

NINETEENTH DAY

Tuesday, February 13, 2001

The Senate of the Twenty-First Legislature of the State of Hawaii, Regular Session of 2001, convened at 11:48 o'clock a.m. with the President in the Chair.

The Divine Blessing was invoked by Deacon Ron Choo, Parish Deacon Administrator of the Blessed Sacrament Church, after which the Roll was called showing all Senators present with the exception of Senators Ihara and Matsunaga who were excused.

The President announced that he had read and approved the Journal of the Eighteenth Day.

Senator Ige introduced Dr. Kenneth P. Mortimer, the eleventh President of the University of Hawaii, and commended him for his achievements, contributions, and many years of service and leadership to the University of Hawaii and congratulated him upon his retirement from the University of Hawaii. Accompanying President Mortimer was his wife, Lorrie, and Board of Regents Chair Lily Yao.

At this time, President Bunda invited President Mortimer to address the members of the Senate and appointed Senators Ige, Sakamoto and Slom to escort him to the podium.

President Mortimer addressed the members of the Senate as follows:

"Good morning, Mr. President and members of the Hawaii State Senate.

"Thank you, Senator Ige, for those very gracious comments. I said to Senator Slom, 'I didn't recognize myself.'

"This is my first, and probably my final, opportunity to address you as a group, and so I want to say right at the top of my remarks that I've appreciated your support and your grasp of critical issues facing higher education today, and your willingness to work with the University as a true partner towards greatness.

"When I came to the University of Hawaii in 1993 (and for Lorrie and me it was a homecoming of some sort), I said in my inaugural address that one of my major objectives was to redefine – to redefine – the relationship between the University and State government.

"Perhaps the most important issue we worked on together was this autonomy that Senator Ige spoke so eloquently about. You gave us the authority to place it on the ballot in November of last year and Hawaii voted overwhelmingly in favor of it. In fact, some people speculated that it was my test run for my political career. It certainly was a culmination of work over a period of years to give us control of tuition, to exempt us from procurement, and provide increased flexibility.

"I've said many times, and I believe it strongly, that no great public university can be run like a state bureaucracy. Constitutional autonomy is essentially the declaration that gives us the right to manage ourselves relative to our missions. It's a very important development, and I believe it will characterize my presidency in years ahead.

"I don't want you to underestimate the impact on our mindset alone at the University of Hawaii. The public confidence on this issue and the support of us and our capabilities to self-govern was what we really received on November 7. In fact, the University has lost the ability to blame its problems on others without first looking in the mirror . . . without first looking in the mirror.

"I hope you agree that we've used this flexibility wisely. Tuition revenues have gone up from about 38 million in the first year, to 64 million this year – a 68 percent increase. We are still an affordable institution, but I think we've done better on that. Our research volume and training volume have set records for four straight years.

"As Senator Ige says, we started on an ambitious private fundraising campaign and I'm pleased to tell you today, Senator, that we stand at $98 million on our way to that $100 million goal. We have already raised $98 million in the last three-and-a-half years.

"But I'm sure you know that autonomy is not an opportunity for the University to retreat, but to move forward and engage the people and the Legislature in new forms of partnership. So I must remind the public – we are not a private University. We will continue to need substantial support from the people of this State, as we've received in the past.

"What excites me about the future is we have the opportunity for a new brand of conversation between the University and its many publics. And that will be a conversation, not a confrontation . . . a conversation about new patterns of interaction, about new behavior on the part of the University and the many people who support it.

"There are still critical issues to deal with in my last months and I fully intend to remain active and totally engaged in the business of running our University. I intend to settle as much as I can so that my successor can start with a clean slate. I care very much about the people here – from students to senior executives – and if at all possible, I want to leave knowing that I've made a better place for them.

"On a personal note, I am deeply honored to have served as the eleventh President of the University, and I'm very proud of the work that we've done together to be where we are today.

"You, this State Senate, have shown great foresight and wisdom, and, if I may say, even boldness in your decision towards autonomy. You did what is counterintuitive to most political figures – and that is, to give up a measure of control.

"Your relationship with the University and our future President will be forever changed, and it will be for the better. That makes me very proud to have played a role in Hawaii's history.

"I have great respect for the work before you and the difficult decisions you have to make for the greater good of the people of this State, and I want to thank you, not only for your professional support, but for your courtesy and for the kindness of this day.

"Mahalo and aloha."

At 12:08 o'clock p.m., the Senate stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The Senate reconvened at 12:17 o'clock p.m.
