
A BILL FOR AN ACT

RELATING TO WELLNESS.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

1 SECTION 1. The legislature finds that research conducted
2 over the last two decades in the fields of neuroscience,
3 molecular biology, public health, genomics, and epigenetics
4 reveal that experiences in the first few years of life build 5 changes into the biology of the human body that, in turn,
6 influence a person's lifelong physical, mental, and spiritual
7 health. Adverse childhood experiences are traumatic experiences 8 that occur during childhood, including physical, emotional, or 9 sexual abuse; untreated mental illness; incarceration of a
10 household member; domestic violence; and separation or divorce
11 involving household members. These experiences can have a 12 profound effect on a child's developing brain and body and, if 13 not treated properly, can increase a person's risk for disease
14 and other health conditions through adulthood.

15 The legislature further finds that early adverse childhood
16 experiences shape the physical architecture of a child's 17 developing brain and can prevent the development of a sturdy

1 foundation for learning, quality health, and positive behavior.
2 Strong, frequent, or prolonged stress in childhood caused by 3 adverse childhood experiences can become toxic stress, impacting 4 the development of a child's fundamental brain architecture and 5 stress response systems. Early childhood education offers a 6 unique window of opportunity to prevent and heal the impacts of 7 adverse childhood experiences and toxic stress on a child's 8 brain, body, and spirit. Research on toxic stress and adverse 9 childhood experiences indicates the existence of a growing 10 public health crisis for the State with implications for 11 Hawaii's educational, juvenile justice, criminal justice, and 12 public health systems.

13 The legislature also finds that neurobiological,
14 epigenetic, and physiological studies have shown that traumatic
15 experiences in childhood and adolescence can diminish
16 concentration, memory, and the organizational language abilities
17 students need to succeed in school, thereby negatively impacting 18 a student's academic performance, classroom behavior, and the 19 ability to form relationships. A critical factor in buffering
20 children from the effects of toxic stress and adverse childhood
21 experiences is the existence of supportive, stable relationships

1 between children and their families, caregivers, and other
2 important adults in their lives. Cultural practices that 3 provide asset-based approaches involving the influence of a 4 stable non-relative adult can provide the resilience needed to 5 mitigate the effects on a child who has had high adverse
6 childhood experiences. Positively influencing the architecture
7 of a child's developing brain is more effective and less costly
8 than attempting to correct poor learning, health, and behaviors
9 later in life.

10 The purpose of this Act is to establish an office of 11 wellness and resilience as a semi-autonomous authority within 12 the office of the governor to support and implement the 13 statewide framework developed by the trauma-informed care task
14 force established pursuant to Act 209, Session Laws of Hawaii 15 2021, by:

16 (1) Addressing the various barriers that impact the 17 physical, social, and emotional well-being of all 18 people in the State by building wellness and 19 resilience through trauma-informed, strengths-based 20 strategies; and

1 (2) Supporting agencies in their individual reform efforts
2 to address trauma-informed care and move toward a
