people. It is, as you might guess, a delicate balancing act.

"I am mindful that the world around us has changed since we began this journey four years ago. Indeed, it has dramatically changed since I delivered my second inaugural address just a few weeks ago. In my remarks, I talked about how we are no longer limited by our geographic isolation, freed by the wonders of technology. But that's also a double-edged sword. The very thing that makes us more connected with the rest of the world, also makes us more vulnerable to its slings and arrows, including what happens in our nation's capital. More than ever, we need to take control and shape our own destiny through education and innovation. And we need to protect those things which mean the most to us, our natural resources, our way of life, our values, and our children's future.

"Together, we have done so much in the last four years. In 2015, we were the first state to set a 100% renewable energy standard, the most aggressive clean energy goal in the country. In 2016, we were the first in the nation to enroll firearms owners in a centralized information system. In 2017, we were the first state to enact legislation that aligns with portions of the Paris Accord. In 2018, we were the first state to ban pesticides containing chlorpyrifos to protect our children's health and the first in the world to ban certain sunscreens to protect our environment.

"The road ahead remains clear and so do the reasons why we need to press on with the progress we've made over the last four years. In transforming our schools with a new education blueprint that is school and community based. In reshaping our economy using technology to drive innovation. In addressing homelessness in a compassionate way, and in short circuiting the underlying cause of homelessness by building more affordable homes.

"As a state, we have always been outward looking in our values, goals and actions. We have always put others first. In today's me-centered world, that is what I am most proud of as your governor. That is the gift we pass on to little Alekah Garcia, that compassionate spirit that I believe resides in all of us, the spirit of aloha.

"Concern for our children and the future of our island community is one of the most important ways we show our compassion for others. In 2023, Alekah will be ready for preschool. But will a preschool be available and ready for her? Our public-school system begins with kindergarten, but early education specialists tell us how important it is to prepare young children for a lifetime of learning. Research also tells us that early childhood education, such as preschool programs, are critical for brain development. It contends that children's early years set the stage for how well they will learn for the rest of their lives. Yet in Hawaii, we have left that important task to others and only for families who can afford private preschool tuition. But it doesn't have to be that way.

"First and foremost, we must create a universal, statewide high-quality public preschool system that will give every child in Hawaii a head start on learning. Ultimately, we will need more than 300 public pre-K classrooms. Clearly, this is a long-term goal. But we don't have to wait until we have the funding for all of it. We can start to fill this significant gap in our education system by being smart about how we use existing space.

"But I don't want to just add pre-kindergarten classes. I want us to do much more. I am proposing to the Department of Education that we look at our elementary schools in a whole different light. That we reinvent our elementary education by making early learning an integral part of our children's overall elementary curriculum. That's what good beginnings are all about.

"That's why I am proposing to the DOE that we restructure those schools presently composed of kindergarten through grade six to pre-K through grade five. Grade six in those schools would then become part of our middle schools, where the added classes could be more easily and financially accommodated. Presently, about half of our elementary schools still include sixth grade classes. Most are located on the neighbor islands, where preschools, both private and public, are lacking. That provides us with a tremendous opportunity to kick start this initiative, initially in those communities where they are needed most.

"In addition, the phasing in of our public preschools will give us the time to ensure that we have well qualified preschool teachers to staff these classes. We also want to apply best practices learned from our own Public Pre-Kindergarten Program and from other states who have added preschools to their public education system. Of all the initiatives upon which we've embarked, I believe this one will make the greatest difference in preparing our children for the future and in creating a 21st century workforce.

"Moreover, this initiative we can and should begin now. My thanks to Lauren Moriguchi, Director of the Executive Office on Early Learning, and DOE Superintendent Christina Kishimoto for spearheading this initiative. A recently released strategic plan details the state's vision for early learning in Hawaii.

"And so, in 2034, when Alekah Garcia is a freshman in high school, she'll be well prepared to take advantage of the state's Early College and Hawaii Promise programs if she chooses, a choice made possible because of the partnership we've established with the DOE, UH, and its community colleges. That's why we're working hard to ensure that Alekah will have good teachers throughout her education. That's why we need to expand our pool of teachers in some of our most difficult to staff schools. And we're doing this in partnership with the university, HSTA, and the DOE, and with the help of education advocates like State Senator Michele Kidani and State Representative Justin Woodson.

"On an island where land is scarce and the cost of living high, providing affordable homes for our families has been one of the most challenging aspects of caring and looking out for each other. Widespread homelessness across the state is a symptom of how steep that challenge is. I don't have to tell you it is a complicated one and one that will take an entire village to solve. But more than any other place in this country, Hawaii intimately understands the village concept, because it is embedded in our values of 'ohana and aloha.

"With the help of the Legislature, our congressional delegation, the counties, federal agencies, businesses, and community service organizations, we have made significant strides in addressing homelessness in Hawaii. Together, we have reduced our homeless population for two consecutive years, for a total reduction of 18%. This includes decreases in every county, as well as decreases in key homeless sub-groups, such as families, children and veterans.

"We have also seen an increase in people exiting homeless programs to permanent supportive housing. Two years ago, only a third of those exiting homeless services went to permanent housing. That number has now increased to over 50%.

"In addition, this year's budget includes $35 million for homeless programs. More importantly, we have addressed this challenge as a community and not left it to government alone. For example, the Queen's Medical Center has seen what the impact of homeless patients has had on its overall mission. Without appropriate housing, recovery was a hit-and-miss affair, and many became repeat patients with prolonged stays. Hospital officials knew that if they didn't treat the whole patient, that the process would become frustratingly repetitive for both the patient and the doctor. And that's why they became the first hospital in the nation to place its most medically fragile, homeless patients into housing as part of the recovery process.

"In the last year and a half, the Queen's Care Coalition team has worked with 112 individuals, placing 75% of them into stable housing. The hospital estimates the program has generated more than $5 million of savings and, at the same time, lightened the burden on the emergency rooms and the ambulances. And more importantly, it has changed the lives of those they have treated. With us this morning is Dr. Daniel Cheng, who heads the Queen's Care Coalition, members of his coalition team, and the president and CEO of Queen's Health Systems, Art Ushijima. I would like to ask them to stand and be recognized. Thank you for reminding us that we all can take on a role in helping others.

"I should also note that Lieutenant Governor Josh Green will be the State's new point person on leveraging private sector partnerships to address the chronically homeless in our community, which includes some of the most difficult situations to resolve. He will be working closely with Scott Morishige, the State's homeless coordinator, who will continue to lead the State's overall homeless efforts.

"I strongly believe that our response to homelessness must address both immediate concerns and its underlying cause, the lack of adequate affordable housing. That's why this year's budget includes $315 million for housing over the next two years. In the past four years, we've produced a total of 6,600 units with over 7,100 in the pipeline, 90% of which will be rentals.

"We have also struggled with the reality that the lack of affordable housing affects more than just families at risk. It impacts all of us. For many in Hawaii, homeownership has always seemed like a farfetched dream. The high cost of land will always be a significant barrier to making homes affordable. And on an island with little capacity to expand, demand will always outpace our limited supply. It seems like a no-win situation. Perhaps until now. How do you make homes in Hawaii affordable? I believe you do it by thinking outside of the box, by looking at what you do have and not focusing on what you don't have.

"We need to use public resources and public authority to break the cycle of speculation and profit taking that has turned affordable housing into an unreachable goal for our people. That's why we will be submitting legislation to build condominiums for sale on state lands utilizing 99-year leases. These will include parcels along the transit route as well as on other underutilized state lands. This legislation will be critical to unlocking the potential for thousands of new affordable housing units to be built on state lands on all islands.

"The state will retain ownership of the land under these condos and determine the terms of resale if the owners decide to sell at a later date. In this way, we will be able to keep the units affordable, plan growth, create jobs, and make the most of unused state lands. We can take a no-win situation and turn it into a win-win situation. My thanks to State Senator Stanley Chang, whose input went a long way in helping us shape this initiative.

"We have long talked about transit-oriented development as one of the benefits of rail, as a way to build communities and provide housing for our families. But it's not just about rail. On Maui, for example, we have a great example of how the state and county are working together to build a new transit hub at the Kahului Civic Center. Together, we are transforming underutilized state land into a vibrant new mixed-use project with multi-family affordable rental housing, senior housing, and office space. It's a good example of the collaboration happening between state and county on behalf of the people.

"In addition to controlling and directing growth, planned development allows us to accommodate other priorities as well. Our future requires that over time we, as a state, acquire and preserve more and more land, either as a state or in the hands of partners like the Trust for Public Lands and the Nature Conservancy. If we want green spaces, if we want to grow our own food, if we want places for recreation, if we want clean, fresh water, if we want the environment that has been so central to Hawaii's life, we need to have special lands in public hands.

"Take, for example, the new state Helemano Wilderness Recreational Area, 2,900 acres of former plantation and conservation land now dedicated to protecting our watershed and wildlife habitat and providing outdoor recreational opportunities for all. In October 2018, the Trust for Public Land and the State completed the purchase of four parcels of land from Dole Food Company, using a creative combination of private, federal, and state funding.

"In an earlier time, those lands might have been sacrificed to uncontrolled development. To a certain extent, this project was made possible because we have a plan for future development on Oahu, for directed growth to our urban core and along our fixed transit system. That lessens the pressure for development on other areas, including important agricultural and preservation lands. It also allows us to initiate discussions with other private landowners, who have expressed an interest in developing lands in places like Kaneohe and Maunawili. We would prefer to negotiate acquisition agreements with them so that we can realize similar benefits to our natural resources and recreational venues.

"For those unfamiliar with the neighborhoods, Kaneohe and Maunawili both include areas that the landowners have proposed for housing development. But they also contain the mauka source of freshwater streams that feed ancient lo'i and flow into vital coastal waters of Kaneohe Bay and Kawaiinui Marsh. They contain some of the richest agricultural lands on Oahu and have been farmed by ancient Hawaiians for centuries. They are irreplaceable natural resources and part of the economic, ecological, and cultural heritage of Ko'olaupoko. These places are worth saving for us and for future generations. That's why we are requesting increased funding for land conservation, by removing the $6.8 million cap on the 10% conveyance tax to the Legacy Land Conservation Program. And I've also instructed DLNR to prioritize a strategic plan to help us better identify and coordinate the acquisition of such parcels of land going forward.

"In addition to the preservation of important conservation and agricultural lands, we have established strong guidelines to protect our watershed forests, better manage our oceans, strengthen invasive species prevention through our bio-security plan, double our local food production, and achieve 100% renewable energy by 2045. Our budget includes $3.9 million over two years for Sustainable Hawaii initiatives, to support our biosecurity plan, watershed protection, and our Agricultural Loan Revolving Fund.

"And speaking of sustainability, I would be remiss if I didn't mention that last November, Hawaii was designated one of the United Nation's first Local2030 sustainability hubs, the first and only such forum in the Pacific. I would like to thank Hawaii Green Growth and the Kamehameha Schools for their work in achieving this designation. They are highlighting our achievements and helping to establish Hawaii as a leader in sustainability in the Pacific.

"In addition, private companies are investing in Hawaii to help us meet our sustainability goals. For example, Ampaire has a memorandum of understanding with Mokulele Airlines to deploy an electric airplane on Maui. CarbonCure is working with the Hawaii Department of Transportation, HC&D, and Hawaii Gas to develop carbon-infused concrete to lower the carbon dioxide emitted during the construction process.

"And our public utilities have also made great progress in transitioning to a renewable energy future. Earlier this month, Kauai Island Utilities Co-op announced it had reached 50% renewable generation and believes it can reach 70% renewable energy a full 10 years ahead of schedule. In the last 10 years, Hawaiian Electric Companies have reduced fossil fuel use to generate electricity by 26%, that's 48 million gallons fewer of imported oil each and every year. The companies have also pioneered technology to integrate more renewable energy into the electrical grid, and delegations from around the world are coming to Hawaii to learn from our experience.

"In agriculture, we are entering a new age of innovation, one that will bring new jobs and opportunities and decrease our reliance on imported foods. The future of agriculture relies on producing crops more efficiently and with less impact on the environment. Farmers are constructing cutting-edge greenhouses, using automated production systems, and analyzing data to increase crop yields. These modern practices will require new skills and a workforce grounded in science and math-related education. Companies like Costco want to build high tech greenhouses and use these new agricultural techniques in Hawaii to complement the food production of local farmers and replace fruits and vegetables from out of state.

"Just as the nurturing of our natural environment is critical to the future of these islands, so too is the nurturing of those who, together, make up our human resource, including those who are incarcerated. There are some who hold fast to the old notion of crime and punishment and scoff at the concept of second chances. But correctional facilities today need to be more than just a secure holding cell. They need to be places where an individual can take stock of his or her life and seek a second chance at become a contributing member of society. If we don't, then our jails will become a place for repeat offenders, at a terrible cost to them and to all of us.

"We are seeking to continue the process of replacing the outdated correctional center in Kalihi. The relocation gives us a chance to provide enhanced services and program opportunities that would aid in rehabilitation. I agree with Representative Gregg Takayama and Senator Clarence Nishihara who have led the committees on Public Safety. It's a chance to rethink how we design and build correctional facilities. If we are legally obligated to carry out judgments of the courts whenever confinement is ordered, then let's do it in a way that doesn't make matters worse for those incarcerated. If we disagree on this location, how big it should be, or the programming that should offered, fair enough, let's work together to define it. Let's take this initiative and move it forward, with thoughtful planning and with purpose.

"And let me add one more thought on this matter. For several generations now, the community of Kalihi has hosted OCCC, with little protest, in its back yard. While it is not the primary reason to relocate Oahu's outdated jail, the chance to revitalize the community of Kalihi by using that vacated space to create new economic and social opportunities is another good reason to relocate OCCC.

"Concern for others whether they are homeless, incarcerated, disadvantaged, our children, or the community at large, that is the hallmark of who we are. Concern for others is why we are submitting legislation to bring the minimum wage closer to a real living wage.

"Concern for others also underlies the reason why we work so hard to provide economic opportunities for all to realize their dreams, whatever they may be. But to translate those concerns into meaningful action takes resources. That's why we must also be cognizant of the needs of the counties. To help them do their jobs better, we will be asking the Legislature to remove the current $103 million cap on the TAT and return the tax to how it originally functioned, allocating to the counties a straight percentage of TAT funds collected. In other words, the counties' share would rise and fall based on the amount of money collected, without any cap on the high side.

"There is a fairness to that formula that speaks volumes not only about our concern for others, but about our willingness to work with the counties as equal partners in moving the state forward. It's a change in the whole notion of revenue sharing whose time has come.

"Let me add that the bill we're submitting would also increase from $3 million to $10 million, monies earmarked to maintain our state parks, trails, beaches, and waters to the benefit of both residents and visitors alike.

"In 2018, mother nature threw a lot our way. Historic volcanic eruptions, hurricanes, and floods. And yet I find that we, as a people, are amazingly resilient and resourceful. We should all applaud those on Hawaii Island who faced devastating volcanic eruptions, and others on Kauai and Oahu who were buffeted by damaging hurricanes and floods, and who refused to be defeated by those events. We will work with the Legislature to continue our support for those families affected as they put their lives back on track.

"Finally, we have spent the last four years implementing frameworks that will help guide us along the continuum that will extend far beyond the next four years. Our blueprint for education, our clean energy portfolio, and our sustainability roadmap.

"The major initiatives that I've highlighted this morning, on public preschool education, affordable leasehold condominiums, and the TAT adjustment, are built upon these and other frameworks. But to realize our goal, it will take more than just this administration, more than government, more than the private sector, or community service and nonprofit organizations. It will take all of us.

"In my inaugural address, I talked about the need to work together. Little did I expect that the leaders in Washington would underscore my point by shutting down the Federal Government. That, my friends, is what gridlock looks like. Tragically, it has been devastating for the many federal workers caught in the middle, and increasingly for the general public.

"I began my remarks this morning with the notion that the future is personal. Leadership is also personal, and it has a name, and it is us.

"We have a duty and responsibility to do our jobs and to do them in partnership with each other. That is the least those folks up there in the gallery, the people we all work for, expect from us. But I know we can do so much more if we work together. And it begins with me, and it begins with all of you. That's why we have been meeting with the Senate and the House, to see if we can establish a common ground from which both houses can better shape a budget that serves all the people of Hawaii.

"After four years in this office, I know that what I'm asking is not an easy task. It never has been. But it becomes easier if we remember that little girl who was born in Kona in the very early morning hours of January 1st. She's the reason we do what we do. She is the real source of our strength and our determination and our commitment to the people of Hawaii. She is the one who will carry on the values that were passed on to us from our parents. Reverence for our kūpuna, love for family, respect for each other, and love for this 'āina and this place we call home.

"We are here to protect her and nurture her. In turn, she enriches our lives. We have much to teach her and she has much to teach us. I hope and pray that one of the most important things that we instill in her is empathy and compassion for others. Empathy for those who are homeless even while she sleeps safe and warm in her own bed. Compassion for those who go hungry even when she is generously nursed and nurtured. Compassion for those who cannot make ends meet even if she thrives with a career that meets all of her needs. And empathy for those who find themselves without a country or face a wall that is far more daunting than any physical one we could ever build.

"Empathy and compassion are no strangers to those raised in these islands or to those who embrace our shared values. We do not often speak of them by those names, but rather by the one word we hold above all others, aloha. Alekah Obra Garcia is our future, and we welcome her with loving open arms. We have a job to do to prepare these islands for her, so let's get started, shall we? Thank you and aloha."

President Kouchi then rose and stated:

"Thank you, Governor Ige. Based on my remarks last week when we opened in the Senate Chambers, while I will not have a grandchild who will be a classmate of Alekah Garcia, Class of 2037, nonetheless, I certainly share the vision, the dreams, and the hopes that you have for her and all the rest of the children of Hawaii.

"I'd like to paraphrase from Dr. Martin Luther King. The measure of an individual is not what you do in times of comfort, but what you do in times of adversity. Last year, in spite of different political choices by each and every one of us that we're going to make in the upcoming election, we rose above the politics and joined together to create an amazing agenda for the people of Hawaii in affordable housing, in dealing with homelessness, in dealing with the disasters that we were confronted with, and I stand committed, as I said on the Senate Floor last week Wednesday, to work with you, Governor, to create that future.

"To my colleagues in the House, I have never had a better feeling than gaveling out at the end of last year, looking back to see everything that we could all accomplish together. I look forward to having a better feeling when we hit the gavel at the end of session this year.

"And I would simply close by quoting Ecclesiastes 4:9-10, 'Two are better than one, because they have a good return for their labor. If either of them falls down, one can help the other up. But pity anyone who falls and has no one to help them up.'

"So my hand will be out for the whole session to my colleagues in the House, and to you, Governor Ige, and Lieutenant Governor Green."

At 10:58 o'clock a.m., President Kouchi declared the Joint Session of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the Thirtieth Legislature, Regular Session of 2019, adjourned.

ADJOURNMENT

At 12:00 o'clock midnight, the House of Representatives adjourned until 9:00 o'clock a.m. Thursday, January 24, 2019.
