

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY

Wednesday, March 21, 2018

The Senate of the Twenty-Ninth Legislature of the State of Hawai'i, Regular Session of 2018, convened at 11:37 a.m. with the President in the Chair.

The Roll was called showing all Senators present with the exception of Senator Harimoto who was excused.

The President announced that he had read and approved the Journal of the Thirty-Fourth Day.

At this time, Senator Baker recognized volunteers from the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network (ACS CAN), who were visiting the State Capitol to promote cancer awareness and policies that will help reduce the incidences of cancer in Hawai'i.

The Chair thanked the volunteers for their advocacy work, and referenced a newspaper article from earlier that week that cited a savings of over a billion dollars in healthcare costs for the State of Hawai'i due to such efforts.

Senator Rhoads extended an additional welcome to Devon Ayagi, a volunteer with the ACS CAN who used to work in Senator Rhoads's office.

Senator Chang introduced Julianne Chu, Miss Hawai'i USA 2018, who hails from Niu Valley and was visiting the State Capitol in support of Education Week. Senator Chang noted that Miss Chu is a second grade teacher at Kahala Elementary School, from which Senator Chang had graduated back in 1994.

Senator Kahele noted that it was Hawai'i Aerospace and Aviation Day at the State Capitol, and introduced Melissa McCaffrey of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, Stacy Howard of the National Business Aviation Association, and Ross Garelick of the Aerospace States Association – Hawai'i chapter, all of whom were present in the gallery.

Senator Espero welcomed representatives from HawaiiKidsCAN, a nonprofit organization dedicated to education and making certain that every child in Hawai'i has the opportunity to succeed, who were visiting the State Capitol to discuss the importance of computer science. Present in the gallery were executive director David Miyashiro; Redwan Chowdhury, Edward Flores, and Aryn Dyer, students from the James Campbell High School computer science program; Alyssa Knight, a teacher at DevLeague; Henry Longburg; and Kekoa McClellan.

Senator Kidani rose and stated:

“Our guests this morning include two high school teams of super-science achievers. Each has excelled in top-level competitions: in one case, winning top honors against other finalists in an international forum, and, in the other, making a return performance to a premier national contest. To introduce our first honorees: Senator Riviere.”

Senator Riviere congratulated the Waialua High School Robotics Team, Team 359, and presented the following remarks:

“It gives me great pleasure to introduce to those gathered here today and to talk about the Waialua robotics program. They're known as Team 359; they're known as the Hawaiian Kids. They're the first robotics program in the State of Hawai'i, and they have achieved so many victories and accomplishments that we could go on all day about that. But, most recently, they've come from Montreal. We talked about an international competition; I don't know about you folks, but when you meet somebody who travels a lot, you say, 'Where are you going now?' Well, these guys are off to Japan this week; they're off to Montreal last month; they're off to, you know, Kansas coming up later. They're always traveling; they're always working; they're always earning their funds to travel; they're working on their projects. This project, if you don't understand robotics: There's a day when the game is revealed nationally, and these kids get up at four in the morning or three in the morning or some godawful hour because they're going to announce globally the competition, and they're there and they don't stop – these kids go all day; they go all night. Many of them are in other programs, but their hearts are with the robotics program. When you go to the Waialua robotics classroom, the staging area, it's like walking into Yankee Stadium and seeing all the Yankees banners or walking into Boston Garden and seeing all the Celtics banners. These guys come home with awards that you can't believe.

“And it's a great privilege of mine to be from the same community as these guys – Waialua – because if you talk to anybody globally, they say, 'Oh, yeah, we have a robotics team.' You say, 'Well, I'm from Waialua,' and they always go, 'Oh, I see. Yeah.' So they recognize that name. So the small town that we are – the sugar mill closed in 1996. Glenn Lee came along and took up the challenge to start robotics and the STEMs – all the stuff we talk about STEM now was originated partly through the robotics efforts and that brought back a vitality to Waialua. When the sugar mill closed, people were leaving town; there was no future; things were happening; there was a great funk in our community, but now we have these guys as a great example of the pride that they bring to us every day. Glenn Lee just got back from Dubai: He was honored as one of the top 10 finalists in the world – there's 30,000 applications to be the global teacher; the prize was $1 million. He's one of the top 10 finalists. They flew him to Dubai, and he just got back a couple days ago or last night. So he's driving the program; he's a former Milken Educator Award winner in 2011. With him today is Vicky Pescaia – and I'm going to introduce them all in just a moment – and three representatives of the team. But I want to encourage everybody to go to the FIRST Robotics Hawai'i regional tournament at the Stan Sheriff Center. It's warming up today but the competitions begin Friday morning. If you haven't been to one of these things, it is a spectacle. It is fun; the competition is intense, and what's most amazing is, as competitive as they are, they have to work in conjunction with other teams. So, although Waialua comes home with banners fairly regularly, they have to do it with an alliance of two other teams, so there's three teams who come together to compete in the end, to make it happen.

“So, we're here to honor this year's team; we have three representatives of the team. Abraham Shell, Anthony Miyataki, and Toshio Yoshizumi: these are the three guys who are more or less the captains or some of the leaders of the team. And next to them is Vicky Pescaia – she's a teacher who helps immensely – and, of course, their leader, Glenn Lee. Ladies and gentlemen, Waialua robotics.”

Senator Dela Cruz recognized the Leilehua High School CyberPatriot Team, and presented the following remarks:

“I also want to congratulate Waialua High School. Even though we've honored them, Glenn Lee's a proud graduate of Leilehua High School.

“Mr. President and colleagues, the Leilehua High School CyberPatriot team was named the U.S. Army All Service Team in the Nation for 2017. CyberPatriot is the nation's premier high school cyber defense competition that challenges teams to develop solutions to real-life cybersecurity situations. The National Cyber Defense Competition has over 4,000 teams registered and more than 1,500 teams in the All Service Division representing all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, the U.S. Department of Defense Dependent Schools in Europe and the Pacific, as well as other teams abroad. The teams advance through extremely competitive qualifying rounds to earn the distinction of being one of the 13 final teams in the CyberPatriot National Finalist field. The Leilehua High School Army JROTC team has previously won two consecutive Army Service Championships in 2012 and 2013, making this their third win in addition to the three consecutive Hawai'i State CyberPatriot championships. This year, the Leilehua CyberPatriot team has again won the Hawai'i State championship and advanced to the national finals in April in Baltimore, Maryland. Here with us today, we have Lieutenant Colonel Nicholas Spiridigliozzi and team members Cadet Jacob Huerta, Cadet Tyler McWilliams, and Cadet Jarod Olive-Stalling. I'd also like to recognize, in the gallery, First Sergeant and Mrs. Jacob Huerta, Cadet Jacob Huerta's parents. Congratulations, and go Mules!"

Senator Dela Cruz then honored the 2017 Outstanding Educator, and presented the following remarks:

"Today, we'd also like to recognize Colette Miyamoto-Kajiwaru. She was named in 2017 the Outstanding Educator by corporate sponsors Spectrum and Hawai'i Pizza Hut. Colette is the director of the alternate learning center Storefront School in Wahiawā, where she has engaged at-risk students for more than 30 years. In fact, when I was in high school, I used to work for her. (She looks the same; it's the Wahiawā water.) Storefront is totally dedicated to motivating students from central O'ahu who face challenges at home or in the classroom, giving students the encouragement and motivation to make good decisions and to overcome and succeed. Storefront's curriculum focuses on language arts, math, social studies, science, and electives. Some of us may wonder, where do some of these students go when they get suspended or when they get kicked out? And Colette is always there to make sure that they can continue their education. In Colette's own words, 'We become the students' friends, confidants, advisors, disciplinarians, and surrogate parents, and help rebuild lives. We teach our students that they need to be resilient to move forward because backward is not an option if they want to survive.' Let's give her another round of applause. Joining Colette, we also have her proud husband, Glen Kajiwaru. Thank you, Mr. President."

Senator Kidani rose and stated:

"As with the Teachers of the Year yesterday, a challenge is in recognizing just a few when so many deserve to be honored. As an example, just a few days after we invited our guests for the week, we learned that the Moanalua High School Symphony Orchestra won first place in a national music festival competition in Atlanta. We congratulate them for this achievement, and we expect that before the school year ends in a few weeks, we will hear of other such accomplishments by other exceptional students and the teachers, advisors, coaches, and counselors who mentor them. As chair of your Committee on Education, I have been privileged to visit so many of our public schools, where wonderful, wonderful things are happening – where principals, teachers, and students are doing exceptional things and making us proud. We will share more stories of excellence tomorrow."

Senator Kidani then recognized the following early education advocates, who were seated in the gallery: Deborah Zysman and Michael Fahey from Hawaii Children's Action Network; Kim Guieb from University of Hawai'i P-20; Kathy Murphy from the Hawai'i Association for the Education of Young Children; Jordana Ferreira from PATCH – People Attentive to Children; Kerrie Uroevich and Doug Imig from Early Childhood Action Strategy; Caroline Soga and Lori Tagami from the Hawai'i State Public Charter School Commission; and Lauren Moriguchi and Wimmie Wong Lui from the Executive Office on Early Learning.

Senator Kidani also introduced several University of Hawai'i College of Education graduates who volunteer to host teacher candidates in their own classrooms to provide mentoring support: Susan Nakama, a mentor teacher at Kalei'opu'u Elementary in Village Park who holds a master's degree in education curriculum and instruction; Ben Boltz, a mentor teacher at Waipahu High School who holds a master's degree in teaching; and Joni Wong, a mentor teacher at Pearl Harbor Elementary who holds a master's degree in special education.

At 11:56 a.m., the Senate stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The Senate reconvened at 12:06 p.m.
