The Office of Wellness and Resilience (OWR) in the Governor's Office SUPPORTS H.B. 900, Relating to Child Welfare Services.

The mission of the OWR is strengthen our state systems and services, using healing-centered principles as strategies to make Hawai'i a trauma-informed state. As the State agency that administers the Mālama 'Ohana Working Group, our office has had the privilege to work closely with those with lived expertise in navigating the child welfare system, other State departments, and community partners. The recommendations submitted in the Mālama 'Ohana Working Report puts the voices of lived expertise of youth and families at the forefront. Our office strongly believes that we all have the collective responsibility to establish a child welfare system that is trauma-informed and responds to the needs of children and families in the system and in our communities.

As can be found in Section VI of the Mālama 'Ohana Working Group Report, the Working Group has put forth the recommendation to "strengthen the family court process for child welfare cases". Youth and parents in the Working Group and the Permitted Interaction Groups shared the need to strengthen the cultural competency and trauma-informed approach of those working within the court-system. We understand that to achieve this, solutions will need to be collectively discussed and should include voices of lived expertise and state agencies administering the system.

H.B. 900 achieves this by creating a Working Group in the Judiciary that is trauma-informed by elevating the voices of lived expertise to work alongside state agencies to find pathways to improve the system.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify on this important issue.

Comments:

Representative Tarnas and committee members,

The HCCPR fully supports quality legal representation for both children and parents in the child welfare system. Current bills to increase the stipend for court appointed lawyers is commendable but is far below the standard for quality representation in the complex defense in child abuse and neglect cases.

Please note that federal funding has been available from Title IVE since 2018. DHS must apply for the maximum amount of federal funding according to the recommendation of the Malama Ohana working group.

According to testimony there is a severe shortage of lawyers in the pool for parent representation, always in the hundreds. How would the Judiciary handle child representation for at least twice the number of parents in the system?

RE: Testimony in SUPPORT of HB 900 Relating to Child Welfare Services

Aloha e Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Committee Members,

My name is Dana Matsunami, I am an attorney at the National Center for Youth Law. I live and work here in Hawai'i, where I focus on issues relating to foster care in our state. I am testifying in support of HB 900, which creates a working group to explore and advance youth in foster care's access to meaningful legal representation in their child welfare case.

In my work, I have had the privilege of collaborating with current and former foster youth throughout Hawai'i to hear their stories, challenges, and visions for a better future. These conversations are not easy. Youth have shared harm they experienced during their child welfare case and the lasting impact on their lives. There are themes: many youth share that they were left in the dark about their cases; experienced abuse while in foster care but feared retaliation if they sought help; and had vital decisions made about their lives without their knowledge or input, causing life-long trust issues and trauma. We know from the brave personal stories of youth, the tragedies that have occurred in our state, and the hard work of community partners that youth in Hawai'i's foster care system can experience terrible—sometimes tragic—outcomes. We also know that child welfare interventions overwhelmingly disrupt the lives of Native Hawaiian families. It is, as one former Hawai'i foster youth put it, “a system of luck,” where some get lucky and escape the worst outcomes, but many do not.

Children and youth have legal rights while in foster care, including a right to family integrity, community connection, and safety. However, under current state, youth in Hawai'i can be removed from their families, communities, and homes; separated from siblings; placed in state custody; prevented from attending extracurricular activities; forced to change schools; permanently legally severed from their parents; and more, all without a lawyer or an advocate who is required to advocate for what the youth wants and needs. Advancing effective, culturally-responsive, and well-trained legal representation to youth in child welfare cases is an essential step to ensuring youth voices are heard and that their rights are upheld. As one youth said, “how can you make decisions that change our lives forever without ever even hearing from us?”

The importance of youth representation in child welfare cases is backed up by research. Access to counsel makes a world of difference: children represented by specifically trained legal counsel are 40% more likely to leave the foster system within their first six months and experience a 45% higher reunification rate with their biological parents. They also experience a 30% reduction in the rate of placement moves, and 65% reduction in the rate of unnecessary school moves. By creating a working group—guided by youth lived experts—to explore a model of representation that serves Hawai'i's unique legal and cultural needs, this bill works toward our shared goals of keeping youth safe and families and communities together.

The National Center for Youth Law is in support of this bill as an imperative step towards ensuring youth in Hawai'i foster care have voice and choice in their lives.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Dear Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Committee Members,

On behalf of HCANSpeaks!, I am writing in support of HB 900, relating to child welfare services. This bill establishes a working group to discuss and implement legal counsel for children.

This bill represents an important step towards establishing legal counsel for children in Hawai'i. Firsthand accounts shared by youth lived experts¹ in Hawai'i as well as national research² demonstrates legal counsel for children is necessary to improve the safety and well-being of children and youth involved in the child welfare system. Children represented by specially trained legal counsel experience better outcomes, including higher chances of leaving the foster care system within their first six months. They also experience a 45% higher reunification rate with their biological parents; 30% reduction in the rate of placement moves; and 65% reduction in the rate of unnecessary school moves.³

Children and youth facing the challenges and trauma of navigating the child welfare system deserve to have their voices heard and to be listened to regarding the course of their lives. As such, the efforts of the working group that would be established by this bill should be guided by and grounded in the experiences of youth lived experts.

Mahalo for the opportunity to submit testimony in support of HB 900.

RE: Testimony in support of HB 900 Relating to Child Welfare Services

Aloha e Committee Members,

My name is Patricia Chin, and I serve as the HI H.O.P.E.S. (Hawai'i Helping Our People Envision Success) Initiative Manager at EPIC 'Ohana. Our Initiative is dedicated to ensuring that young people with foster care experience, primarily those aged 14 to 26, have access to the relationships, resources, and opportunities necessary for success. We achieve this by collaborating with public and private partners at both state and local levels to enhance policies and practices, promote youth voice and engagement, apply evaluation and research, and foster community partnerships.

In addition to my role as the HI H.O.P.E.S. Initiative Manager, I have had the privilege of serving as a Case Manager for the IHI (Independent Living, Higher Education, and Imua Kākou) program. In this capacity, I supported youth currently or formerly in foster care in acquiring the independent living skills essential for their transition into adulthood and beyond. Furthermore, I am a former foster youth of the Child Welfare System in Hawai'i. I am here to testify in strong support of HB 900, which proposes the creation of a working group to explore and advance foster youth's access to meaningful legal representation in their child welfare cases.

In my work, I have the honor of collaborating with current and former foster youth across the State of Hawai'i, listening to their stories, and identifying the gaps and changes needed for a better future. A recurring theme in these conversations is the lack of awareness about their child welfare cases and the absence of their involvement in critical decisions that profoundly impact their lives. As a former foster youth, it is disheartening to hear these common stories, as they mirror my own experiences when I was a ward of the State. While I am grateful for my Guardian Ad Litem (GAL), I recognize that I had limited interactions with her throughout my six-year child welfare case. I also did not fully understand the role of my GAL until I became professionally involved in this field. With the knowledge I have now, I firmly believe that having legal representation would have allowed me to be more engaged in my child welfare case, resulting in less traumatic outcomes for my family and me, and addressing the gaps that still exist today.

This working group will facilitate collaboration between system professionals and those who have experienced the system, creating a brighter future for impacted youth. Young people deserve to be informed and involved in decisions that will shape their lives. I stand in strong support of this bill and respectfully urge you to consider passing HB 900. Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Position: SUPPORT

Dear Representative Tarnas, Representative Poepoe, and Committee Members:

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony in support of HB 900, which establishes a working group for legal services for youth in the child welfare system within the judiciary.

My name is Karen Worthington, and I am a children's law and policy attorney with a consulting business on Maui, Karen Worthington Consulting. I have worked as a lawyer in and around state systems affecting children and families throughout my 30-year career. I am certified as a Child Welfare Law Specialist by the National Association of Counsel for Children. I have worked extensively with Hawai'i state departments and nonprofit organizations that support children and families who exist at the margins of our society.

Please pass HB 900, which addresses a critical gap in Hawai'i's child welfare system. In a child welfare case, the person whose life is most impacted by the process and outcomes is the child, yet children's perspectives are often not shared with the courts. In fact, across the state, our children and youth are often not seen or heard during the legal proceedings about their lives.

Youth with lived experience in Hawai'i's child welfare system report being left uninformed about their cases, having decisions made without their input, and facing retaliation when reporting unsafe conditions. As one youth powerfully stated, "How can you make decisions that change our lives forever without ever even hearing from us?"

The Mālama 'Ohana Working Group report includes input from youth who shared their insights and experiences by participating in the 11 community meetings, serving on or informing the Permitted Interaction Groups, or submitting written testimony. These youth consistently expressed two fundamental needs: they want to have a say in decisions about their lives and they want their rights and well-being protected.

While Hawai'i law requires children to have a Guardian ad Litem (GAL) in these proceedings, GALs are not bound by attorney-client confidentiality—they advocate for what they believe is in the child's best interest rather than representing the child's expressed wishes. This means that that children's experiences, wishes, and insights are filtered through an adult who may never have experienced being placed in foster care, being forcibly separated from family members and close friends, or other traumatic events. Furthermore, if a GAL is not an attorney, the child's representative is not able to protect the child's essential legal rights. In my experience as a lawyer, I have seen that non-lawyer advocates are at a disadvantage in legal proceedings when all other parties have a lawyer because a non-lawyer does not have the legal tools needed to protect a person's rights. Finally, many children in the Hawai'i child welfare system do not even have a GAL; in Child Maltreatment 2023, Table 6-5, Hawai'i reports that only 50.5% of child victims have a court appointed representative.

Research shows that providing children with legal counsel is not only the right thing to do, it is a smart financial move because over time, it reduces costs within the child welfare system, with studies showing a 40% faster exit from foster care when children have legal representation. And, federal funds through Title IV-E are available to offset some of the costs of providing lawyers for youth.

Creating this working group is an important step in the direction of properly caring for youth who are involved with the child welfare system and protecting their rights, especially those provided through the Hawai'i Foster Youth Bill of Rights. I respectfully request two modifications to strengthen the working group's composition:

- Increase youth representation by including more youth who are or were in the child welfare system and offering two youth the opportunity to co-chair the working group along with judges
- Expand geographic representation by appointing at least one more GAL who represents youth on an island other than Oahu, as families on Maui and other islands have quite different court experiences than families in the First Circuit.

If you would like additional information related to my testimony, please do not hesitate to contact me at karen@karenworthington.com.

Best regards,

Karen Worthington

Re: Testimony in support of HB 900, HD1

I support HB 900 Regarding Child Welfare Services, which specifically establishes a working group to discuss and implement legal counsel for children.

In 2023 the Mālama 'Ohana Working Group was established to develop recommendations to establish a child welfare system that is trauma-informed, sustains a community-based partnership, and responds to the needs of children and families in the system and the community. I serve as Co-Chair of the working group. The working group has completed its work and a full copy of the report can be found at www.malamaohana.net, however the working group is still subject to sunshine law until adjournment sine die. Therefore, I am testifying as a concerned citizen and speaking for the content of the report that was approved by the working group. To be clear, although the working group may meet during the session to provide information to the legislature and to the public about its report, it is not making further decisions. Therefore, it is not allowed that more than two of us meet to discuss the report, and in those meetings, we are not making further decisions.

Our first task as the Mālama 'Ohana Working Group was to establish an approach to our work by cultivating and modeling the kind of listening and concern that we needed for our working group and modeling the type of child welfare system we hope for. From there, we began with the intense work of interviewing individuals, conducting conversations, and holding group discussions in Permitted Interaction Groups, which helped shape our initial understanding. We then conducted eleven community listening sessions throughout the state, gathering stories and ideas from each community we visited.

Two members of our working group were former foster youth. They led a Permitted Interaction Group (PIG) that focused on the needs of children and youth. They conducted several interviews with current and former foster youth. Also, in the community listening sessions several former and current foster youth shared their ideas and experiences.

Here is what they said: "When agencies are involved in their families, they want to be fully and honestly informed about all matters impacting their lives; to be respected and treated with compassion; to understand their rights and responsibilities, have an informed support system to help them access services, maintain connections, and uphold their rights; actively and meaningfully participate in decisions and decision making events and advocate for themselves and their families.” They said they needed to be listened to – they are the expert in their lives – but they sometimes feel disrespected and disregarded.

Thirty states currently have a requirement for legal counsel for children. Dana Matsunani, a Skadden Fellow with the National Center for Youth Law has been here in Hawai'i focusing her fellowship on the rights and needs of foster youth. Her research shows that the outcomes for children are better when there is an attorney.

At the same time, as a former GAL and parents attorney, as a former employee of the Judiciary, and as co-founder and retired Executive Director of EPIC 'Ohana, I have firsthand knowledge of some of the barriers to fully implementing counsel for children. There are not enough trained and effective lawyers available to take these assignments. But like the work that we did in the working group, I also believe that by convening committed individuals to problem solve, solutions can be found.

We also learned the incredible value of having youth voices at the table. For instance, the leaders of HI HOPES, who advocate, educate, and collaborate on behalf of their siblings in foster care, have successfully supported extended care to 21, normalcy and prudent parenting, and the Foster Youth Bill of Rights in 2018.

We are very grateful for your support of the children in the child welfare system, and your efforts to find ways to improve the system.

Aloha, Chair, Vice Chair and Committee Members,

My name is Melissa Mayo, and I am submitting testimony in strong support of HB900, which establishes a working group to explore and implement legal counsel for youth involved in the child welfare system.

As a former foster youth and a proud member of the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group which has been tasked to seek, design, and recommend transformative changes to the State's existing child welfare system—I have often shared my belief that Hawai‘i’s child welfare system operates as a system of luck. While I consider myself fortunate to have had a guardian ad litem and social worker who valued my voice and supported me during my time in foster care, I know many others have not been as lucky. This disparity fuels my passion for ensuring that every young person in Hawai‘i’s foster care system has access to the resources and support they need—not just to survive, but to thrive and live meaningful lives.

Throughout my time as a member of the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group and the chair of the Keiki and ‘Opio Permitted Interaction Group, I listened to many stories from youth whose experiences in the foster care system were marked by a lack of resources, support, and disconnection from family. Many of the young people I had spoken to urged that those working with youth in foster care should “Stop making decisions about our lives without even hearing from us.” They shared that having a supportive adult who listened, advocated for their needs, and valued their input could have significantly improved their experience in foster care.

HB900 is a vital step toward ensuring that no young person’s future is left to chance. By establishing this working group, we can focus on ensuring that youth in foster care have access to legal counsel—advocates who will prioritize their voices, rights, and well-being. This is especially critical in a system where major decisions about their lives, such as family separation, school changes, and placement moves, are often made without their meaningful input.

Through my experience as an advocate for improving outcomes for youth in foster care, I have seen how the voices of young people can lead to meaningful, systemic change. In our listening sessions and discussions, current and former foster youth consistently shared the need for advocates who would stand by their side and ensure they are heard. Their voices highlighted the stark disparities in outcomes for those who, like me, were fortunate to have supportive adults versus those who were not.

Research confirms what lived experiences already tell us:

- Children with access to trained legal counsel are 40% more likely to achieve permanency within six months and experience a 45% higher rate of reunification with their families.
- Legal representation reduces unnecessary placements, school moves, and the trauma associated with instability.

By establishing this working group, guided by the lived experiences of youth and the input of community stakeholders, we can begin to address the inequities in Hawai‘i’s child welfare system and ensure that every young person in foster care has access to the legal advocacy and support they deserve. Hawai‘i’s youth should not have to rely on luck to receive the care, respect, and opportunities they need to thrive.

Mahalo for your time, dedication, and commitment to improving the lives of Hawai'i's foster youth,

Melissa Mayo

Re: Support for HB900 RELATING TO CHILD WELFARE SERVICES with Amendment

Good afternoon Representatives Tarnas, Poepoe & House JHA members,

I am an independent Domestic Violence Survivor Advocate who represents those who've escaped domestic violence (DV), a population primarily comprised of women and their children, and while I support HB900, I am coming before you today to beseech you to amend SECTION 2 subsection (c) to include:

(11) A representative from any of the state's domestic violence agencies

Despite my urgent pleas in all previous years to include DV representation in working groups and task force initiatives (see attached) where the population I serve should be represented (since most child-related deaths are DV-related) I am once again disappointed to see that DV has been excluded from a list of invited participants despite one of the Malama Ohana Working Group's conclusions that DV in Hawaii is a considerable problem.

Please note that in the Malama Ohana Working Group effort (which was a purported response to the death of 6 year-old, Ariel Sellers, presumably killed by her adoptive parents who had a history of domestic violence) a DV representative was not one of the regularly participating seventeen working group members. How do you seek to address or remedy a problem when there's no one there to represent it? Ignoring domestic violence doesn't make it go away nor can you cure cancer with no oncologists in the room, so rather than authorizing another working group that won't address DV because it's not represented, can a DV representative please be included in the roster this time?

Hawaii is not short on DV expertise, resources or agencies so we just need one individual to be assigned as this body wishes. State DV agencies include:

The Hawaii State Coalition Against Domestic Violence, the Domestic Violence Action Center, Child & Family Service, Parents & Children Together, Women In Need, Victim Witness Kokua, Hawaii Says NO MORE, The Joyful Heart Foundation, Women Helping Women, Turning Point for Families, YWCA of Hawaii Island & Kauai, along with many other individual or independent DV experts who I'm sure would be happy to serve if called upon to do so.

Thank you for this opportunity to provide this suggested amendment & testimony in support of HB900.

PLEASE INCLUDE DOMESTIC VIOLENCE representation to the list of Malama Ohana invitees!!!

Ignoring domestic violence is the very first step to falling victim to it and if you look at all the interpersonal relationship homicides, you'll notice that the majority of these murders had a history or element of domestic violence involved in them!

I have urged every committee this measure has gone before this session to add domestic violence to the list of invited Malama Ohana participants but the measure gets passed unamended.

Does anyone remember that this effort stems from the presumed murder of Ariel Sellers whose adoptive/foster father had a history of domestic violence that was ignored? Isn't the Malama Ohana group's purpose to prevent the next Ariel Sellers, Reef Aikau, Talia Williams, Brayden McVeigh (and others) from happening? If you don't include domestic violence, this collaborative effort is meaningless and the next child's demise is already taking shape.

We have several domestic violence agencies to choose from in this state; please tap just one of them to include their expertise in this working group!

Thank you for your time and consideration and apologies for my tone if I sound overly frustrated; domestic violence homicides ARE preventable - you just have to know what to look for and you're not going to know what to look for if you don't have that voice at the table!
