

FORTIETH DAY

Tuesday, May 19, 2020

The Senate of the Thirtieth Legislature of the State of Hawai'i, Regular Session of 2020, convened at 11:51 a.m. with the President in the Chair.

The Roll was called showing all Senators present, with Senators Chang and Ruderman present and participating via videoconference, and with the exception of Senator Harimoto who was excused.

The President announced that he had read and approved the Journal of the Thirty-Ninth Day.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR

The following message from the Governor (Gov. Msg. No. 1101) was read by the Clerk and was placed on file:

Gov. Msg. No. 1101, informing the Senate that on May 15, 2020, the Governor signed into law House Bill No. 2661, H.D. 1 as Act 1, entitled: "MAKING APPROPRIATIONS TO PROVIDE FOR THE EXPENSES OF THE LEGISLATURE, THE AUDITOR, THE LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE BUREAU, THE OMBUDSMAN, AND THE ETHICS COMMISSION."

HOUSE COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications from the House (Hse. Com. Nos. 356 to 358) were read by the Clerk and were disposed of as follows:

Hse. Com. No. 356, returning S.B. No. 75, S.D. 2, as amended in H.D. 1, which passed Third Reading in the House of Representatives on May 18, 2020, was placed on file.

Senator Dela Cruz moved that the Senate agree to the amendments proposed by the House to S.B. No. 75, S.D. 2, seconded by Senator Keith-Agaran.

Senator Dela Cruz noted:

"S.B. 75 is the reallocation of the CARES dollars to the counties, the $40 million for the Department of Defense, $1.3 million for PUA, $8 million for DLIR, $2 million for Department of Human Services for upgrades to SNAP, and $600-plus million for the emergency and budget reserve fund."

Senator Thielen rose to speak in opposition to the measure as follows:

"Thank you, Mr. President. I rise in opposition to Senate Bill No. 75 and then also Senate Bill No. 3139. The reasons I have are the same ..."

Senator Ihara interjected on a point of parliamentary inquiry, stating:

"Mr. President, point of parliamentary inquiry: We are voting on a motion to agree to the amendments, and then tomorrow or the future date, we'll have a motion for Final Reading?"

The Chair responded in the affirmative.

Senator Thielen continued, speaking in opposition to the motion as follows:

"Thank you for the parliamentary correction. Mr. President, I had also voted 'no' on the budget bill yesterday, 2200, and just to save time for everybody here, I'm asking that my remarks now be placed in the Journal as my remarks on House Bill 2200 yesterday, the two bills that we are moving to agree to the amendments on today, and then on Thursday, when we make a final vote on those bills, so I only have to say this one time. [The Chair so ordered.] Thank you.

"This is my eighth year here, and every year, I've voted in support of the budget. I haven't done it 'with reservations,' even though I haven't agreed to a hundred percent of the budget, because I know every budget—like every bill, but especially every budget—reflects a compromise. Sometimes, some people get what they want; sometimes, they don't. Usually everybody gets a little bit less than what they want.

"The reason I have a problem this year is that there are huge groups of Hawai'i residents that are getting nothing despite an unprecedented emergency and economic crisis that our state is facing, and I cannot in good conscience support this choice. I don't think my words today are going to change anybody's mind on their votes on the bills in front of you, but I want to walk through why I have the reasons for voting against this and why I think we should be doing something different, because we will be recessing and coming back in June and making a decision then about what to do with the approximately $1.8 billion that we're putting into the rainy day fund.

"There is a sense of urgency that I feel is lacking, both in the executive and in this legislature, about what our population is facing. According to unemployment statistics in DBEDT, nearly a quarter of a million Hawai'i residents have filed for unemployment. This has happened in just less than two months. We went from under 3 percent unemployment—we're waiting for the figures now—but somewhere between 25 to maybe close to 40 percent unemployment in a two-month period. Twelve thousand people filed for unemployment last week. We have been among the worst, if not the worst, state in the nation at getting unemployed people their entitled unemployment benefits. Forty-four states began making the federal $600 plus-up payments that were in addition to the regular state unemployment before we did. Thirty-five states began making the PUA federal payments to self-employed, independent contractor, gig workers, and other people who were not eligible for regular unemployment beginning back in April. One state even began in March. We have yet to make a single payment—today is May 19th. Between 100,000 to 130,000 Hawai'i residents still have not had their application approved. Either they're stuck in the regular unemployment system or they've finally been rejected from that system and they've been allowed to apply for PUA, which has just begun starting to process applications. Most of these workers are low-wage service-level workers in our tourism industry and in our restaurant industry. This is the perfect storm. It's the highest cost-of-living state, it's workers with the lowest wages and the least amount of savings, and it's the state that's among the slowest to deliver employment payments to them. Even today, I got an email this morning from a woman who filed her application for unemployment 10 weeks ago and has yet to see anything—two and a half months. Many of these people also lost their health insurance. And it's not just the people who filed for unemployment: It's their spouses, it's their kids, it's their parents. It's nearly half a million people or more in Hawai'i that have been economically hit by this.

"Their employers have been hit, too—hard. University of Hawai'i partnered up with the Chamber of Commerce and a number of other business associations, and they surveyed 623 businesses across the state: 24 percent of those businesses surveyed said they will not survive without additional assistance. Even those who were fortunate enough to get the federal PPP loan, 75 percent of that has to go toward payroll. They have rent, they have utilities, they have to struggle with figuring out how do they reinvent their business to act when they are allowed to open up in an era where they cannot do business as usual and they have to have social distancing and measures in place to protect their employees as well as their customers. They need help with these expenses. Every business that shuts down is one less that we're going to have to help us with an economic recovery.

"So, when there's a sudden economic collapse—and this is more sudden than we've had in a long time, and it's also unusual and, unlike the Great Depression, it's due to this virus that's come in—but when you have a sudden economic collapse, and we've had them before (2009, other periods), all of the experts say government needs to increase its spending. And the studies after the 2009 collapse show that the governments that did increase their spending in a way that got the best returns on those investments had shorter downturns and less debts and faster recovery. The biggest bang for the buck: spending on newly unemployed and lower-income—programs that help them. The last three chairpeople of the Federal Reserve have said the important thing is to prevent businesses and individuals from going bankrupt, keeping people housed, keeping local businesses open or alive.

"We received nearly a billion dollars in federal CARES Act money, either CARES relief or those recent CARES 3.5. Part of what we were doing this session and in some of these bills in front of us is to assert our legislative authority over appropriations over these fundings. It's to move them out of the governor's control and into the rainy day fund, to say that the Legislature can make better decisions.

"I'd like to point out what some of the other states are doing because I contacted NCSL and looked online. They're realizing that they need to get money out to their local businesses and to the families and individuals who are hurting in order to keep them afloat because it's those people that are going to help them get out of the economic problems that they're in, and by helping keep them afloat, it'll reduce the amount of support that they're going to have to provide in the future:

- Montana: $133 million in emergency grants for small businesses to adapt, for senior care homes to keep kūpuna connected, for emergency housing and food and childcare so people can go back to work;
- New Hampshire: $490 million for small business relief, early child care, family support, food bank, nonprofits for social services;
- Ohio: $174 million to expand who is eligible for food stamps because they don't want to have that strict income requirement when they know so many people are struggling with severely reduced household incomes, and expanding food banks and school food programs;
- Vermont: $300 million for economic relief for local businesses;
- North Carolina: $125 million for small-business loan program, operated by two NGOs (they're not trying to retain control—they're trying to help);
- Alaska: $290 million for small-business relief grants.

"We called ourselves back into session because we wanted to assert control. We gave out small amounts of money to the neighbor-island counties, which I think we needed to do for their CARES Act relief so they could start the programs that City and County of Honolulu was able to do because it got its appropriation directly. And we put in a small amount of money to shore up some of our state operations to respond to COVID, which, again, we should do. But out of two billion-plus dollars, we chose to put about $1.8 billion into the rainy day fund, to recess later this week, and to take three weeks (maybe more) to decide what to do. The reason that was given by the House Finance chair for putting this amount of money in the rainy day fund, I'm a little perplexed about.

"One of the reasons was our unemployment fund is running out of money. Well, we knew that. We've known that for some time. The director of the Department of Labor over two months ago notified us about that, and had applied to the U.S. Treasury for a no-interest line of credit, and in the Ways and Means memo to the members of the Senate dated May 15, 2020, we've been notified that we've been approved for $1.3 billion in a line of credit from the unemployment trust fund. According to the Congressional Research Service, we can have up to 34 months with no interest to pay back that line of credit to the unemployment trust fund, but we can't tap into that line of credit until our unemployment state funds go down to zero. So if we use some of this CARES Relief Act money to put it into the unemployment fund, that's the longer we're going to have to wait to tap into this zero-interest line of credit, and unlike the municipal liquidity bond funds, if it takes us longer than 34 months to pay back this credit, we have longer. There's just a very, very small interest rate that's added on top of that, and many states have tapped into this fund back in 2009 and took many years to pay it back. We're passing another bill that's encouraging the governor to take out loans under the municipal liquidity fund, so we are encouraging the state to take advantage of programs that offer zero-interest money. I do not understand why we would say we cannot give out any of these CARES Relief Act funds to our residents or our small businesses because our unemployment money is going to run out. It's not going to run out. The federal government, again, according to Congressional Research Service, cannot let the states' unemployment funds run out because it is an entitlement with money that was paid for by the businesses. They will back us up just like they will back every other state up that has record unemployment, and if we're looking for the hope of whether we have a Republican or Democratic administration after the next election, Republicans are more likely to bail out businesses and to help states that are struggling with repayments to the unemployment trust fund than just about any other program.

"I don't find the reasons given to be compelling, to say that we can do nothing for our citizens and our small businesses that are struggling now, particularly because we had come up with this plan apparently before we called ourselves back into session. And after we called ourselves back into session, we found that we received an extra $50 million from the federal CARES 3.5. We could have taken some of that $50 million to provide emergency grants. We have nonprofit partners out there that had people on the ground on every island that can screen applicants to make sure that we were getting money to the people who are still waiting on their unemployment application or still waiting for PUA to make some type of decision and issue any money; to small businesses that were turned down for the PPP, that are on the list of businesses that can open up but they need to make the adaptations in order to keep their customers and their employees safe. There was no reason why we couldn't act like so many of these other states to take some of this federal money to help people who are in serious pain now, and it would've been the smart thing to do as well, because it would reduce the amount of time that we're going to be in this economic pit.

"I want to share one more story before closing. Our youngest daughter—my husband and I, we started doing this tradition about 10 years ago. On Friday mornings, just as a treat, we would go to Like Like Drive Inn for breakfast before we dropped her off at school. And I don't know how many of you have gone there, but it's one of the great Hawai'i diners, and it's one of those great Hawai'i restaurants where all the waitresses are women of a certain age—you know, fifties up to their seventies—and they get to know you really quickly. And even after our daughter graduated from high school, my husband and I would go there every few months just for old times' sake, and they'd always say, 'Oh, how's Emma? How's she doing?' They'd always welcome you; they were always friendly. In 2009, after the crash hit, one of our favorite waitresses told us that that was her last day. She had all the lei on; I was asking if it was her birthday, and she said, 'No, just, we're having to cut back, and, you know, some of the girls here can't afford cutback hours, and I can afford to retire, so I'm gonna retire because I want to make sure that they can take care of their families.' Like Like Drive Inn announced a little while ago it's closed; it's not surviving COVID. I think about all those women and the busboys and the line cooks, everybody there: how many of them are waiting still on their unemployment checks? That business is not going to be able to open up. We talked earlier about how we had to do job creation and business development. In this crisis, we have to make sure more businesses don't close their doors like Like Like and never reopen.

"I am ashamed that we did nothing with the money that we had. At the end of the day, I was just asking, out of that extra $50 million, could we just take $30 million, give it out to partners like the Hawai'i Community Foundation, have them do the reporting, come back to us when we reconvene in June; if all the money wasn't spent, we pull it back. But even that was turned down. Again, I don't expect that I'm going to be changing anybody's vote here today, but I'm speaking up about this because we can't come back here in June and have a repeat of this. In the three weeks it's going to take us to come back (or more), we're already going to see more people going into bankruptcies, more businesses closing their doors. The small amounts that we gave to the neighbor islands are not going to be enough for our state to recover. Even the middle-size amount that the City and County of Honolulu has and already has started to get out the door is not going to be enough for our state to recover. We need to take some of that $1.7 billion and get it out to the people and the businesses because we rely on them, and they rely on us for their hope, and if we don't give them hope and some ability to recover, then we're not going to be able to help anybody a year from now. Thank you."

The motion was put by the Chair and carried, the Senate agreed to the amendments proposed by the House to S.B. No. 75, S.D. 2, and S.B. No. 75, S.D. 2, H.D. 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO APPROPRIATIONS," was placed on the calendar for Final Reading on Thursday, May 21, 2020, with Senator Ruderman voting "Aye with Reservations" and Senator Thielen voting "No."

Hse. Com. No. 357, returning S.B. No. 3080, S.D. 3, as amended in H.D. 1, which passed Third Reading in the House of Representatives on May 18, 2020, was placed on file.

Senator Dela Cruz moved that the Senate agree to the amendments proposed by the House to S.B. No. 3080, S.D. 3, seconded by Senator Keith-Agaran.

Senator Dela Cruz noted:

"On S.B. 3080, we removed all vacancies from the 159 permanent and 19 temporary vacancies, totaling almost $13 million for both fiscal years, and we're also lapsing $1.7 million in the judiciary."

The motion was put by the Chair and carried, the Senate agreed to the amendments proposed by the House to S.B. No. 3080, S.D. 3, and S.B. No. 3080, S.D. 3, H.D. 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE JUDICIARY," was placed on the calendar for Final Reading on Thursday, May 21, 2020, with Senator Ruderman voting "Aye with Reservations."

Hse. Com. No. 358, returning S.B. No. 3139, S.D. 1, as amended in H.D. 1, which passed Third Reading in the House of Representatives on May 18, 2020, was placed on file.

Senator Dela Cruz moved that the Senate agree to the amendments proposed by the House to S.B. No. 3139, S.D. 1, seconded by Senator Keith-Agaran.

Senator Dela Cruz noted:

"For Senate Bill 3139, monies are getting transferred from the rental housing trust fund, stadium development district, mental health and substance abuse special fund, and $432 million from savings, also $8 million from the tobacco settlement fund to the rainy day fund."

The Chair having so ordered, Senator Thielen's remarks in opposition read as follows:

"Thank you, Mr. President. I rise in opposition to Senate Bill No. 75 and then also Senate Bill No. 3139. The reasons I have are the same ... ### SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

The following concurrent resolution (S.C.R. No. 243) was read by the Clerk and was disposed of as follows:

Six hundred forty-four Mililani Trojans received their diplomas in celebratory fashion at the school’s first-ever drive-through graduation ceremony as Senator Donovan Dela Cruz and I and many friends lined Meheula Parkway with banners and ti leaves to help them celebrate.

“The class of 2020 included 60 valedictorians, 141 summa cum laude, 104 magna cum laude, and 159 cum laude distinctions as well as 212 Academic Honors certificates, 292 CTE Honors certificates, 11 STEM Honors certificates, 16 Seal of Biliteracy recipients as well as 8 AP Capstone diploma honors.

“Collectively, these hardworking students earned acceptances to a wealth of universities around the state and country, with scholarship offers totaling over $28 million. Noted student honors included the National Honor Society, International Thespian Society Thespian Scholars, Japanese National Honor Society, National Association of Student Councils, Blood Bank Lifesavers, Sociedad Honoraria Hispánica, and Tri-M Modern Music Masters awardees. 2020 class president Taylor-Ann Okimoto and Associated Students of Mililani High School student body president Sasha Nicole Arreola shared inspiring commencement addresses to their fellow peers that spoke to their resilience and steadfast commitment to their academic pursuits.

“Mahalo nui to Principal Fred Murphy, Vice Principal Robin Miller, faculty, and staff of Mililani High School for ensuring an amazing celebration for these students and their extraordinary achievements. I was proud to stand amongst the families and friends of our Mililani community to cheer them on as they received their hard-earned diplomas and celebrated this unforgettable occasion. So, you know, Willie came to Hāna probably 30 years ago, ended up at my house with my grandparents and me and other entertainers at the time, and I think they stayed for about four days (back then, you could do that)—had a very, very good time, and we really got to know each other. But he exemplified Maui and exemplified Hawai'i and brought great, great honor to all of us, so in memory of our dear friend, our brother, Willie K, we bid him a fond aloha and we thank him for all that he has done for us in Hawai'i. Mahalo, Mr. President.”
