"I quote from testimony from The Legal Aid Society of Hawaii:

LASH anticipates a growing number of foreclosures in the coming years as the so-called exotic mortgage products mature and consumers are not able to keep up with their adjusted mortgage payments or find a suitable refinance. With the growing number of foreclosures, there will only be an increase in the number of foreclosure rescue scams and wronged consumers in the State of Hawaii. The Legal Aid Society of Hawaii opposes SB 34 SD1 and its efforts to exempt real estate brokers and salespersons from Act 137. We do not believe this is the appropriate means to protect the consumers in the State of Hawaii.

Conclusion: We appreciate these committees' recognition of the need to protect consumers in the State of Hawaii. SB 34 SD 1 attempts to weaken protections for consumers. We oppose SB 34 SD 1 but are more than willing to work with the industry to find the most suitable way to ease the challenges of Act 137 while protecting the interests of the consumers in the State of Hawaii. Thank you for the opportunity to testify."

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of HCR16 HD1 which encourages State and county action to stimulate individual savings and development of credit and to formulate an inventory of banking services available to low-income persons and those with no credit history in the State.

"Consumers without a relationship with a mainstream financial institution may pay higher transaction fees for services and may pay interest rates to purchase items through rent-to-own companies. Whereas, consumers who have established banking relationships have access to better tools to save, build assets and enhance their ability to manage money and make significant financial decisions.

"On February 5, 2009, the FDIC annual survey of banks' efforts to serve the unbanked and underbanked noted, "While most banks offer basic checking accounts to customers, few offer deposit, payment, credit and electronically based products that address the unique needs of unbanked and underbanked customers."

"Those who will be the most affected by this Resolution include low-income individuals and families, female-headed households, the less educated and individuals living in rural communities because they are the most vulnerable to being financially underserved. Not having this happen could be extremely detrimental for these individuals in these financially hard times, Mr. Speaker.
