Comments: A historical and growing shortage of housing units resulting in a low vacancy rate and rapidly rising rents exploiting this shortage constitute a serious housing problem affecting the lives of a substantial portion of those City and County of Honolulu and Hawai'i state residents who reside in residential housing. In addition, speculation in the purchase and sale of existing residential housing units by real estate and development investors (whether living in or outside of Hawai'i) results in further rent increases, leading to increase rates of homelessness and causing Hawai'i to lead the nation in the numbers of individual persons and families who are living unsheltered. Furthermore, due to the speculative nature of real estate business in Hawai'i, the data indicates that 262,000 persons in Hawai'i are "at-risk" for homelessness. This equates to 25% of the total population – or one of every four persons – may just be one paycheck away from homelessness. These conditions represent a clear and imminent threat to the public health and welfare of the City and County of Honolulu, as well as the state of Hawai'i, especially the poor, minorities, students, young families, and senior citizens.
