JUSTIFICATION: The Department of Human Services is authorized to license group child care centers and homes, infant and toddler centers, and before- and after-school programs. Family child care homes are also registered with the Department of Human Services. The Department of Human Services also provides child care subsidies to families whose children may be cared for by persons who are exempt from licensure or registration, under section 346-152.

These amendments would clarify that persons who are exempt from licensure or registration, under section 346-152, and are caring for a child whose family receives child care subsidies from the Department are required to meet minimum requirements determined by the Department, including training and monitoring inspections. These amendments clarify that background checks for licensed and registered child care providers as well as license-exempt child care providers caring for children whose families receive child care subsidies shall include sex offender registry checks and child abuse and neglect registry checks in states where the individual has previously resided. These requirements for child care providers are required under the Child Care and Development Block Grant, Public Law 113-186, to ensure the health and safety of children in care.

Impact on the public: Amendments will increase health and safety requirements for children in care as license-exempt child care providers of children of current and future families receiving child care subsidies from the Department would be required to meet minimum requirements established by the Department, including training and monitoring inspections. Increased health and safety requirements for children in care as the background checks conducted by the Department would include searches of sex offender registry checks and child abuse and neglect registry checks in other states where the individual has resided, and the background checks would apply to current and future applicants, household members, employees, and prospective employees of licensed and registered child care homes and facilities as well as persons exempt pursuant to section 346-152.

Impact on the department and other agencies:
The Department of Human Services currently conducts background checks for license-exempt child care providers caring for children whose families receiving child care subsidies as well as applicants, household members, employees, and prospective employees of licensed and registered child care providers.

The Department of Human Services may deny or revoke a license or registration for child care home or facility if the Department determines the applicant, household member, employee, or prospective employee may pose a risk to the health, safety, or well-being of children in care.

The Department of Human Services would need to establish minimum requirements for license-exempt providers caring for children whose families receive child care subsidies, including training and monitoring inspections, and to include in background checks conducted by the Department of Human Services the child abuse and neglect registry checks from states the individual has previously resided in and the sex offender registry checks, as required by the Child Care and Development Block Grant, Public Law 113-186.

Impact to the Department may include need for more resources to meet the increased responsibilities for training and monitoring of minimum health and safety requirements for license-exempt providers caring for children whose families receive child care subsidies.
