II. Background and Summary

1. A brief description of the applicant's background;

Kupu, established in 2007, is an organization that offers opportunities for experiential education and job training aimed at assisting under-resourced young adults to achieve success and become lifelong contributors to their communities. The mission of Kupu is to empower young individuals in service to their communities' using opportunities that foster character-building, service-learning, and environmental stewardship. These opportunities are designed to promote integrity in their relationship with Akua (God), themselves, and others.

Kupu through its Community Program has recognized the value of creating a "third place" for its participants. These participants need a gathering place to learn and skill-up away from the pressures of home or school and Kupu's Ho'okupu Center is the sea of tranquility in the tumult of their lives. There they have an opportunity to grow as young adults through life skills training, green job opportunities and mentorship. Each young person can obtain a Certificate of High School Equivalency or High School Diploma and eligibility for on-the-job training in their chosen career.

2. The goals and objectives related to the request;

Goal 1: To Support State of Hawaii Department of Education (HIDOE) at-risk students of dropping out of high school or not graduating on time.

- Objective 1.1: By the end of the grant period 45 youth will participate in the Ho'okupu Center's educational pathway.
- Objective 1.2: By the end of the grant period 25 youth will complete the conservation service-learning program component.
- Goal 2: To Prepare participants for entry into Hawai"s higher education or workforce system
- Objective 2.1: By the end of the grant period 30 youth will secure paid work opportunities either within or outside of Kupu.
- Objective 2.2: By the end of the grant period 45 personal and professional development workshops will be offered to the youth.

3. The public purpose and need to be served;

The UN Convention on the Rights of the Child emphasizes the right to an education that fully develops every child's potential. However, with an estimated 2 million American high school students dropping out annually according to the National Center of Education Statistics, a substantial number of whom are youth of color, this right is not being universally upheld. The implications of this high dropout rate are far-reaching, affecting not only the economic, social, and personal well-being of the individuals involved, but also the nation's long-term economic outlook. As education is a major tool for empowerment and increasing the well-being of all citizens, it is crucial that students at risk of dropping have the opportunity become knowledgeable, responsible, socially skilled, healthy, caring, and contributing citizens. Failure to do so risks perpetuating poverty and diminishing the competitiveness of the American labor force on a global scale. Hawaii is not exempt from these trends.

In the 2022-23 academic year, Hawai'i's public-school students slightly improved their math skills while reading scores remained stagnant. This highlights a significant concern that many students are experiencing academic decline and require additional support beyond the traditional teaching structure (Civil Beat 2023). However, it is understood that this is not a comprehensive solution for the estimated 26% (3,000) of seniors who are off-track to graduate (HIDOE, 2021). As stated by a HIDOE teacher from Nanakuli High & Intermediate in 2021, "If the issue is attendance, tutoring is not the solution, because you're asking the kids who don't show up to show up more."

According to the HIDOE Strive HI Report, during the 2022-2023 school year at McKinley High, 26% of students did not graduate on time and 31% missed 15 or more days of school. At Farrington High, 28% of students did not graduate on time and an alarming 32% missed 15 or more days of school, 10% higher than the average for the complex. In that same school year, 41% of students statewide reported a negative school climate as measured by the Panorama Student Survey. At individual school levels, Farrington and McKinley either matched or exceeded the statewide rate of students reporting a negative school climate. The target population faces serious issues of equity over their lifetime if they do not achieve a high school degree. Statistically, the population is more likely to live in poverty, have poorer access to medical care and lower life expectancies.

In early 2021, Kupu met with HIDOE staff at both school and system levels. Recognizing Kupu's decade-long work in providing alternative education pathways for students from low to moderate income backgrounds, discussions focused on expanding the partnership to better serve unengaged HIDOE students through the establishment of a HIDOE Alternative Learning Center (ALC) at the Ho'okupu Center. At the start of the 2022-2023 HIDOE school year. Kupu and HIDOE launched the only off-site ALC in the Honolulu school district. Now offering both GED and traditional high school diploma pathways, Kupu's services target students with the greatest needs. The target school complex areas each have over 50% of their students receiving free and/or reduced lunch. Most students served at the Ho'okupu Center are second or third-generation residents of public housing and represent some of Hawai'i's most vulnerable minorities: Micronesian, Native Hawaiian, and Pacific Islanders. While the Ho'okupu Center serves students from all income backgrounds, those who are not on track to graduate are often those unable to access resources that support their success. Out-of-school tutoring, positive peer mentorship, one-on-one counseling, community service opportunities, steady and healthy meals are just some of the services struggling students lack but are provided daily by Kupu.

4. Describe the target population to be served; and

The target population of this project are "opportunity youth", young adults ages 16-24, who according to the American Youth Policy Forum (AYPF) more likely to have disabilities, experience houselessness, or are involved with the juvenile justice or child welfare systems. These youth are at elevated risk of dropping out. Their disconnection results in lower incomes, higher unemployment rates, and negative physical and mental health outcomes. The AYPF reports that this population of youth costs taxpayers approximately $93 billion (about $290 per person in the US) annually and $1.6 trillion over their lifetimes in lost revenue and increased social services, a burden from which Hawai'i is not exempt.

The most recently published report on juvenile delinquency trends in Hawai'i indicates that there were 1,606 juvenile arrests in 2020 in the County of Honolulu (Honolulu Police Department, 2020). Judges often face a difficult choice between probation and incarceration for adolescents with moderately serious offending histories who do not pose an immediate or significant threat to public safety. To address this issue, courts and correction systems should invest in and expand access to high-quality alternatives to incarceration such as rigorous career preparation, vocational programs, and intensive youth advocate and mentoring programs (The Annie E. Casey Foundation, 2011).

According to HIDOE, the school system saw a significant increase in students missing 15 or more days of school from 18% in the 2021 school year to 37% (63,492 students) in 2022. Additionally, only 59% of high school students reported feeling positively about their school. The proposed project aims to support students who have dropped out of school and those considering dropping out. If successful, the services of the Ho'okupu Center would counteract the above statistics by providing opportunity youth with access to and mobility within Hawai'i's workforce. In a report on education and lifetime earnings by Georgetown University's Center on Education and the Workforce, programs like Kupu have increased the potential earnings of young adults by over $40 million to date, thereby reducing the taxpayer burden described above.

5. Describe the geographic coverage.

This program's geographic area includes the whole of the Island of Oahu, and Kupu has had participants join from its entirety enrolled. However, because of the center's location in the urban core of Honolulu, students of the two area complexes of Kaimuki-McKinley-Roosevelt and Farrington-Kaiser-Kalani represent Kupu's primary service populations and geographic coverage.

III. Service Summary and Outcomes

1. Describe the scope of work, tasks and responsibilities;

This project will combine resources from both Kupu and the State of Hawai'i's Department of Education (HIDOE). This will facilitate the goals of:

- Preventing students from dropping out
- Supporting graduation with a high school diploma or equivalent
- Preparation for entry into Hawai"s Higher education or workforce system

Kupu's Scope of Work supported by proposed State Grants-in-Aid Funding includes the following:

- Kupu will provide HIDOE students and teachers with the use of the Harry and Jeanette Ho'okupu center for educational purposes.
- Kupu will provide maintenance of the facilities used as part of the partnership with HIDOE. This will ensure that standards needed for a safe learning environment exist for participants.
- Kupu will provide daily breakfast and lunch at no charge to the participants.

- As part of the program participants will be offered paid work positions in Kupu's social enterprises.
- Kupu will provide hands-on conservation service-learning experiences.
- Kupu will provide transportation for students to participate in work and learning opportunities.
- Kupu will include specific curriculum integrated with the paid service-learning opportunities to reinforce and upskill participants.
- Lead or facilitate workshops for the personal and professional development of participants.
- Case management
- Facilitate preparation for work certifications.
- Kupu will provide adult mentorship for students.
- Collaborate with HIDOE staff to enroll students with the Ho'okupu Center services.
- Kupu will provide professional and personal development for participating HIDOE staff.
- The provision of daily on-site management of services for HIDOE educational services and activities.
- Kupu will collaborate with HIDOE on program evaluation.
- Fundraise to supplement GIA resources allocated to the project.

Long Term Service (3 Months to 1 Year)

Participants engage in up to six weeks of cultural activities under the conservation component of the program, which might include outplanting native species, farming taro fields and restoring traditional fishponds. Next, participants engage in the high school education pathway, offered in partnership by Kupu and HIDOE and paid work opportunities in Kupu's culinary social enterprise, or a part-time paid opportunity outside of Kupu. These services will be offered for up to one year. Kupu staff will work with participants individually in the creation of a transition plan. This will support their exit of the program and entry into the workforce or higher education as high school graduates.

Short Term Service (2 Months or Less)

For youth who are not ready to commit to a long-term program and need more immediate support, Kupu staff will offer the following short-term services with the goal of enrolling them into long term service and/or setting them on a path of greater personal and economic stability.

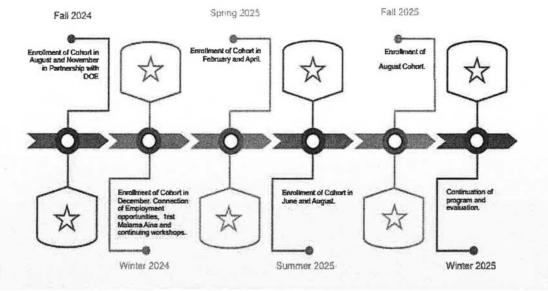

Resources and services may include:

- Service Referrals
- Counseling
- Positive Peer to Peer Engagement and Support
- Tutoring
- Employment Readiness Support
- Healing through Malama Aina (Conservation) Service

2. Provide a projected annual timeline for accomplishing the results or outcomes of the service:

The proposed timeline for achieving the desired outcomes, using the calendar year as a reference, is as follows:

Kupu Community Program Timeline

- Ho'okupu Center Operations: The Ho'okupu Center services, which have been operational for a decade, operate year-round. At the start of the Grants-In-Aid contract, the program will already be in full operation, eliminating the need for a startup period.
- Service Reception: To achieve the outcome of "45 youth receiving services at the Ho'okupu Center," Kupu will offer both long and short-term services for unengaged youth in need of support. For the long-term service, Kupu will either have youth continuing their service from the previous year or enroll new youth into the long-term option. The enrollment dates will be in November 2024, April 2025, and August 2025 with Kupu expecting to report seven youth participating in the program at both times.
- Education Pathway: To achieve the outcome of "45 youth participating in the Ho'okupu Center education pathway," the State of Hawai'i Department of Education (HIDOE) will partner with Kupu to identify and enroll five youth in the Ho'okupu Center classroom in August 2024, and the remaining youth enrolled in GED classes in November 2024, April 2025, and August 2025. Each month Kupu anticipates enrolling 5 students.

- Employment Opportunities: To achieve the outcome of "30 youth having paid work opportunities within or outside of Kupu," Kupu will have hired youth internally or connected them with an external job opportunity by December 2024, and March, and December 2025.
- Workshops: To achieve the outcome of offering "45 personal and professional development workshops to youth," Kupu staff will conduct three to four workshops per month. This schedule will result in the desired outcome of 45 workshops.
- Malama Aina (Conservation): To achieve this outcome of having 25 members complete the Malama Aina phase of the program, Kupu staff will start each cohort of new members in November 2024, April 2025, August 2025, and November 2025 with six weeks of hands-on conservation work
- 3. Describe its quality assurance and evaluation plans for the request.

 Specify how the applicant plans to monitor, evaluate, and improve their results; and

Key Performance Indicators (KPI's) are informed by the Urban Institute's Mobility Metrics Framework. The KPI's monitored and evaluated are High-Quality Education, Opportunity Rich and Inclusive Neighborhoods, and Rewarding Work Results. This evaluation plan will support the shaping of a more effective service model as well as increase Kupu and HIDOE's confidence in replicating the model for other communities in Hawai'i. Adding to the effectiveness of the Center's services, program alumni have regularly been included in recurring planning meetings. These alumni often hold leadership positions in other Kupu programs or have been promoted to a staff position. Taking advantage of their unique perspective, these alumni are given the authority to inform, shape and lead parts of the service delivery and its evaluation.

In 2023, it was announced that Kupu secured the second largest Urban and Community Forestry award in the nation from the US Department of Agriculture, totaling $20 million over five years. 2. Facilities

The Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Ho'okupu Center serves as a space to revitalize Hawai'i's communities. This facility helps provide local youth with the opportunity to reach their full potential as the future leaders of Hawai'i. The facility supports Kupu's programs by offering the place for several classes designed to offer transferable job skills. The programs focus on the conservation and culinary fields two of Hawai'i's major economic drivers. Kupu has a 15-year lease with the City and County of Hawaii with an option to extend for another 15 years for the Ho'okupu Center.

Facilities in the Center include:

- A Professional Level Commercial Kitchen
- Training Rooms
- Classrooms
- Meeting Spaces

The center is a 2023 AIA Honolulu Design Awards winning facility. It incorporates several green/sustainable measures in its design and operation. It includes a net-zero energy-rated photovoltaic system that generates as much energy as it uses, contributing to energy conservation. An Electric Vehicle (EV) charging station promotes the use of electric vehicles, reducing carbon emissions. The center also emphasizes farm-to-table preferred cuisine, supporting local agriculture and reducing the carbon footprint associated with food transportation. The center incorporates natural lighting systems, reducing the need for artificial lighting and saving energy.

4. Future Sustainability Plan

Kupu's possesses a strategic plan for sustaining and expanding its activities beyond the grant period based on three existing revenue streams that can progressively cover project costs over time in addition to continuing to secure other grant funding:

- Ho'okupu Center Usage Fees: These fees contribute to the annual costs of the Ho'okupu Center programs.
- Catering Revenue: Income from catering services also helps cover a portion of the program costs.
- Food Truck Revenue: The earnings from the food truck business further support the financial needs of the programs.

These revenue streams reduce Kupu's reliance on grant funding each year, allowing the organization to expand as a social enterprise.

The revenue from all the business lines mentioned above primarily subsidizes the wages of both staff and members, as well as other common business expenses such as utilities, supplies, and vehicle maintenance. If successful, these business models will be able to scale in size to serve more young adults across the island of Oahu while keeping the reliance on grant funding at a minimum. This plan demonstrates Kupu's commitment to sustainability and growth beyond the grant period.
