JUSTIFICATION SHEET

DEPARTMENT: University of Hawaii

TITLE: A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII RELIEF FUNDING.

PURPOSE: To amend the University of Hawaii Tuition and Fees Special Fund to allow the Board of Regents to provide student aid in direct response to an emergency or disaster, as declared by the governor.

MEANS: Amend section 304A-2153, Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS).

JUSTIFICATION: The Maui wildfires in 2023 had a substantial impact on many University of Hawaii students. At the time, inquiries were made with the U.S. Department of Education (USDOE) regarding the possibility of providing additional aid to these students in the form of disaster relief that would be exempt from treatment as financial assistance.

According to guidance by the USDOE, "Institutional funds provided by a public institution directly to students for disaster relief would generally not qualify as "state aid," but could be provided to students and exempted from a student's estimated financial assistance on a case-by-case basis using professional judgment. In addition, if the State of Hawaii specified that the institution was to set aside an allotment of funds specifically for disaster relief, and indicated that those funds could be used for no other purpose, the Department would consider those funds to be "state aid" because the institution would be acting as an instrument of the State in distributing the disaster assistance funds according to requirements set by the State. In this limited case, the funds would be considered exempt from treatment as estimated financial assistance.

It would not be permissible for a public institution to redesignate as intended for disaster relief, institutional aid that was previously awarded or disbursed."

The revisions to section 304A-2153, HRS, will not be used as the mechanism to exempt disaster relief as financial assistance, however, it would be a vehicle through which the university will be able to meet the requirements set forth in the USDOE guidance (limited case) thereby allowing that "the funds would be considered exempt from treatment as estimated financial assistance."

The University of Hawaii will set aside an allotment of funds specifically for disaster relief and those funds shall be used for no other purpose other than disaster relief. In doing so, the funds would be considered "state aid" because the university would be acting as an instrument of the State in distributing the disaster assistance funds according to requirements set by the State.

These revisions are necessary so that when the next disaster impacts University of Hawaii students, there can be a dedicated disaster relief fund ready to deploy in support of student needs. With this revision, the designated institutional funds would be considered exempt from treatment as financial assistance and have no impact on the recipient's financial aid package. Without this designation, relief funds from UH would be considered by USDOE as financial assistance and would supplant the recipients' financial aid package potentially reducing federal funding support.

Impact on the public: This will help provide students with support during a time of crisis and thus help increase retention and improve student success.
