Chair Tarnas and Members of the Committee:

The Department of the Attorney General provides the following comments.

This bill (1) prohibits foreign nationals, foreign corporations, and foreign-influenced business entities from making contributions, expenditures, electioneering communications, or donations for election purposes; (2) allows every business entity that makes a campaign contribution or expenditure to certify, under penalty of perjury, its status as a foreign corporation or a foreign-influenced business entity; (3) requires the Campaign Spending Commission to revise the conditions that determine whether a business entity qualifies as a foreign-influenced business entity if the conditions are held unconstitutional by a final judgment, including all appeals; and (4) requires noncandidate committees making only independent expenditures to obtain a certification from each top contributor certifying, under penalty of perjury, whether any of the funds contributed were derived from a foreign corporation or a foreign-influenced business entity.

The bill requires certain certifications to be made under "penalty of perjury," however, a false certification of either of the two certifications required by this bill would not meet the elements of the offense of perjury as described in section 710-1060 of the Hawaii Penal Code.

Pursuant to the Hawaii Penal Code, section 710-1060, Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS), "[a] person commits the offense of perjury if in any official proceeding the person makes, under an oath required or authorized by law, a false statement which the person does not believe to be true." The terms "official proceeding," "oath required or authorized by law," and "oath," are defined in section 710-1000 of the Hawaii Penal Code. Neither of the situations in which a certification is required by this bill fall within the definition of "official proceeding," as defined in section 710-1060 of the Hawaii Penal Code.

Section 3 of the bill proposes to amend section 11-356, HRS, by adding a new subsection (d) on page 8, line 7, to page 9, line 6, that permits business entities to file a statement of certification with the Campaign Spending Commission. We believe the filing of a false certification under this requirement would meet the elements of section 710-1063 of the Hawaii Penal Code, the offense of unsworn falsification to authorities. Replacing the phrase "penalty of perjury" with "penalty of law," on page 8, lines 14-15, would cover this offense.

Section 4 of this bill proposes to amend section 11-393, HRS, on page 13, line 20, to page 14, line 12, to add a new subsection (d) that requires noncandidate committees to obtain certifications from top contributors. As we indicated in paragraph three of this testimony, a false certification under this requirement would not meet the elements of the offense of perjury. Additionally, we do not believe a false statement under this requirement would meet the offense of unsworn falsification to authorities, as described in section 710-1063 of the Hawaii Penal Code. Rather, we believe that with some modification, a false certification under this requirement could meet the offense of false swearing under section 710-1062 of the Hawaii Penal Code.

Pursuant to the Hawaii Penal Code, section 710-1062, HRS, "[a] person commits the offense of false swearing if the person makes, under oath required or authorized by law, a false statement which the person does not believe to be true." Section 710-1000 of the Hawaii Penal Code defines "oath required or authorized by law" as "an oath the use of which is specifically provided for by statute or appropriate regulatory provision." Section 710-1000 defines "oath" as "an affirmation and every other mode authorized by law of attesting to the truth of that which is stated, and, for the purposes of this chapter, written statements shall be treated as if made under oath if:

- (a) The statement was made on or pursuant to a form bearing notice, authorized by law, to the effect that false statements made therein are punishable; or
- (b) The statement recites that it was made under oath or affirmation, the declarant was aware of such recitation at the time the declarant made the statement and intended that the statement should be represented as a sworn statement, and the statement was in fact so represented by its delivery or utterance with the signed jurat of an officer authorized to administer oaths appended thereto."

We recommend amending the first sentence of the proposed section 11-393(d), page 13, line 20, to page 14, lines 1-4, to read:

"A noncandidate committee shall obtain a statement of certification signed under oath as defined in, and on a form as described in, section 710-1000, from each top contributor required to be listed in an advertisement pursuant to this section avowing under penalty of ~~[perjury]~~ law that, after due inquiry, none of the funds contributed by the top contributor were derived from a foreign corporation or foreign-influenced business entity."

Thank you for the opportunity to provide these comments.

Wednesday, March 12, 2025
2:00 p.m., Conference Room 325 & Videoconference

Thank you for the opportunity to testify on this bill. The Campaign Spending Commission ("Commission") supports the intent of this bill and offers the following comments.

This bill amends Hawaii Revised Statutes ("HRS") §11-302 by adding the definitions of "business entity," "foreign-influenced business entity," and "foreign investor." The bill amends HRS §11-356 by (1) prohibiting a foreign-influenced business entity, in addition to a foreign national and foreign corporation, from making contributions and expenditures, (2) prohibiting a foreign national, foreign corporation, and foreign-influenced business entity, from making independent expenditures and electioneering communications, (3) prohibiting a foreign national, foreign corporation, and foreign-influenced business entity from making a contribution or donation to a person that is earmarked for campaign spending purpose, and (4) requiring a business entity that makes a contribution or expenditure to file a certification with the Commission that the business entity was not a foreign corporation or foreign-influenced business entity on the date the contribution or expenditure was made. S.D. 2 adds a new section that provides that if a business entity intends to make contributions or expenditures on behalf of a committee, including independent expenditures or electioneering communications, within 7 days after making its first contribution or expenditure, it may file with the Commission a statement of certification on line 11 on page 8. Further, S.D. 2 provides that if the conditions set forth in the bill are deemed unconstitutional, the Commission shall establish revised conditions that are constitutional for purposes of determining whether a business is a foreign-influenced business. Respectfully, the Commission notes that issues of constitutionality are not within its purview, but rather lies with the Attorney General's Office. Finally, the bill amends HRS §11-393 by requiring a super PAC to obtain a certification from each of its top contributors required to be listed in the super PAC's advertisement disclaimer that none of the funds contributed by the top contributors were derived from a foreign corporation or foreign-influenced business entity.

The Commission notes that a foreign-influenced business entity includes, but is not limited to, the circumstance where a single foreign investor owns one per cent of the business entity or where two or more foreign investors own five per cent of the business entity. That seems too small amount of ownership to influence the decisions of the business entity. However, in testimony supporting this bill before the Senate Committee on Transportation and Culture and the Arts (TCA Comm.), Free Speech for People ("FSP") provided its opinion that these amounts of ownership were not too small and may actually be too high. FSP Test. at 6-11. In FSP's estimates, "the thresholds in this bill would apply to 98% of the companies listed on the S&P 500 index." Id. at 15. That is, under this bill, those companies would no longer be able to make contributions or expenditures in state and local elections.<sup>1</sup>

The Commission offers two amendments. First, add a new subsection (h) after line 17 on page 10 to read, "A contribution made by a foreign national, foreign corporation, or foreign-influenced business entity shall escheat to the Hawaii election campaign fund." The Commission maintains that any illegal contribution should not remain with the candidate or noncandidate committee as a windfall and should be forfeited to the general fund. Second, on line 3 on page 14, to add "a foreign national," after "derived from," and on line 4, add a comma after "corporation" for consistency of the scope of the bill.

The Commission requests this Committee to make the effective date of this bill January 1, 2028. That will give the Commission time to create the certification form and establish internal administrative procedures in determining whether a business is a foreign-influenced business as well as develop and disseminate educational materials to inform committees and business entities about the new requirements.

RE: SB1032, SD2, Relating to campaign finance

Dear Chair Tarnas and Vice Chair Poepoe,

On behalf of Free Speech For People, we write in strong support of passing SB1032, SD2, legislation to ban corporate political spending by foreign-influenced business entities in Hawai'i. Across the country, cities and states have considered and passed measures to preserve democratic self-governance and to protect elections from unlawful foreign influence. Minnesota (May 2023), San Jose, California (January 2024), and Seattle, Washington (January 2020) have all enacted a ban on corporate spending by foreign-influenced business entities, and similar legislation has been introduced in the U.S. Congress, as well as in California, Massachusetts, New York, and Washington State.

As a national nonpartisan nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization, Free Speech For people has helped to develop and advocate for model legislation in consultation with the Center for American Progress and with noted legal experts, including Prof. Laurence Tribe of Harvard Law School, one of the foremost constitutional law scholars in the country; Prof. John Coates of Harvard Law School, a corporate governance expert and former General Counsel of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission; Commissioner Ellen Weintraub of the Federal Election Commission, an expert on campaign finance law; Prof. Brian Quinn of Boston College Law School, an expert in corporate law and policy; and Professor Adam Winkler of the University of California Law School, an expert on corporations and the Constitution. They have each supported similar legislation in other states, and, for your convenience, we have attached some of their prior testimony submitted to other state legislatures considering similar bills.

By providing you this memorandum, we hope you will consider taking similar steps to protect Hawai'i's elections. In Section I of the memorandum, we set forth the general and legal background for the proposed bill; Section II explains the foreign ownership thresholds; and Section III answers frequently-asked questions that have emerged as we have developed this legislation.

The current bill pending before you is consistent with our model legislation. Please feel free to let us know if you have any questions or would like to discuss this legislation further.

Sincerely,

John Bonifaz, President
Free Speech For People

I. General and legal background

Under well-established federal law, recently upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court, it is illegal for a foreign government, business, or individual to spend any amount of money at all to influence federal, state, or local elections.<sup>1</sup> This existing provision does not turn on whether the foreign national comes from a country that is friend or foe, nor the amount of money involved. Rather, as then-Judge (now Justice) Brett Kavanaugh wrote in the seminal decision upholding this law:

It is fundamental to the definition of our national political community that foreign citizens do not have a constitutional right to participate in, and thus may be excluded from, activities of democratic self-government. It follows, therefore, that the United States has a compelling interest for purposes of First Amendment analysis in limiting the participation of foreign citizens in activities of American democratic self-government, and in thereby preventing foreign influence over the U.S. political process.<sup>2</sup>

Federal law, however, leaves a gap that has been opened even further since the U.S. Supreme Court's 2010 Citizens United decision invalidated laws that banned corporate political spending.<sup>3</sup> While the existing federal statute prohibits a foreign-registered corporation from spending money on federal, state, or local elections, federal law does not address the issue of political spending by U.S. corporations that are partially owned by foreign investors. That is the topic here.

The Citizens United decision three times described the corporations to which its decision applied as “associations of citizens.”<sup>4</sup> On the topic of corporations partly owned by foreign investors, the Supreme Court simply noted “[w]e need not reach the question” because the law before it applied to all corporations.<sup>5</sup> As a result, federal law currently does not prevent a corporation that is partly owned by foreign investors from making contributions to super PACs, independent expenditures, expenditures on ballot measure campaigns, or even (in states where it is otherwise legal) contributing directly to candidates.

Since 2010, neither Congress nor the beleaguered Federal Election Commission have done anything. However, as Professor Laurence Tribe of Harvard Law School and Federal Election Commissioner Ellen Weintraub have written, a state does not need to wait for federal action to protect its state and local elections from foreign influence. The goal of this bill is to plug the loophole allowing corporations partly or wholly owned by foreign interests to influence elections.

This threat is real. For example, Uber has shown an increasing appetite for political spending in a variety of contexts. In California, the company spent some $58 million on Proposition 22, which successfully overturned worker protections for Uber drivers.<sup>6</sup> The company spent millions on a similar ballot measure in Massachusetts to strip workers of basic employment protections.<sup>7</sup> Although Uber started in California, the Saudi government made an enormous (and critical) early investment, and even now owns several percent of the company’s stock, long after the company has gone public.<sup>8</sup> Fellow Proposition 22 major spenders, such as DoorDash and Lyft, are also substantially owned by foreign investors from countries including the United Kingdom, Japan, Malaysia, China, and elsewhere, and they all continue to make significant expenditures to influence U.S. elections.

Similarly, in October 2016, Airbnb responded to the New York Legislature's growing interest in regulating the homestay industry by arming a super PAC with $10 million to influence New York's legislative races.<sup>9</sup> Airbnb received crucial early funding from, and was at that time partly owned by, Moscow-based (and Kremlin-linked) DST Global.<sup>10</sup> Investment by foreign sovereign wealth funds, like Saudi Arabia's, is expected to increase exponentially as oil-rich Middle Eastern states seek to diversify their investment portfolios.<sup>11</sup>

In the New York Times, Federal Election Commissioner Ellen Weintraub explained the problem, and pointed to a solution: "Throughout Citizens United, the court described corporations as 'associations of citizens,' she wrote. "States can require entities accepting political contributions from corporations in state and local races to make sure that those corporations are indeed associations of American citizens—and enforce the ban on foreign political spending against those that are not."<sup>12</sup>

As Weintraub noted, even partial foreign ownership of corporations calls into question whether Citizens United, which three times described corporations as "associations of citizens" and which expressly reserved questions related to foreign shareholders,<sup>13</sup> would apply. Indeed, after deciding Citizens United, the Supreme Court in Bluman v. Federal Election Commission specifically upheld the federal ban on foreign nationals spending their own money in U.S. elections.<sup>14</sup> In light of the Court’s post-Citizens United decision in Bluman, a restriction on political spending by corporations with foreign ownership at levels potentially capable of influencing corporate governance can be upheld based on Bluman and as an exception to Citizens United.<sup>15</sup>

II. Foreign influence and ownership thresholds

How much foreign investment renders a corporation’s political spending problematic for protection of democratic self-government? Arguably, any foreign ownership in companies that spend money to influence our elections is a threat to democratic self-government. In the most accepted understanding, corporate shareholders are “the firm’s residual claimants.”<sup>16</sup> As explained by the California Court of Appeal, “it is the shareholders who own a corporation, which is managed by

In 2019, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit upheld federal statute’s foreign national political spending ban as applied to local elections. Singh, 924 F.3d at 1042.

<sup>15</sup> A similar analysis would also apply to First Nat. Bank of Boston v. Bellotti, 435 U.S. 765 (1978), which addressed limits on corporations spending in ballot question elections.

<sup>16</sup> Henry Hansmann & Reiner Kraakman, The End of History for Corporate Law, 89 Geo. L.J. 439, 449 (2001); see also Stephen M. Bainbridge, Director Primacy: The Means and Ends of Corporate Governance, 97 Nw. U.L. Rev. 547, 565 (2003) (“[M]ost theories of the firm agree, shareholders own the residual claim on the corporation’s assets and earnings.”); Frank H. Easterbrook & Daniel R. Fischel, THE ECONOMIC STRUCTURE OF CORPORATE LAW 36-39 (1991) (arguing that shareholders are entitled to whatever assets remain after the company has met its obligations, and thus are the ultimate “residual claimant[s]” on a company’s assets). While different theories are sometimes offered in academic literature, this is the standard economic model of shareholders of a firm, and it has been widely adopted in judicial decisions. See, e.g., RTP LLC v. ORIX Real Est. Cap., Inc., 827 F.3d 689, 692 (7th Cir. 2016) (“Stockholders and owners of other equity interests have residual claims in a business; they get whatever is left after everyone else is paid.”); In re Franchise Servs. of N. Am., Inc., 891 F.3d 198, 208 n.7 (5th Cir. 2018), as revised (June 14, 2018) (“Shareholders are the residual claimants of the estate,” and are entitled to whatever remains after satisfying creditors); In re Cent. Ill. Energy Coop., 561 B.R. 699, 708 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 2016) (noting that directors have fiduciary duty to shareholders rather than creditors precisely because “shareholders hav[e] the residual claim to the corporation’s equity value”); Ito v. Investors Equity Life Holding Co., 135 Haw. 49, 80 (2015) (after “all other creditors have been satisfied,” shareholders lay claim to a company’s “shares and the residual estate”).

the directors. In an economic sense, when a corporation is solvent, it is the shareholders who are the residual claimants of the corporation's assets . . . ."<sup>17</sup>

In practice, shareholders rarely have the opportunity to actually assert these residual claims. Yet there is a sense in which investors and corporate managers alike understand that the corporation's assets "belong to" the shareholders.

That means that corporate political spending is drawn from shareholders' money. As Justice Stevens noted in the Citizens United decision, "When corporations use general treasury funds to praise or attack a particular candidate for office, it is the shareholders, as the residual claimants, who are effectively footing the bill."<sup>18</sup> This point has often been raised from the perspective of shareholders who may not want corporate managers spending "their" money on various political causes.<sup>19</sup> But here, we confront the mirror issue: corporate managers may spend money to influence U.S. elections out of funds that partly "belong to" foreign investors.

On this understanding, any amount of foreign investment in a corporation means that management's political expenditures come from a pool of partly foreign money. Seen that way, a corporation spending money in U.S. elections no longer qualifies as an "association of citizens" if any of the money in its coffers "belongs to" foreign investors—in other words, when it has any foreign shareholders at all.<sup>20</sup> Indeed, polling indicates that 73% of Americans—including majorities of both Democrats and Republicans—would support banning corporate political spending by corporations with any foreign ownership.<sup>21</sup>

<sup>20</sup> By analogy, in the class-action context, some courts hold that a class cannot be certified if even a single member cannot bring the claim. See Denney v. Deutsche Bank AG, 443 F.3d 253, 264 (2d Cir. 2006) ("no class may be certified that contains members lacking Article III standing").

<sup>21</sup> Ctr. for Am. Progress Action Fund, NEW POLL: Bipartisan Support for Banning Corporate Spending in Elections by Foreign-Influenced U.S. Companies, <https://bit.ly/3CrcWFV>.

But we need not reach that far. At ownership thresholds well above zero, an investor may exert influence—explicit or implicit—over corporate decision-making. Even if a company was founded in the United States and keeps its main offices here, companies are responsive to their shareholders, and significant foreign ownership affects corporate decision-making. As the former CEO of U.S.-based ExxonMobil Corp. stated, “I’m not a U.S. company and I don’t make decisions based on what’s good for the U.S.”<sup>22</sup> There is no evidence that political spending is magically exempt from this general rule.

To someone not deeply versed in corporate governance, it may seem that the right threshold for the point at which a foreign investor (or any investor) can exert influence is just over 50%. That is, after all, the threshold for winning a race between two candidates, or controlling a two-party legislature. But corporations are not legislatures. A better analogy might be a chamber with many millions of uncoordinated potential voters, most of whom rarely vote and who may be, for one reason or another, effectively prevented from voting. In that type of environment, a disciplined owner (or ownership bloc) of 1% can be tremendously influential.

As explained in more detail in written testimony submitted by Professor John Coates of Harvard Law School in support of similar legislation elsewhere, and in a recent report by the Center for American Progress,<sup>23</sup> the thresholds in this bill—1% of stock owned by a single foreign investor, or 5% owned by multiple foreign investors—reflect levels of ownership that are widely agreed (including by entities such as the Business Roundtable) to be high enough to influence corporate governance. Corporate governance law gives substantial formal power to minority shareholders at these levels, and this spills out into even greater unofficial influence. For this reason, since the passage of Seattle’s 2020 law, best-in-class bills—including that passed in Minnesota in 2023, in San Jose in 2024, and pending in states such as New York, California, and Massachusetts, and in the U.S. Congress—generally follow the Seattle model.

Federal securities law provides powerful tools of corporate influence to investors at these levels. Seattle’s 1% threshold was grounded in a rule of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission regarding eligibility of shareholders to submit proposals for a shareholder vote—a threshold that the SEC ultimately concluded was, if anything, too high.<sup>24</sup> For a large multinational corporation, an investor that owns 1% of shares might well be the largest single stockholder; it would generally land among the top ten. Conversely, as the SEC has acknowledged, many of the investors most active in influencing corporate governance own well below 1% of equity.<sup>25</sup>

Of course, this does not mean that every investor who owns 1% of shares will always influence corporate governance, but rather that the business community generally recognizes that this level of ownership presents that opportunity, and—for a foreign investor in the context of corporate political spending—that risk.

In other cases, no single foreign investor holds 1% or more of corporate equity, but multiple foreign investors own a substantial aggregate stake. To pick one example, at the moment of this writing (it may change later, of course, due to market trades), Amazon does not have any 1% foreign investors, but at least 8.1% of its equity (and possibly much more) is owned by foreign investors.<sup>26</sup> While presumably foreign

<sup>24</sup> Until November 4, 2020, owning one percent of a company’s shares allows an owner to submit shareholder proposals, which creates substantial leverage. See Procedural Requirements and Resubmission Thresholds Under Exchange Act Rule 14a-8, 85 Fed. Reg. 70,240, 70,241 (Nov. 4, 2020). The SEC proposed to eliminate this threshold, and rely solely on absolute-dollar ownership thresholds that correspond to far less than 1% of stock value, because it is fairly uncommon for even a major, active institutional investor to own 1% of the stock of a publicly-traded company. See SEC, Procedural Requirements and Resubmission Thresholds under Exchange Act Rule 14a-8, 84 Fed. Reg. 66,458 (Dec. 4, 2019) (proposed rule). In other words, recent advances in corporate governance law suggest that the 1% threshold may, if anything, be higher than appropriate to capture investor influence. That said, we believe that 1% remains defensible.

<sup>25</sup> See id. at 66,646 & n.58 (noting that “[t]he vast majority of investors that submit shareholder proposals do not meet a 1 percent ownership threshold,” including major institutional investors such as California and New York public employee pension funds).

As of the date of writing, at least one foreign investor (Norges Bank) holds 0.9% but no foreign investor is known to hold 1.0% or more. Aggregate ownership data, however, shows 7.4% in Europe (including Russia) and 0.9% in Asia. In fact, the total aggregate foreign ownership could be much higher, as the summary data show only 57.4% of shares owned in North America. CNBC obtains its geographic ownership concentration data from Thomson Reuters, investors as a class are not all perfectly aligned on all issues, they can be assumed to share certain common interests and positions that may, in some cases, differ from those of U.S. shareholders—certainly when it comes to matters of state public policy. As the Center for American Progress has noted:

Foreign interests can easily diverge from U.S. interests, for example, in the areas of tax, trade, investment, and labor law. Corporate directors and managers view themselves as accountable to their shareholders, including foreign shareholders. As the former CEO of U.S.-based Exxon Mobil Corp. starkly stated, “I’m not a U.S. company and I don’t make decisions based on what’s good for the U.S.”<sup>27</sup>

Neither corporate law nor empirical research provide a bright-line threshold at which this type of aggregate foreign interest begins to affect corporate decision-making, but anecdotally it appears that CEOs do take note of this aggregate foreign ownership and that at a certain point it affects their decision-making. The Seattle model legislation selects a 5% aggregate foreign ownership threshold. Under federal securities law, 5% is the threshold that Congress has already chosen as the level at which a single investor or group of investors working together can have an influence so significant that the law requires disclosure not only of the stake, but also the residence and citizenship of the investors, the source of the funds, and even in some cases information about the investors’ associates.<sup>28</sup> In this case, while it may not be appropriate to treat unrelated foreign investors as a single bloc for all purposes, it is appropriate to do so in the context of analyzing how corporate management conceive decision-making regarding political spending in U.S. elections.

Obviously, some companies do not have substantial foreign ownership. Even of those that do, many probably do not spend corporate money on the state’s elections. Such companies either would not be covered at all (if they did not meet the threshold) or would not experience any practical impact (if they do not spend corporate money for political purposes).

The point here is not that FICs do not have connections to the state, nor that foreign investment in local companies should be discouraged, nor that the foreign owners of these companies are necessarily known to be exerting influence over the companies' decisions about corporate political spending, nor that they would do so nefariously to undermine democratic elections. Rather, the point is simply that Citizens United accorded corporations the right to spend money in our elections on the theory that corporations are “associations of citizens.” But for companies of this type, that theory does not apply. Enough shares are owned or controlled by a foreign owner that the corporation's spending is at least, in part, drawn from money that “belongs to” that foreign entity—and furthermore, the entity could exert influence over how the corporation spends money from the corporate treasury to influence candidate elections.

Finally, to reiterate, this bill does not limit in any way how employees, executives, or shareholders of these companies may spend their own money—just how the foreign-influenced business entities' potentially vast corporate treasuries may be deployed to influence the state's electoral democracy.

III. Frequently asked questions

Does this bill affect individual immigrants?

No. The bill regulates corporate political spending by business entities.

Does this bill affect businesses owned in part by (a) green card holders, (b) dual U.S.-foreign citizens, or (c) U.S. citizens residing abroad?

(a) No; (b) no; and (c) no.

Has this bill been endorsed by leading scholars and experts?

Similar bills in other parts of the country have generally been endorsed by Professor Laurence Tribe of Harvard Law School and Professor Adam Winkler of the University of California Law School, experts in constitutional law; Professor John C. Coates IV of Harvard Law School (a former General Counsel and Director of the Division of Corporate Finance at the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission) and Professor Brian Quinn of Boston College School of Law, experts in corporate law and governance; and Federal Election Commissioner Ellen Weintraub, expert in election law.<sup>29</sup>

Does this bill have bipartisan support?

A 2019 national poll of 2,633 voters showed that 73%—including majorities of both Democrats and Republicans—would support banning corporate political spending by corporations with any foreign ownership.<sup>30</sup> Even after polled individuals were deliberately exposed to partisan framing and opposition messages, voters continued to support the policy 58-24 overall; Trump voters supported it 52-30 and Clinton voters supported it 68-20.

Does this bill prevent corruption?

The Supreme Court currently recognizes two distinct public interests in regulating the amounts and sources of money in politics: (1) preventing corruption or the appearance of corruption, and (2) protecting democratic self-government against foreign influence. This bill focuses on the latter.

As Judge (now Justice) Kavanaugh explained in Bluman, the public “has a compelling interest for purposes of First Amendment analysis in limiting the participation of foreign citizens in activities of American democratic self-government, and in thereby preventing foreign influence over the U.S. political process.”<sup>31</sup> The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has confirmed that this interest applies to state elections as well.<sup>32</sup>

Is the bill “narrowly tailored” to protecting democratic self-government?

Yes. The public interest in protecting democratic self-government from foreign influence is particularly strong and supports a wide range of restrictions ranging from investment in communications facilities to municipal public employment.<sup>33</sup> In the specific context of political spending, the facts of the Bluman decision are worth noting. The lead plaintiff wanted to contribute to three candidates (subject to dollar limits that in theory minimize the risk of corruption) and “to print flyers . . . and to distribute them in Central Park.”<sup>34</sup> All these were banned by the federal statute, and the court upheld the ban on all of them.

<sup>33</sup> See Bluman, 800 F. Supp. 2d at 287 (collecting Supreme Court cases upholding limits on noncitizen employment in a wide variety of local positions); 47 U.S.C. § 310(b) (banning issuance of broadcast or common carrier license to companies under minority foreign ownership).

In other words, in a context where the risk of corruption was essentially nil, the court found that the interest in protecting democratic self-government from foreign influence is so strong that a law that prohibits printing flyers and posting them in a park is narrowly tailored to that interest. Given that, a ban on corporate political spending—with the potential for far greater influence on elections than one individual printing flyers—by corporations with substantial foreign ownership, at levels known from corporate governance literature to bring the potential for investor influence, is also narrowly tailored to the same interest.

Does this bill go further than the federal statute at issue in Bluman?

Yes; that is the point. The federal statute prevents foreign entities from spending money directly in federal, state, or local elections.<sup>35</sup> The proposed bill applies to companies where those same foreign entities own substantial investments.

Has any court decided how much foreign ownership of a corporation renders a corporation “foreign” for purposes of First Amendment analysis?

No. That issue was not before the Supreme Court in Citizens United, and the Court expressly decided not to decide that question. The majority opinion did make a passing reference to corporations “funded predominately by foreign shareholders” as the type of issue that the decision was not addressing. This is what lawyers call “dictum”—something mentioned in a judicial opinion that is not part of its holding. Similarly, in Bluman, Judge Kavanaugh wrote that “[b]ecause this case concerns individuals, we have no occasion to analyze the circumstances under which a corporation may be considered a foreign corporation for purposes of First Amendment analysis.”<sup>36</sup> For purposes of political spending, the question of how much foreign ownership is “too much” has not yet been decided by any court.

The analysis in the main part of the above memorandum shows how arguably any foreign ownership renders the entire pool of corporate funds foreign. However, this bill focuses more narrowly on corporations where foreign holdings exceed thresholds, established from empirical corporate governance research, where investors can exert influence on executives’ decisions.

Notably, the Seattle Clean Campaigns Act (the model upon which these laws are based) has been in effect since February 2020, including the vigorously contested 2021 citywide election featuring an expensive mayoral race, yet none of the many multinational corporations in Seattle have been impelled to challenge it.

Is another court considering whether similar laws are constitutional?

In a decision that tramples over a state's right to protect its own democratic self-governance from foreign interference, a federal district court judge in Minnesota on February 7, 2025, permanently enjoined Minn. Stat. § 211B.15, a Minnesota statute that bars foreign-influenced corporations from spending unlimited money in Minnesota's elections. The decision undermines the state's authority to protect its elections and empowers corporations to serve as conduits through which powerful foreign entities can exert influence over U.S. corporations. And it is based on a misreading of prior Supreme Court rulings and of the evidence before the court.

The ruling veers sharply from Supreme Court precedent, which has recognized that states have a compelling interest in protecting its democratic self-government. It also fails to properly account for the significant evidence the State of Minnesota put before the court that (1) minority shareholders that satisfy the law's threshold can and do exert direct and indirect influence over corporate decision-making; (2) that such influence is hidden from public view and impossible to track; (3) that foreign governments are seeking to influence U.S. elections and have spent millions of dollars to do so; and (4) that foreign entities in fact have used corporations to unlawfully funnel money into U.S. elections. Further, the ruling provides foreign-influenced corporations with protections to which individuals are not entitled and demands states meet arbitrarily high evidentiary standards to support its interest in democratic self-government. Our further analysis on this ruling and a link to the court's opinion is available here.

The ruling has no binding impact on jurisdictions outside of Minnesota. And not all laws prohibiting foreign-influenced political spending are legally challenged. The City of Seattle, for instance, passed similar legislation in January 2020, and no one has challenged the law since, nor has anyone challenged the San Jose, California law which the city council there enacted in January 2024.

Unless and until the Supreme Court considers this issue again, courts are bound by the premise of Bluman: that foreign money in political spending is prohibited and states have a compelling interest to preserve their self-run democracy.

Do corporations know who their shareholders are?

Managers of privately-held corporations may know the identity of all shareholders at all times. Managers of publicly-traded corporations do not know moment to moment but can obtain a complete list of shareholders and number of shares owned for any particular "record date." They do this on a regular basis for routine corporate purposes, such as the corporate annual meeting. For more detail, see the letter from Professor John C. Coates IV of Harvard Law School, a former General

Counsel and Director of the Division of Corporate Finance at the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission.<sup>37</sup>

How many companies would be covered by this bill?

Foreign investment in U.S. companies has increased dramatically in recent years: “from about 5% of all U.S. corporate equity (public and private) in 1982 to more than 20% in 2015.”<sup>38</sup> By 2019, that figure had increased to 40%.<sup>39</sup>

However, foreign ownership is not evenly distributed. Analysis by the Center for American Progress found that the thresholds in this bill would cover 98% of the companies listed on the S&P 500 index, but only 28% of the firms listed on the Russell Microcap Index—among the smallest companies that are publicly traded.<sup>40</sup>

It is much more difficult to obtain data regarding ownership of privately-held companies. But overall, most small local businesses have zero foreign ownership.

Does this bill create a compliance burden for small businesses?

As noted above, most small local businesses have zero foreign ownership, and they know it. In that case, they can easily provide a statement certifying that, after due inquiry, the company was not a foreign-influenced company (as defined by the law) on the date the independent expenditure or contribution was made.

For those few small businesses that do have a foreign investor, they typically know exactly who it is and how much the foreign investor owns. Thus, they can easily determine whether the foreign investment exceeds the thresholds (in which case they are prohibited from using corporate money for political spending) or not (in which case they can confidently provide the statement). Finally, the statement of certification explicitly only requires a reasonable inquiry. In most cases, this will be resolved by the address—an address in a foreign country establishes that the investor is foreign unless the investor is known to be a U.S. citizen residing abroad, and an address in the U.S. establishes a presumption that the investor is domestic.

Does this bill violate the rights of U.S. investors?

No. Obviously, individual U.S. investors may spend unlimited amounts of their own money on elections.

The question might be framed as whether the bill restricts the ability of U.S. investors to spend their money through the vehicle of a corporation in which they share ownership with foreign investors. At the outset, the assumption embedded in this framework is somewhat unrealistic; few if any U.S. investors buy stock in a for-profit business entity with the expectation that the corporation will engage in regulated political campaign spending.<sup>41</sup> But even if so, any right to invest in a corporation with that expectation is limited by valid restrictions imposed on the other co-owners of the corporation, namely, foreign investors. Any impact on U.S. investors who have chosen to invest jointly with foreign investors is incidental to the primary purpose of preventing foreign influence.

By analogy, in upholding a State Department order to shut down a foreign mission even though it had U.S. citizen and permanent resident employees, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit noted: “[The order] does not prevent [plaintiffs] from advocating the Palestinian cause, nor from expressing any thought or making any statement that they could have made before its issuance. The order prohibits [them] only from speaking in the capacity of a foreign mission of the PLO.”<sup>42</sup>

Similarly, the U.S. investors can spend their money directly on political campaigns, or they can invest in a different corporation that is not foreign-influenced and which may spend treasury funds on political campaigns. If corporate political spending can be described as partly the speech of U.S. investors, then this bill would prohibit them only from speaking in the capacity of investors in a foreign-influenced business entity.

Finally, the question could be framed as involving freedom of association for those U.S. investors who “associate” with foreign investors in a corporation. But a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision, written by Justice Kavanaugh, held that U.S. citizens cannot “export” or extend their own constitutional rights to foreign entities. In Agency for International Development v. Alliance for Open Society Int’l, Inc., the Court considered a statute that imposed speech-related conditions on funding. After first holding that the conditions violated the First Amendment rights of U.S. funding recipients, the Court then rejected a constitutional challenge on behalf of the foreign entities with which those U.S. entities associated. The Court explained that U.S. entities “cannot export their own First Amendment rights” to the foreign entities with which they associate.<sup>43</sup> The Court’s reasoning leads to the same result when U.S. entities associate with foreign nationals in the corporate form: the mere fact that U.S. citizens have the independent right to contribute and make expenditures does not mean that those rights will flow to any association they form.

What if a U.S. investor holds a majority or controlling share?

The danger of foreign participation remains. As corporate law expert Professor John Coates of Harvard Law School and his co-authors note:

A stylized and largely uncontested fact is that institutional shareholders—the most likely to be blockholders of U.S. public companies—are increasingly influential in the governance of those companies. Various changes in markets and regulation have increased the ability of such institutions to encourage, pressure or force boards to adopt policies and positions that twenty years ago would have been beyond their reach. Board members are spending increased amounts of time responding to and directly “engaging” with blockholders. While in the past legal regimes tested “control” of foreign nationals at higher levels of ownership—majority voting power, or 25% blocks for example—those regimes may no longer catch the new forms of institutional influence.<sup>44</sup>

As it happens, federal communications law has been addressing a very similar issue for nearly 90 years. Since 1934, section 310 of the federal Communications Act has prohibited issuance of broadcast or common carrier licenses to companies with one-fifth foreign ownership.<sup>45</sup> Obviously, that raises a similar issue: a company with one-fifth foreign ownership has four-fifths U.S. ownership. Yet, as Congress determined, the risks were too great even with a four-fifths U.S. owner.

It makes little sense to say that a corporation with 75% U.S. ownership is too foreign-influenced to own a small local terrestrial radio station with limited reach, but not too foreign-influenced to spend tens of millions of dollars on statewide elections. Put another way, a U.S. investor that owns a very large percentage of a company but has foreign co-investors may be better suited choosing a different investment vehicle for buying radio stations or for spending money in elections.

We are only aware of one constitutional challenge to Section 310 in its nearly 90-year-history—the challenge concerned a slightly different point, but the court upheld the provision.<sup>46</sup> The same logic would apply to this bill.

What if the corporation takes proactive steps to ensure that foreign investors have no influence on corporate decision-making regarding political spending?

The issue is generally not that foreign investors are directly participating in corporate decision-making regarding political spending. In major corporations, most investors do not participate in day-to-day operational decisions.

Rather, the issue is that corporate executives are fully aware of their major investors, act with a fiduciary duty towards those investors, and tend to avoid taking action that they anticipate will displease those major investors. Among other considerations, major investors have multiple options for influencing corporate governance writ large: they can submit shareholder proxy resolutions; they can attempt to replace directors on the board, and demand a change in management; in publicly traded corporations, they can dump their shares, decreasing the value of executives' stock options; etc. Investors do not need to literally be in the conference room debating specific political expenditures to exert an influence, any more than voters need to be in the conference room during legislative debates to exert an influence on elected officials.

A similar question has repeatedly arisen in the context of the Communications Act, where partly-foreign-owned entities have sought broadcast or common carrier licenses, claiming that they had developed contractual or other internal measures to insulate decision-making from foreign partners or investors. Courts have consistently rejected such challenges.<sup>47</sup>

<sup>46</sup> See Moving Phones P'ship LP v. FCC, 998 F.2d 1051, 1056 (D.C. Cir. 1993) (applying rational basis review because “[t]he opportunity to own a broadcast or common carrier radio station is hardly a prerequisite to existence in a community”). Other courts have upheld related provisions of the same act that are even more restrictive than section 310. See, e.g., Campos v. FCC, 650 F.2d 890, 891 (7th Cir. 1981) (upholding against constitutional challenge a Communications Act provision barring even permanent residents from holding radio operator licenses).

<sup>47</sup> See Cellwave Tel. Servs. LP v. FCC., 30 F.3d 1533, 1535 (D.C. Cir. 1994) (rejecting argument that FCC should have granted license to partly-foreign-owned partnership because “the alien partners had insulated themselves by contract from any management role in the partnerships”); Moving Phones P'ship L.P. v. FCC, 998 F.2d 1051, 1055-57 (D.C. Cir. 1993) (same).

Does this bill apply to non-profits?

The bill does not itself impose any direct prohibitions on non-profits. That includes trade associations.

The bill does not apply to a non-profit that receives a contribution directly from a foreign national; that situation is already substantially addressed by federal law.<sup>48</sup> The gap that this bill aims to plug pertains to foreign investors in U.S. corporations; there is no directly analogous gap in the law for non-profits.

What about trade associations with members that are foreign-influenced companies?

If a trade association establishes or qualifies as a political committee or incidental committee stating that money contributed to it will be used in candidate elections, this bill specifically provides that the committee may dedicate any contributions that do not satisfy the law for other lawful purposes. For example, a trade association might set aside funds received from businesses that did not submit a statement of certification and use those funds for activities other than spending them on candidate elections.

Does this bill apply to labor unions?

No. We are unaware of evidence that any money whatsoever from foreign members' dues is ever spent by unions in U.S. elections. As for noncitizen, non-permanent resident workers who may be members of U.S. labor unions, they are qualitatively different from the foreign entities that invest in U.S. corporations. Almost without exception, immigrant workers in U.S. labor unions are physically located in the United States, where they enjoy most rights under the U.S. Constitution; activities related to democratic self-government (including political spending) are the exception. By contrast, with rare exceptions, foreign investors in U.S. corporations are physically located abroad.<sup>49</sup> Under the Supreme Court's 2020 decision in Agency for International Development v. Alliance for Open Society, foreign entities located abroad have no rights whatsoever under the U.S. Constitution.<sup>50</sup> This weaker

<sup>49</sup> A major source of foreign national investors who actually reside in the United States is the EB-5 Immigrant Investors Visa Program. Under this program, approximately 10,000 visas per year are issued to foreign investors who invest at least $500,000 in American businesses. Notably, an EB-5 visa grants "conditional permanent residence." Since 52 U.S.C. § 3012(b)(2) defines a "foreign national" as someone "who is not lawfully admitted for permanent residence," an EB-5 investor might not be considered a "foreign national" under 52 U.S.C. § 30121. But, either way, a resident EB-5 investor would presumably not be a foreign national "outside the United States."

constitutional status of foreign entities located abroad makes the law more constitutionally defensible when limited to foreign-influenced business entities.

What compliance obligations does this bill impose on candidates and committees?

None. This bill provides that the CEO of any corporation contributing to a candidate or political committee must provide a statement of certification that the corporation is not foreign-influenced within seven days after making that contribution. This bill does not impose any obligations or requirements on candidates or committees—only the corporate donors.

STATEMENT OF THE ILWU INTERNATIONAL – HAWAII ON SB1032 SD2 RELATING TO CAMPAIGN FINANCE

The International Longshore and Warehouse Union (ILWU) Hawaii, stands in STRONG SUPPORT of SB1032, a crucial measure to help safeguard our elections from foreign influence.

Our union was built on the bedrock of democratic participation, and we believe that political power in Hawai‘i should reside with its people. We must remain vigilant against foreign-controlled entities that seek to advance agendas misaligned with the interests of Hawai‘i and its residents. While current laws prohibit direct foreign contributions to campaigns, technicalities allow corporations with substantial foreign ownership to wield excessive influence. SB1032 increases transparency in political spending, ensuring voters know when corporations with foreign connections are involved.

At a time when trust in our democratic processes is paramount, SB1032 represents a vital step forward. It reinforces the fundamental principle that election outcomes should be by the people, for the people. ILWU International Hawaii, urges the committee to pass SB1032 and bolster the integrity of our elections.

TESTIMONY

Judith Wong, Legislative Committee, League of Women Voters of Hawaii

Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Committee Members:

The League of Women Voters of Hawaii supports SB1032 SD1

The League of Women Voters stands for public financing of elections, but absent that, believes that the methods of financing political campaigns should ensure transparency and the public's right to know who is using money to influence elections. The peoples' representatives should be beholding to their constituents, not to donors, and certainly not to foreign donors. In this country we have experienced significant damage from foreign influence in politics which deprives citizens of their rights. SB1032 requires disclosure of foreign ownership in businesses and prohibits contribution or expenditure of funds by same in a state election. Therefore, the League supports SB1032.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony.

Testimony in Strong Support of SB1032

Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Members of the Committee,

UNITE HERE Local 5 represents 10,000 working people in the hotel, food service and health care industries across Hawaii.

SB1032 would help to keep our democracy in the hands of the people by making significant strides to remove the influence of foreign corporations. Hawai'i's governance should be determined first and foremost by Hawai'i's people - not by real estate speculators, investment firms, or others seeking to exploit our state's resources, 'āina and people for profit. In order for us to build a sustainable future where working families can thrive, we must limit as much as possible the influence of profiteers operating within a framework that rewards short-term gains without looking at long-term consequences; and which rewards individual enrichment over the best interests of everyone. SB1032 is a step towards putting control over our futures back in the hands of the people of Hawai'i.

Elections are increasingly influenced by money in politics. Large corporations and high-net-worth individuals have far more money to spend on elections than working class people, local groups, or local businesses. This has resulted in candidates getting elected who are beholden to large donors, and who, as a result, tend to legislate in those donors' interests, rather than in the interests of our communities.

SB1032 reflects public sentiment. Policies that aim to remove unfair financial influence over our democratic process are supported by a vast majority of the American people<sup>1</sup>.

We applaud any effort to protect our system of self-governance from outside corporate influence. We applaud policymakers who work with complex constitutional legal frameworks to fight foreign corporate influence of our political system.

We are in support of SB1032. We urge you to protect our political system from unwanted, harmful outside influence by working to pass SB1032.

Thank you for this opportunity to testify.

Hawai'i Alliance for Progressive Action (HAPA) Strongly Supports: SB1032
Wednesday, March 12, 2025 at 2:00pm; Conference Room 325

Aloha Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Members of the Committee,

HAPA is submitting testimony in STRONG Support of SB1032, which helps protect Hawai'i's elections from foreign influence. Our democracy should be shaped by the people of Hawai'i, not outside entities trying to control our political system.

This bill significantly strengthens our existing laws to protect the integrity of our election process by prohibiting foreign-owned businesses from making campaign contributions and expenditures. Having businesses certify they have no foreign ownership before being able to make political donations promotes transparency and accountability to both our candidates receiving the donations and the voters. To further enhance the clarity of political advertising, the bill requires top contributors to disclose their sources of funding. We strongly encourage support for this important measure.

RELATING TO CAMPAIGN FINANCE

The International Longshore and Warehouse Union (ILWU) Local 142 STRONGLY SUPPORTS SB1032, which strengthens Hawai'i's protections against foreign influence in elections. The ILWU is a union that was founded on principles of democratic participation and we represent thousands of working class families across Hawai'i. We believe democracy in our state works best when political decisions are made by and for the people of Hawai'i.

We must be aware not to allow foreign-controlled entities the power to advance agendas that do not align with the interests of Hawai'i and its people. While existing laws prohibit foreign nationals and corporations from contributing to campaigns, loopholes enable domestic corporations with significant foreign ownership to influence our elections. SB1032 enhances transparency by ensuring voters know when corporate political spending comes from entities with foreign control.

Strengthening public trust in our democratic processes is more important than ever. SB1032 is a step in the right direction, reaffirming that elections should be decided by those who live and work in Hawai'i. As a union committed to defending workers' rights and economic justice, ILWU Local 142 urges the committee to pass SB 1032 and reinforce the integrity of our elections.

RE: SB1032 Ban Corporate Foreign Influence in Campaigns - Support

Dear Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Members of the Committee,

The Chamber of Sustainable Commerce represents over 450 small businesses and entrepreneurs across the state that strive for a triple bottom line: people, planet and prosperity. As small business owners who believe we can strengthen Hawaii's economy without hurting workers, consumers, communities or the environment, we are submitting testimony in support of SB1032, which strengthens restrictions on foreign contributions, ensuring that Hawaii's policy decisions remain in the hands of its residents, not foreign corporations.

This legislation safeguards the integrity of our electoral process. As foreign investors increasingly own U.S. stock, the U.S. Supreme Court's Citizens United decision created a loophole that allows foreign entities to influence U.S. elections through investments in American corporations. Since then, corporate spending in elections has soared, often through hidden channels. SB1032's proposed stricter regulations on campaign contributions would close this loophole, preventing foreign-influenced corporations from unduly affecting elections and reducing the influence of dark money in politics.

We ask the Committee to support SB 1032. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Please support SB1032. Our democracy should be shaped by the people of Hawai‘i, not outside entities trying to control our political system.

This bill significantly strengthens our existing laws to protect the integrity of our election process by prohibiting foreign-owned businesses from making campaign contributions and expenditures. Having businesses certify they have no foreign ownership before being able to make political donations promotes transparency and accountability to both our candidates receiving the donations and the voters. To further enhance the clarity of political advertising, the bill requires top contributors to disclose their sources of funding.

Please protect Hawai‘i’s elections from foreign influence.

Chair Tarnas, Vice Chair Poepoe, and Members of the Judiciary and Hawaiian Affairs Committee,

I am writing in strong support of SB1032 SD2. As an instructor, I have witnessed a concerning trend among my students: a growing disillusionment with the idea that their vote truly matters. In discussions, many students express the belief that their one vote cannot possibly compete with the overwhelming influence of corporate interests and their vast financial resources. This growing sense of disenchantment undermines the foundation of our democracy.

It is crucial that we take action to protect the integrity of our elections and ensure that the voice of the people remains powerful and meaningful. This legislation serves as an important safeguard against foreign financial interests that do not reflect the values or priorities of our community. The passing of this bill would be a significant victory for democracy and good governance in Hawai‘i.

Political power in our state must rest in the hands of its people, not foreign entities with business interests that may not align with the needs and desires of local residents. Foreign influence already extends into various sectors, including land ownership, and has negatively impacted local families. Protecting our elections from such interference would not only be a step forward for Hawai‘i’s democratic process, but it would also help restore faith in the system, particularly for younger generations who are increasingly questioning its efficacy.

Passing this bill would serve as a reaffirmation of our commitment to safeguarding the democratic process, ensuring that Hawai‘i’s elections remain fair and reflective of the will of the people.

Thank you for your time,

Siobhan Coad

**Testimony of In Strong Support of S.B. No. 1032****

Aloha e Chair Rhoads, Vice Chair Gabbard, and Honorable Members of the Senate Committee on Judiciary,

I am Tiare Smith, a proud Native Hawaiian and resident of Kahalu‘u, O‘ahu, where I have lived for 45 years. As a kama‘āina deeply rooted in this ‘āina, I write to express my unequivocal support for Senate Bill 1032 (SB1032), a measure that fortifies the integrity of Hawaii’s democratic self-governance against the pernicious encroachment of foreign influence. This bill is not merely a legislative proposal; it is a vital bulwark to safeguard the sovereignty of our electoral processes, ensuring that the voices of Hawaii’s people—particularly those of us who have stewarded this land for generations—are not drowned out by external forces antithetical to our values.

### The Compelling Need for SB1032

The legislature’s findings in SB1032 articulate a truth that resonates deeply with me as a Native Hawaiian: our elections must reflect the will of Hawaii’s people, not the agendas of foreign entities. The documented efforts of nations like Russia, China, and Iran to undermine democratic institutions, as noted in the 2018 joint statement from the Office of the Director of National Intelligence and other federal agencies, are not abstract threats—they are active assaults on the foundations of self-determination. For a state like Hawaii, whose history is marked by the precipitous loss of sovereignty to foreign powers, the specter of foreign influence in our elections is particularly galling. SB1032 addresses this by prohibiting contributions, expenditures, and electioneering communications from foreign entities and foreign-influenced business entities—a necessary step to prevent the disenfranchisement of our electorate.

### Protecting Democratic Integrity with Precision

The bill’s provisions are both incisive and pragmatic. By defining “foreign-influenced business entities” with clear thresholds—such as ownership stakes as low as one percent by a single foreign investor or five percent in aggregate—SB1032 ensures that even subtle vectors of influence are curtailed. This precision is complemented by the requirement that business entities certify their non-foreign status before participating in our elections, a mechanism that promotes transparency without unduly burdening legitimate domestic actors. Furthermore, the mandate for noncandidate committees to disclose top contributors in advertisements reinforces accountability, ensuring that voters can discern the provenance of political messaging. These measures collectively fortify the electoral process against surreptitious manipulation, preserving the trust that we, as residents, place in our elected representatives.

### A Native Hawaiian Perspective

As a Native Hawaiian, I view SB1032 through the lens of our historical struggle for self-governance. The overthrow of our monarchy in 1893 was facilitated by foreign economic and political interests, a wound that still reverberates in our collective memory. To allow foreign entities—whether governments, corporations, or proxies—to wield influence over our elections today would be to invite a modern echo of that disenfranchisement. This bill aligns with the principle of ea—sovereignty and self-determination—that is central to our cultural identity. It ensures that the political destiny of Hawaii remains in the hands of its people, not in the coffers of distant powers.

### Addressing Potential Critiques

Opponents may argue that SB1032 encroaches on free speech or economic participation. Such claims are specious. The bill explicitly safeguards First Amendment rights (Section 5) and targets only those entities with demonstrable foreign ties, leaving domestic actors unencumbered. The United States Supreme Court's affirmation of similar federal restrictions in Bluman v. Federal Election Commission* (2012) underscores the constitutionality of this approach. Moreover, the provision for the Campaign Spending Commission to revise conditions if judicially challenged (Section 3(f)) demonstrates a commitment to adaptability while upholding the state's compelling interest. Far from stifling discourse, SB1032 enhances it by ensuring that electoral speech reflects the authentic will of Hawaii's residents.

### Conclusion

For 45 years, I have called Kahalu'u home, raising my family and contributing to our community amidst the beauty and challenges of O'ahu. I have witnessed the resilience of our people and the fragility of our democracy. SB1032 is a clarion call to protect that democracy from foreign subversion, a call I answer with fervent support. I urge this committee to advance this bill, not merely as a legal reform, but as an affirmation of our right to govern ourselves free from external domination. Let us ensure that the voices of Hawaii—Native Hawaiian and otherwise—remain sovereign in the halls of power.

Mahalo nui loa for your consideration.

Respectfully submitted,

Tiare Smith

Support SB1032: Strengthening the Integrity of Hawai‘i’s Elections

Our democracy should be shaped by the people of Hawai‘i, not by external entities and special interest groups that already exert significant influence over our legislature. Recent events have highlighted the pressing need to safeguard our electoral process from undue foreign interference.

SB1032 aims to bolster our existing laws by prohibiting foreign-owned businesses from making campaign contributions and expenditures. By requiring businesses to certify the absence of foreign ownership before donating, we enhance transparency and accountability for both candidates and voters. Additionally, this bill mandates that top contributors disclose their funding sources, ensuring greater clarity in political advertising.

Given the increasing concerns about external influences compromising the integrity of our elections, it is imperative to take decisive action.

In strong support of SB1032

Dear Chair Tarnas and Committee Members—

SB1032 would prohibit foreign entities and foreign-influenced business entities from making contributions, expenditures, electioneering communications, or donations for election purposes.

It's hard to imagine a more common-sense campaign finance bill. Interests outside of the state have no business influencing our elections; interests outside of the country yielding influence is outrageous and should never have been allowed in the first place.

With foreign interests interfering more and more in our federal elections, Hawaii needs to be more vigilant in protecting our state elections.

SB1032 is a crucial measure to enhance the integrity and transparency of our elections, ensuring that the voices of Hawaii residents are heard and valued above those from other lands.

Please pass this important bill.

Sincerely,

Brodie Lockard
Common Cause Hawaii Board Member

Aloha Committee Members,

This legislation is crucial for safeguarding the integrity of our electoral process. By strengthening restrictions on foreign contributions, SB1032 ensures that our political decisions remain in the hands of Hawai'i's residents, not foreign corporate interests.

With foreign investors owning an increasing amount of U.S. stock, the US Supreme Court Citizens United decision opened a loophole allowing foreign entities to indirectly influence U.S. elections through their investments in U.S. corporations. Corporate spending in elections has surged post-Citizens United, often through undisclosed channels. Stricter regulations on campaign contributions, as proposed in SB1032, would help close this loophole, prevent foreign-influenced corporations from exerting undue influence on elections, and reduce big dark money in politics.

Aloha Committee Members,

This legislation is crucial for safeguarding the integrity of our electoral process. By strengthening restrictions on foreign contributions, SB1032 ensures that our political decisions remain in the hands of Hawai'i's residents, not foreign corporate interests.

With foreign investors owning an increasing amount of U.S. stock, the U.S. Supreme Court Citizens United decision opened a loophole allowing foreign entities to indirectly influence U.S. elections through their investments in U.S. corporations. Corporate spending in elections has surged post-Citizens United, often through undisclosed channels. Stricter regulations on campaign contributions, as proposed in SB1032, would help close this loophole, prevent foreign-influenced corporations from exerting undue influence on elections, and reduce big dark money in politics.

This is very important to me as corruption is not just suspected but prosecuted. I suspect many bills favor business interests like the international pet trade, developers business investors backing unpopular and likely polluting industries like Hu Honua.

Ban on Corporate Foreign Influence in Campaigns

Aloha Committee Members,

I stand in STRONG SUPPORT of SB1032, critical legislation to protect Hawai'i's elections from foreign corporate influence.

The Citizens United decision created a dangerous loophole in our election system. As foreign investors own an increasing share of U.S. stocks, they gain indirect power to influence our elections through their investments in American corporations. This undermines the fundamental principle that our democracy should be guided by the people of Hawai'i and the United States—not by foreign interests.

Since Citizens United, we've witnessed a troubling surge in corporate political spending, much of it flowing through undisclosed channels. This "dark money" further erodes transparency and accountability in our electoral process.

SB1032 directly addresses these concerns by:

- Closing the loophole that allows foreign-influenced corporations to shape our elections
- Ensuring campaign decisions remain in the hands of Hawai'i residents
- Reducing the flow of unaccountable dark money in our politics
- Protecting the integrity of our democratic institutions

By passing SB1032, Hawai'i can lead the nation in securing elections against undue foreign corporate influence and restoring power to its people.

I urge you to pass SB1032 to safeguard the integrity of our electoral process.

This bill significantly strengthens our existing laws to protect the integrity of our election process by prohibiting foreign-owned businesses from making campaign contributions and expenditures. Having businesses certify they have no foreign ownership before being able to make political donations promotes transparency and accountability to both our candidates receiving the donations and the voters. To further enhance the clarity of political advertising, the bill requires top contributors to disclose their sources of funding.

Please protect Hawai‘i’s elections from foreign influence.

Hello Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

My name is Nanea Lo, and I am writing in strong support of SB 345, which would address a fundamental flaw in Hawai‘i’s Partial Public Financing Program by raising expenditure limits and increasing the cap on matching funds.

Currently, the system is not working as intended. The expenditure limit for candidates who opt into partial public financing is around $23,000 for an average State House race, while the median and average expenditures for State House primaries are $31,000 and $37,000, respectively. This means that candidates who rely on public financing are at a major disadvantage, making the system more of a handicap than a support. SB 345 would correct this issue by ensuring that publicly financed candidates can run competitive, winning campaigns without being forced to seek large private donations.

This reform is critical for fostering a more diverse and representative political system in Hawai‘i. By raising the cap on matching funds and adjusting expenditure limits, SB 345 will empower candidates from all backgrounds—including those with limited personal wealth or access to wealthy donors—to step forward and serve their communities. A stronger public financing system will also reduce the influence of special interests and big money in politics, ensuring that elected officials are accountable to the people, not just to large donors.

Our democracy should reflect the voices of all Hawai‘i residents, not just those with deep pockets. I urge you to pass SB 345 to strengthen our democratic institutions, encourage fair and competitive elections, and prioritize voter engagement over big money influence.

Comments:

Aloha Committee Members,

I am writing to express my opposition to SB1032 SD2, which seeks to prohibit foreign entities and "foreign-influenced business entities" from making contributions, expenditures, electioneering communications, or donations for election purposes in Hawaii. While the intent to protect our democratic processes from foreign interference is commendable, this bill as written raises significant concerns and unintended consequences that warrant reconsideration or revision.

**Key Concerns with SB1032 SD2****

**1. Overly Broad Definition of "Foreign-Influenced Business Entities"****

The bill defines a "foreign-influenced business entity" as one in which:

- A single foreign investor holds as little as **1%** ownership, or
- Multiple foreign investors collectively hold **5%** ownership, or
- A foreign investor participates in decision-making related to political activities.

These thresholds are excessively broad and unrealistic, particularly in a globalized economy where businesses often have foreign investors with minimal or no influence over operations. For example:

- **Publicly traded companies** with thousands of shareholders may inadvertently fall into this category due to minor foreign investments, even if these shareholders have no control or say in the company's decision-making processes.
- **Local businesses with international connections**, such as startups receiving venture capital from foreign firms, could be unfairly restricted from participating in Hawaii's elections.

This overly broad definition risks excluding legitimate, locally operated businesses from engaging in the democratic process, thereby stifling their First Amendment rights.

**2. Administrative and Compliance Burdens****

The bill requires businesses and noncandidate committees to certify that they are not "foreign-influenced." This certification process imposes significant administrative burdens, particularly for entities with complex or publicly traded ownership structures:

- Businesses would need to monitor and verify ownership down to minute levels (1% or 5%), which is both time-consuming and costly.
- Noncandidate committees would need to track and certify the source of contributions from their top contributors, creating delays and increasing compliance costs.

The additional requirement for disclaimers in advertisements—stating that contributions may originate from foreign sources if certifications are missing—could also deter legitimate contributions and foster public distrust of valid political activities.

**3. Potential First Amendment Violations****

SB1032 SD2 could face legal challenges on constitutional grounds, particularly regarding the First Amendment. The U.S. Supreme Court has consistently recognized the right of individuals, businesses, and organizations to participate in the political process, including through contributions and expenditures. While the government has a compelling interest in preventing foreign interference, the thresholds and restrictions in this bill may not be narrowly tailored enough to survive constitutional scrutiny:

- The 1% and 5% thresholds appear arbitrary and overly restrictive, potentially infringing on the free speech and association rights of businesses and individuals.
- The disclaimer requirements may discourage political participation by casting doubt on contributors' legitimacy, even when no actual foreign influence exists.

**4. Unintended Consequences for Hawaii's Economy****

Hawaii's economy is deeply intertwined with international tourism, business investments, and partnerships. SB1032 SD2 could discourage foreign investment in local businesses and startups, as even small, passive investments could disqualify these entities from participating in state elections. Such restrictions could:

- Harm Hawaii-based businesses that rely on global capital, particularly in industries like technology, real estate, and hospitality.
- Create a perception that Hawaii is unfriendly to international investors, potentially deterring future economic opportunities.

**5. Enforcement Challenges****

The bill places significant enforcement responsibilities on the Campaign Spending Commission, which may lack the resources and capacity to effectively monitor and verify compliance with these complex requirements. For instance:

- Tracking the ownership structures of businesses, particularly publicly traded companies, would be an immense undertaking.
- Determining whether foreign investors participate in political decision-making would require extensive investigations, which may be impractical.

These challenges could result in uneven enforcement or inadvertent penalties for businesses and committees acting in good faith.

**Recommendations for Improvement****

If the Legislature proceeds with SB1032 SD2, I respectfully urge the Committee to consider the following revisions to mitigate its negative impacts while still addressing foreign influence in elections:

1. **Raise Ownership Thresholds**: Increase the thresholds for defining "foreign-influenced business entities" to more practical levels, such as 5% for single investors and 20% for aggregate ownership. These thresholds would better align with existing standards and reduce the risk of overclassification.
2. **Simplify Certification Requirements**: Streamline the certification process to minimize administrative burdens for businesses and committees, especially those with complex or publicly traded ownership structures.
3. **Clarify Enforcement Mechanisms**: Provide clear guidelines and allocate additional resources to the Campaign Spending Commission to ensure fair and effective enforcement of the law.
4. **Conduct Stakeholder Consultations**: Engage with the business community, noncandidate committees, and other stakeholders to address their concerns and ensure the bill does not unintentionally harm Hawaii's economy or political process.
5. **Narrow the Scope of Application**: Focus the bill on entities with significant foreign ownership or influence, rather than imposing blanket restrictions on businesses with minimal or passive foreign investments.

**Conclusion****

While the goal of protecting Hawaii's elections from foreign influence is important, SB1032 SD2, as currently written, is overly broad, administratively burdensome, and potentially unconstitutional. It risks unfairly restricting legitimate political participation by Hawaii-based businesses and organizations while creating enforcement and compliance challenges. I urge the Committee to reconsider or revise this bill to address these concerns.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit this testimony. I am happy to answer any questions or provide further input as needed.

Comments:

Aloha Committee Members,

This legislation is crucial for safeguarding the integrity of our electoral process. By strengthening restrictions on foreign contributions, SB1032 ensures that our political decisions remain in the hands of Hawai'i's residents, not foreign corporate interests.

With foreign investors owning an increasing amount of U.S. stock, the US Supreme Court Citizens United decision opened a loophole allowing foreign entities to indirectly influence U.S. elections through their investments in U.S. corporations. Corporate spending in elections has surged post-Citizens United, often through undisclosed channels. Stricter regulations on campaign contributions, as proposed in SB1032, would help close this loophole, prevent foreign-influenced corporations from exerting undue influence on elections, and reduce big dark money in politics.

Mahalo,

Danielle Guion, Makakilo
