MESSAGE FROM KALANI

With the conclusion of the 2013 Legislative Session, I would like to take a moment to thank my staff, Alan Teixeira, Libby Kimball, Cissy Rees, Sharon Lum Ho and Lauraine Ayers-Briel for the hard work and dedication during the last four months. We have concluded an extremely productive session for our district and constituency.

In this issue, we take a look at a conference on climate change, we strengthen the existing sister-state relationship between Taiwan and the State of Hawai'i. We will also look at the site visits I conducted while on Lāna'i and we honor the life of Moana Dudoit as I visited Moloka'i.

The "Waves of Change" conference was held at the University of Hawai'i-Manoa's East-West Center and Kama-kakūokalani Center for Hawaiian Studies on April 4th, 2013. The conference discussed the environmental, social, cultural, political, economic, and legal impacts of climate change in the Pacific Islands.

"While the issue of climate change has been an ongoing discussion for years, this conference brings to light how the Pacific Islands are already experiencing its impact," said Sen. English, Chair of the Senate Committee on Transportation and International Affairs. He was among several policymakers, natural scientists, academics, university students, and community members attending the event.

Migration and the implications of climate change for Hawai'i, which is already home to many Pacific Islanders was also discussed.

"Due to the changing climate, there is potential for increased migration from the Pacific Islands to the State of Hawai'i," said Sen. English, "Islanders believe Hawai'i is able to provide them with the economic security and welfare they need, which has become challenging to achieve because of how climate change is impacting their home."

The Pacific Islands Regional Climate Assessment report released in December 2012 warns that Hawai'i and other Pacific Islands have experienced "higher average surface air temperature; decreased groundwater discharge to streams over the past century; more frequent and prolonged drought; and habitat changes affecting native species" as a result of climate change.

"It is important that we become aware of these major shifts in our environment so that we can address the issues and take action to reduce the impact of climate change today for the future generations," added Sen. English.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF KUMU HULA MOANA DUDOIT

On April 27th, Sen. English traveled to Moloka'i to present the 'ohana of the late Moana Dudoit with a Senate Proclamation in honor and remembrance of her life. Ohana, friends and colleagues from around the world gathered at the Mitchell Pauole Center in Kaunakakai, Moloka'i to celebrate Moana's life and contributions to the community. Moana was the epitome of all that Moloka'i represents. She was kind, friendly, spiritual and full of aloha.

During the 45 years that Moana taught hula, she believed that no one should be denied access to her halau because they could not afford the lessons. Therefore, joining Moana's Hula Halau was free due partially to the help of the community. Besides showcasing the hula, Moana shared and spread the unique aloha and spirit of Moloka'i while traveling to the continent, Japan, Europe and the South Pacific.

Moana had a special appeal. Her youngest student was 5 years old and the oldest was nearly 90. Although, her halau competed in the prestigious Merrie Monarch Festival in Hilo, Hawai'i, Moana made the hula fun and treated each member of her halau as part of her ohana. Moana was cherished by many and will be missed by all.
