WRITTEN TESTIMONY ONLY

Bill No. and Title: House Bill No. 1565, Relating to Child Welfare Services

Purpose: Establishes a working group within the Judiciary to improve family court processes, including access to legal representation for youth in the child welfare system. Appropriates funds for the working group.

Judiciary's Position:

The Judiciary supports House Bill No. 1565, and the creation of a working group. The Judiciary would request that the appropriation include funding for a site visit, report writing, working group facilitator, and paid compensation for those working group members with lived experience as identified in Section 2(c)(10) and (11).

The Judiciary observes that House Bill No. 1565 is substantially similar to House Bill No. 900, which was carried over from the 2025 legislative session. Prior testimony submitted with respect to House Bill No. 900 cited to a report available at <https://counselforkids.org/wp->

<content/uploads/2025/12/Version-2.9-Updated-Model-of-Rep-Chart-December-2025.pdf> for the proposition that Hawai‘i is one of five states that does not currently guarantee the right to legal counsel for youth in child welfare cases. The Judiciary respectfully disagrees with the accuracy of that statement. As is shown in the linked chart, 16 states strictly provide what are referred to as “best interest” attorneys for children in child welfare cases. (In contrast, only 12 states provide “stated interest” attorneys and 10 states have other approaches to attorney representation.)

Under Hawai‘i Revised Statutes (HRS) § 587A-16 the court is required to appoint a Guardian Ad Litem (“GAL”) to represent the best interests of the child and they must serve throughout the duration of the case. In the First Circuit, approximately 75% of the GAL appointments currently go to licensed attorneys through service contracts. In other words, Hawai‘i’s current system is substantially similar to the appointment of a “best interest” attorney. These licensed attorneys are able to perform duties one would normally expect of attorneys such as conducting discovery, calling witnesses, cross examining other parties’ witnesses, filing motions, proffering evidence, and making oral arguments in court. Approximately 25% of the remaining GAL appointments are covered by the Judiciary’s Court Appointed Special Advocate (“CASA”) program. CASAs are citizen volunteers that are supported by full-time staff, which when fully staffed includes eight social worker positions. The CASA program is able to, and does, retain counsel to represent them in court. Notwithstanding the requirement that GALs be appointed to represent the child’s best interest in all child welfare cases, GALs generally also inform the Court of the child’s wishes when they differ. Further, on a case-by-case basis, the Family Court can and has appointed counsel to represent a child’s stated interest.

Given the fact that GALs currently do substantially similar work as some forms of court appointed counsel for youth, to the extent the working group ultimately recommends that the state transition away from the GAL model in favor of a counsel for youth model, the Judiciary is concerned that the presence of an active GAL on the working group might preclude them from bidding into any future procurement for the new form of service. As such, the Judiciary respectfully suggests that the requirement under Section 2(c)(6)—that one of the working group members is an actively serving GAL—be stricken from the bill.

Lastly, the Judiciary understands that serving as a court appointed counsel for youth may require presently unforeseen changes to related rules or regulations. For example, to the extent the working group may recommend that court appointed counsel for youth may represent multiple children in the same case, then certain modifications or clarifications regarding conflicts of interest within the rules of professional conduct may need to be deliberated upon and effectuated. Additional issues such as attorney client privilege, which does not apply to a GAL, may likewise require deliberation. Altogether, the Judiciary anticipates that other issues requiring the expertise of other individuals may arise as the working group progresses. For this reason, the Judiciary suggests that the measure be modified such that the co-chairs of the working group may invite other persons to serve as working group members who the co-chairs believe will effectively assist in fulfilling the working group’s duties pursuant to subsection 1.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony on this matter.

TESTIMONY OF
THE DEPARTMENT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
KA 'OIHANA O KA LOIO KUHINA
THIRTY-THIRD LEGISLATURE, 2026

ON THE FOLLOWING MEASURE:
H.B. NO. 1565, RELATING TO CHILD WELFARE SERVICES.

BEFORE THE:
HOUSE COMMITTEE ON HUMAN SERVICES & HOMELESSNESS

DATE: Tuesday, February 3, 2026 TIME: 9:00 a.m.

LOCATION: State Capitol, Room 329

TESTIFIER(S): Anne E. Lopez, Attorney General, or Derek D. Peterson, Deputy Attorney General

Chair Marten and Members of the Committee:

The Department of the Attorney General (Department) provides the following comments.

This bill establishes a working group within the Judiciary to examine legal services for youth in child welfare cases. The bill appropriates general funds to support the work of the group, which is tasked with examining how other jurisdictions provide legal services to foster youth and considering ways to implement the recommendations of the Malama Ohana Working Group (MOWG) that was established by Act 86, Session Laws of Hawaii (SLH) 2023.

The bill specifies that the working group shall be composed of specific members, detailed in section 2(c) on pages 3-4 of the bill. On page 4, lines 3-5, the bill includes as members of the working group two representatives of the MOWG to be designated by the co-chairs of the MOWG.

The Department notes that Act 86, SLH 2023, provided for the dissolution of the MOWG following the end of the 2025 regular session. As a result, the MOWG no longer exists as a formal body, and the former co-chairs are no longer in those positions. Accordingly, we recommend amending section 2(c)(8), page 4, lines 3-5, to provide for an alternate selection of the two representatives.

The Department also notes that section 2(c)(10), page 4, lines 9-11, references "experts" and "expertise" without defining either term, which could create confusion regarding who qualifies to serve on the working group. To provide clarity, we recommend amending this provision as follows: "Three or more individuals with lived experience in navigating the state child welfare system while minors[.]"

These changes would remove ambiguities and ensure the working group is properly structured to fulfill its mandate.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments.

Testimony on H.B. 1565

RELATING TO CHILD WELFARE SERVICES

Representative Lisa Marten, Chair

Representative Ikaika Olds, Vice Chair

House Committee on Human Services and Homelessness

February 3, 2026, at 9:00 a.m.; Room Number: 329

The Office of Wellness and Resilience (OWR) Supports H.B. 1565, Relating to Child Welfare Services and respectfully defers to the Judiciary.

The mission of the Office of Wellness and Resilience is to strengthen state systems and services by advancing hope-centered principles and supporting Hawai‘i’s transition toward becoming a trauma-informed state. As the state agency that administered the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group, our office had the privilege of working closely with individuals with lived experience and expertise in the child welfare system, as well as with state departments and community partners. The recommendations in the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group Report center the voices and experiences of children and families most impacted by the system.

Positive outcomes for youth with legal representation. This measure aligns with Section VI of the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group Report, which recommends strengthening the family court process for child welfare cases.¹ Throughout the Working Group’s discussions, individuals with lived experience in foster care shared that they often faced life-altering decisions without legal guidance or an advocate to ensure their needs -were heard.

Research shows that providing legal representation to young people in foster care not only empowers them to understand their rights and participate meaningfully in court proceedings, but also leads to improved outcomes. These include faster permanency—whether through reunification or adoption, greater placement stability, and better access to needed services.²

H.B. 1565 creates an opportunity for those with lived expertise to collaborate with the Judiciary, Child Welfare Services, and the Department of the Attorney General to advance this shared vision for Hawai‘i’s keiki and ‘ohana.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify on this important measure.

Aloha Chair Lisa Marten, Vice Chair Ikaika Olds, and Members of the Committee,

My name is Patricia "Patty" Chin. I serve as the HI H.O.P.E.S. (Hawai'i Helping Our People Envision Success) Initiative Manager at EPIC 'Ohana. The initiative is a statewide initiative dedicated to ensuring that young people who've experienced foster care, especially those ages 14 to 26, have the relationships, resources, and opportunities they need to thrive. We partner with public and private organizations at both the state and local levels to improve policies and practices, promote youth voice and leadership, apply research and evaluation, and build strong community connections. Our work centers on creating pathways to success in areas like permanency, education, employment, housing, health, financial capability, and social capital.

I am submitting testimony in strong support of HB1565 and its intent to establish a working group to enhance legal representation for youth in foster care. Research from States that have already implemented Counsel for Youth shows clear, measurable benefits. Youth are 40% more likely to exit foster care within 6 months and 45% more likely to reunify with their biological parents. They also experience 30% fewer placement moves, along with 65% fewer unnecessary school moves, demonstrating the stability and improved outcomes that legal representation can provide. These outcomes represent more than numbers. They represent stability, healing, and hope.

In my work, I have the privilege of partnering with current and former foster youth across Hawai'i. I listen to their stories, their frustrations, and their dreams for a better system. One theme emerges again and again that youth are often left uninformed about their Child Welfare cases and excluded from decisions that profoundly shape their lives. Just as concerning, I frequently hear young people say that their future feels like they are left up to chance. Chance that someone happens to be in their corner, chance that an adult chooses to advocate for their needs and wants, chance that someone listens. No young person's future should depend on chance. As a former foster youth myself (2005 - 2013), these stories are painfully familiar. While I was grateful to have a Guardian Ad Litem, I now recognize how limited my interactions were and how little I understood her role. I did not understand the decisions being made about me. I did not have the support I needed to meaningfully participate in my own case. With the knowledge I have today, I firmly believe that legal representation would have allowed me to be more engaged, more informed, and more empowered and that it could have prevented some of the trauma my family and I experienced.

HB1565 is a meaningful step toward ensuring that no young person must navigate the system in the dark or rely on chance to be heard. It affirms that youth deserve to be seen, heard, and supported. It signals that they will not simply be talked about but truly listened to. They will not just be guided but empowered. That they will not only be present but represented. For these reasons, I stand in strong support of HB1565 and respectfully urge you to pass this bill. Mahalo, for your time, your attention, and your commitment to Hawai'i's youth.

Youth Boards also serve as the official youth advisory council to the Child Welfare Services Branch of Hawai'i's Department of Human Services—ensuring that youth perspectives help shape the very systems that impact our lives.

I am submitting testimony in strong support of HB1565 which seeks to establish a working group to enhance legal representation for youth in foster care. I support this bill because it is important to ensure that youth's voices are being heard in the decisions that impact our lives. Being able to have legal representation would also allow youth to have access to different support systems.

Mahalo, for your time and consideration of these important issues. I respectfully ask that you pass HB1565 out of committee so that all youth in Hawai'i's Child Welfare System have the representation and voice they deserve. Mahalo, for listening.

When I was in care, I often felt confused and powerless during court proceedings because no one was there solely to represent my interests or explain what was happening. Having legal counsel would have helped me better understand my rights, feel safer speaking up, and trust that my voice truly mattered.

I am submitting testimony in support of HB1565. This bill is important because it ensures that youth in the Child Welfare System have access to legal representation, which is something many of us currently lack. Having an attorney would help make family court processes more fair, transparent, and youth-friendly, while also ensuring that young people's voices are heard and respected in decisions that directly impact our lives. When I was in care, I often felt disconnected from my own case. Important decisions were made about my future without my full understanding or meaningful involvement. If I had legal counsel and was more involved in my case, I would have felt more connected, more informed, and more confident that my voice truly mattered. Youth deserve to understand what is happening in their cases and to have someone who can advocate for their rights and best interests.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this important issue and for your commitment to foster youth in Hawai'i. I am submitting testimony in support of HB1565. I support this bill because it will give youth in foster care, a legal voice, one that is often not heard or uplifted. I was 12 years old when I was taken into foster care and was 14 years old when the idea of going into guardianship was proposed to me. At the time, it was advertised as the perfect solution to all the instability and uncertainty of my Child Welfare case. With everyone, from my resource caregiver to my guardian ad litem telling me it was the best thing to do, I agreed with no hesitation. Shortly after gaining guardianship over me, my guardian began to show her true colors. Things only got more and more difficult until I turned 18 and left. This same situation also happened to two of my foster brothers who are still in that home today. Who knows how many kids in care have experienced similar, if not worse situations? I now realize guardianship was not the best thing for me as a child; it was only the best thing for the Child Welfare case. If I had a lawyer back then, they could explain the guardianship situation, help me realize exactly what that meant, and advocate for what I wanted in the court, which was not that. If I had a lawyer back then, I could have avoided the next four grueling years when I was stuck with my guardian. With this bill, making it mandatory for the youth to have legal representation within their case will create better, more child-focused, outcomes. That way, no kid is looked at as just another case number.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this important issue and for your commitment to foster youth in Hawai'i. I respectfully ask that you pass HB1565 out of committee so that all youth in Hawai'i's Child Welfare System have the representation and a voice they deserve.

I am submitting testimony in support of HB1565. I support this bill because it will amplify youth's voices and meaningfully represent their position within the court, which will directly benefit them during their time in foster care. This bill will also improve access to services and resources being provided to the youth, which will allow youth in care to feel more equitable with their peers. I believe this bill is essential to ensuring that youth are not only present within these spaces but truly listened to and so that others take accountability over them. When I was in care, I rarely felt that my voice was rarely considered or taken seriously. Decisions were made on my behalf by the adults who believed that they knew what was best for me. However, through constant challenges, and countless conversations, I made the effort to ensure that the adults around me knew of my circumstances and best interests through my perspective. Our voices matter--especially as we are the ones most often overlooked.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this important issue and for your commitment to foster youth in Hawai'i. My name is Destiny-Jade Roberts-Wada, and I'm an 18-year-old advocate with lived experience in Hawai'i's Child Welfare System. I currently serve as a Board Member of the O'ahu HI H.O.P.E.S. Youth Leadership Board, where I work alongside other young leaders to uplift foster youth voices and drive meaningful change.

HI H.O.P.E.S.—which stands for Hawai'i Helping Our People Envision Success—is a statewide initiative dedicated to ensuring that young people who've experienced foster care, especially those ages 14 to 26, have the relationships, resources, and opportunities they need to thrive. We partner with public and private organizations at both the state and local levels to improve policies and practices, promote youth voice and leadership, apply research and evaluation, and build strong community connections. Our work centers on creating pathways to success in areas like permanency, education, employment, housing, health, financial capability, and social capital. As Youth Leadership Board Members, we are committed to educating, advocating, and collaborating to transform the foster care system and improve outcomes for current and former foster youth. The HI H.O.P.E.S. Youth Boards also serve as the official youth advisory council to the Child Welfare Services Branch of Hawai'i's Department of Human Services—ensuring that youth perspectives help shape the very systems that impact our lives.

I am submitting testimony in support of HB1565. I support this bill because it will give youth in the Child Welfare System access to legal representation and ensure that youth voices are heard in decisions that directly affect our lives. When I was in care, having legal counsel would have helped me feel like I was part of the decisions that impacted my life and not just simply hope that my Guardian Ad Litem (G.A.L.) has the same plans for my life that I did.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this important issue and for your commitment to foster youth in Hawai'i. I respectfully ask that you pass Ho1565 out of committee so that all youth in Hawai'i's Child Welfare System are guaranteed meaningful representation and the opportunity to have their voices heard in decisions that shape their futures.

RE: Testimony in SUPPORT of HB 1565 – Relating to Child Welfare Services

My name is Sharla-Ann Houlding. I am the Supervisor for the HI H.O.P.E.S. Initiative, whose mission is to educate, advocate and collaborate for improvements to the foster care system and promote better outcomes for youth in foster care. I am submitting testimony in strong support of HB 1565 and its intent to appropriate funds to establish a working group to improve family court processes, including access to legal representation for youth in the child welfare system.

Children and youth in the child welfare system are among the most vulnerable members of our society. Many have experienced significant trauma, instability, and uncertainty due to circumstances entirely beyond their control. Yet, despite being the central focus of child welfare cases, foster youth are often provided with little to no information about their own case, the legal process, or the timeline regarding decisions being made on their behalf. This lack of transparency leaves young people feeling confused, frustrated, powerless, and it frequently results in disengagement from social workers, Guardians ad Litem (GALs), and other professionals who are making life-altering decisions about their future.

I have worked with youth and families involved in the child welfare system for over 17 years. During that time, I have consistently heard young people express that they feel uninformed and excluded from their own child welfare case. Many have reported being left out of case planning and court proceedings, feeling as though their voices do not matter in decisions that directly impact where they live, who they see, and what their future looks like. Even more concerning is the fact that some young adults have shared that when they attempted to voice safety concerns, those concerns were dismissed or minimized—leaving them even more vulnerable and exposed to continued harm.

Research supports the notion that providing skilled legal representation to children and youth in foster care leads to significantly better outcomes including:

- Improved court participation and satisfaction: although every child in foster care is appointed a GAL or Court-Appointed Special Advocate (CASA), neither of these entities directly represent the child's voice—they advocate what they feel is in the child's best interests. Additionally, these entities are not bound by attorney-client privilege as they do not legally represent the child in court, so they may be called to testify and disclose information the child did not want disclosed openly in court. However, when a young person has their own state-licensed attorney that they can express their wishes, views, and needs to, who they know will advocate for what they want, the young person is more likely to engage in court proceedings, which provides judges with a comprehensive picture of all perspectives when making decisions.

- Increased rates of family reunification: a 2008 study by the Chapin Hall Center for Children at the University of Chicago found that children who had legal representation through a multidisciplinary team approach were more than 40% successful in exiting foster care to permanency (i.e., reunification, legal guardianship, or adoption) and did not have to “age out” as a ward of the court.
- Reduced time in foster care: a study conducted by QIC-ChildRep found that children who were represented by an experienced attorney who completed their specialized training were 40% more likely to exit the system by achieving permanency within six months as compared to children whose attorneys did not receive the same training. This has been demonstrated to save state systems time, money, and valuable resources.
- Better educational and well-being outcomes: a 2021 evaluation in Washington State found that youth in foster care with attorneys were 65% less likely to experience an unnecessary change in their school and 30% less likely to experience a change in foster homes as compared to their peers who did not have legal representation in court

While the majority of states around the country guarantee legal representation for all children involved in the child welfare system, there are many that still do not, Hawai‘i being one of them. We have hit a critical point for children who have been impacted by the child welfare system. We know the names of the children in cases where legal advocacy could have saved their lives. We must not let their suffering be wasted lessons. We have the responsibility to change policies for children and youth who will be forced to enter foster care in the future by drawing upon the lessons we have learned from the children we have failed.

By passing this bill, Hawai‘i has the opportunity to focus on providing the necessary support and resources to protect the rights, safety, and well-being of children in foster care. Passing this bill will ensure youth voices are uplifted and their rights are honored and upheld. Providing legal counsel to youth goes beyond advocacy—it is about social justice, fairness, equality, and the recognition that every child deserves to have a voice and direct input regarding the decisions that will profoundly impact their lives and their future.

I respectfully ask that the Committee pass HB 1565 to ensure that our children in the child welfare system are equipped with the proper tools and resources to navigate a very complex system and learn to advocate for their rights. Thank you for your time, consideration, and for the opportunity to testify.

With my deepest gratitude and aloha,
Sharla-Ann Houlding, LCSW

I am submitting testimony in strong support of HB 1565 and its intent to establish a working group to enhance legal representation for youth in foster care. I recently began working in my role supporting youth and families involved in the foster care system. While I do not have lived experience myself, I have grown up alongside family members and friends who have been in foster care, and their journeys have given me a deep commitment to step up and support those who need it. Through hearing their stories, one challenge consistently stands out: many youths are left uninformed about the child welfare and legal processes that directly affect their lives. Providing legal counsel would not only help young people understand their rights but also build their confidence. This bill creates a pathway for youth to find their own leo (voice) and feel empowered to share their mana'o (thoughts), encouraging them to make informed decisions about their futures.

Mahalo nui loa for your time and consideration of these important issues. I respectfully ask that you pass HB1565 so that all youth in Hawai'i's Child Welfare System have the representation and voice they deserve.

I support this bill because it will give youth in the Child Welfare System access to legal representation and ensure that youth voices are heard in decisions that directly affect our lives. When I was in care, I really wish I had an attorney who actually fought for what I wanted and needed. My GAL kept saying it was in my "best interest" to stay in a home that I knew wasn't good for me, even though I kept speaking up about the psychological harm I was going through. She was the only person who had the power to help me leave, but because she saw things like me having my own room and being involved in school, she decided that was enough – even after I tried over and over to explain what was really happening. If I had my own attorney, someone whose job was to listen to me and advocate for my voice, I honestly believe things would have been different. I wouldn't still be dealing with the impact of that experience now as an adult.

Thank you for taking the time to consider this important issue and for your commitment to foster youth in Hawai'i. Aloha Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and members of the committee,

On behalf of Hawai'i Children's Action Network (HCAN) Speaks!, mahalo for the opportunity to testify in SUPPORT of House Bill 1565 relating to Child Welfare Services.

This bill represents an important step towards establishing legal counsel for youth in the child welfare system in Hawai'i. Hawai'i is one of only 13 states that does not guarantee foster youth the right to legal representation in their court proceedings. HB1565 establishes a working group to advance access to legal representation for foster youth, ensuring they are included in decisions affecting their lives and that their rights are consistently protected throughout their cases. These cases involve decisions that profoundly impact a young person's safety, family connections, and future. Foster youth deserve a meaningful voice in these proceedings.

Youth with legal counsel have better outcomes, including 40% more likely to exit the foster system within 6 months, 45% more likely to reunify with biological parents, and 65% fewer unnecessary school moves.¹ This bill helps to ensure that youth have legal counsel to help them understand their rights, amplify their voice in court, and assist in supported decision making. These outcomes promote greater stability and safety for youth and contribute to their long-term well-being.

Firsthand accounts shared by youth lived experts² in Hawai'i as well as national research³ demonstrates legal counsel for children is necessary to improve the safety and well-being of children and youth involved in the child welfare system. Children and youth facing the challenges and trauma of navigating the child welfare system deserve to have their voices heard and to be listened to regarding the course of their lives. As such the efforts of the working group that would be established by this bill should be guided by and grounded in the experiences of youth-lived experts.

Mahalo for the opportunity to submit testimony in support of HB 1565.

Sincerely,
Nicole Woo

RE: Testimony in support of HB 1565 Relating to Child Welfare Services

Aloha e Committee Members,

My name is Dana Matsunami, I am an attorney at the National Center for Youth Law where I focus on issues relating to foster care in our state. I am testifying in support of HB 1565, which creates a working group to explore and advance youth in foster care's access to meaningful legal representation in their child welfare case.

In my work, I have had the privilege of collaborating with current and former foster youth throughout Hawai'i to hear their stories, challenges, and visions for a better future. These conversations are not easy. Youth have shared harm they experienced during their child welfare case and the lasting impact on their lives. There are themes: many share that they were left in the dark about their case; experienced abuse while in foster care but feared retaliation if they sought help; and had vital decisions made about their lives without their knowledge or input, causing lasting trust issues and trauma. We know from the brave personal stories of youth, the tragedies that have occurred in our state, and the hard work of community partners that youth in Hawai'i's foster care system can experience terrible—sometimes tragic—outcomes. We also know that child welfare interventions overwhelmingly disrupt the lives of Native Hawaiian families. It is, as one former Hawai'i foster youth put it, "a system of luck," where some get lucky and escape the worst outcomes, but many do not.

Children and youth have legal rights while in foster care, including a right to family integrity, community connection, and safety. However, under current state, youth in Hawai'i can be removed from their families, communities, and homes; separated from siblings; placed in state custody; prevented from attending extracurricular activities; forced to change schools; permanently legally severed from their parents; and more, all without a lawyer or an advocate who is required to advocate for what the youth wants and needs. Advancing effective, culturally-responsive, and well-trained legal representation to youth in child welfare cases is an essential step to ensuring youth voices are heard and that their rights are upheld. As one youth said, "how can you make decisions that change our lives forever without ever even hearing from us?"

The importance of youth representation in child welfare cases is backed up by research. Access to counsel makes a world of difference: children represented by specifically trained legal counsel are 40% more likely to leave the foster system within their first six months and experience a 45% higher reunification rate with their biological parents. They also experience a 30% reduction in the rate of placement moves, and 65% reduction in the rate of unnecessary school moves. By creating a working group—guided by youth lived experts—to explore a model of representation that serves Hawai'i's unique legal and cultural needs, this bill works toward our shared goals of keeping youth safe and families and communities together.

Aloha Committee Chairs,

Hawaii Youth Services Network supports HB 1565 which helps ensure young people in foster care have an attorney who can support them in understanding their rights, amplify their voices in court and support them through complex, life-changing decisions. Research shows that youth with legal representation experience greater stability, safety and long term well-being.

HYSN strongly urges support of this meaningful step to ensure young people are truly seen, heard, and supported.

Written Testimony in Support of House Bill 1565 Relating to Child Welfare Services

Natalece Washington, JD, Policy Counsel, National Association of Counsel for Children

House Committee on Human Services and Homelessness

February 3, 2026

Chair Marten and Members of the House Committee on Human Services and Homelessness:

The National Association of Counsel for Children \(NACC\)¹ strongly supports HB 1565. NACC endorses counsel for youth and client-directed legal representation for all children and youth in foster care. Appointing counsel for youth promotes judicial consideration of their perspective, empowers youth, contributes their input to life-changing decisions, and improves their perception of fairness in court proceedings.

NACC is very pleased that legislators, guided by the recommendations of the Mālama 'Ohana Working Group, are considering the establishment and appropriation of funds for a working group to study the impact of children's legal representation. This is a positive step towards lasting change in Hawai'i's child welfare system directly inspired by community members with personal experience within foster care.

Currently, state law requires the appointment of a guardian ad litem (GAL) for all children and youth in child protection proceedings. (Haw. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 587A-16(c) (6)). Youth may request an attorney if they disagree with the recommendations of their GAL. But there is no right to have an attorney appointed. (Haw. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 587A-3.1(b) (4)). Without an attorney, a child's specific wishes may go unchampioned in court. The GAL is distinctly different from counsel for youth. The GAL must develop an informed opinion about what is best for a child and then advance that best-interest determination in court. But what is "best" is a subjective assessment. It leaves the GAL at risk for assessing situations according to their own values and experiences, which may be starkly different than those of the child and family involved in the court proceedings. This can leave the judge without complete evidence on the child's perspective.

By contrast, counsel for youth allow the child-client to set case objectives with the ongoing support and counseling of an attorney who helps them understand their legal rights and the court proceedings. Counsel for youth owe the child the same duties of professional responsibility (loyalty, confidentiality, competence, etc.) as would be due to an adult-client. Counsel for youth zealously pursue the client's agenda—an agenda developed by the child's lived experience and understanding of their own family.

Children appointed counsel for youth experience better results than those who are not, including less time in foster care or group settings, shorter time to adoption or guardianship, and more successful reunifications. Studies have found that children represented by counsel for youth are 45% more likely to reunify with their biological parents, 30% less likely to change placements while in care, and 65% less likely to unnecessarily change schools. Faster permanency and better outcomes for children can mean cost savings² for the state.

The federal government promotes and funds counsel for youth. In 2017, the U.S. Children's Bureau (CB), the federal agency responsible for child protection, issued an Information Memorandum that encouraged the appointment of high-quality child attorney's as "critical to a well-functioning child welfare system." In 2018, CB changed longstanding policy to open Title IV-E federal entitlement funding to support legal representation of children. (This change was codified in federal regulation in 2024). In 2021, the CB issued another Memorandum again urging legal representation for children in all stages of child welfare proceedings and maximizing allowable Title IV-E funds. In Hawaii these funds remain untapped but are available to supplement state funds to support the appointment of counsel for youth.

Youth with lived experience in the child welfare system overwhelmingly indicate a desire to be seen, heard, and represented. Those appointed counsel for youth can meaningfully contribute to the decision-making processes that have long-term impact on their lives. They can tell their attorney where they are safe and where they are not, who they hope to visit and who they do not, their concerns about their siblings and parents, and any issues they are experiencing in foster care. Their attorney, in turn, must zealously protect their legal rights, ensure their opportunity to participate fully in court, and increase youth access to justice and fairness.

The proposed work group is a practical step to select the best course of action to implement youth right to counsel in child protection proceedings. NACC applauds Hawai'i's ongoing dedication to improving the experience and outcomes for children and youth in the child protection system. We welcome the opportunity to assist the workgroup in meeting its objectives of examining counsel for youth models in other jurisdictions and identifying best practices for statewide implementation. We urge you to support HB 1565.

² A study released in January 2026 found that "using conservative assumptions, the estimated annual federal cost of providing legal representation is $1,009 per IV-E-eligible child, while the estimated annual savings from reduced time in care are between $4,393 and $8,238 per child, yielding a net federal benefit of $3,384 to $7,229 per represented IV-E-eligible child per year" and "estimated federal savings of between $67.96 million and $145.16 million per year." Notably, the savings would be even more significant when accounting for other federal streams (IV-B, TANF, etc.) and parent representation as well.

Testimony in Support of HB1565 Relating to Child Welfare Services Keiki Caucus; Judiciary; Child Welfare System; Legal Services for Youth

Aloha Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

My name is Venus Kau‘iokawēkiu Rosete-Medeiros, and I am the President and CEO of Hale Kipa, a Hawai‘i-based nonprofit that has served vulnerable youth and families for over 55 years. I am writing in strong support of HB1565.

Every day, young people in Hawai‘i’s child welfare system are asked to navigate life-changing decisions where they will live, whether they can stay connected to siblings, where they will attend school, and when or if they will return home. Too often, these decisions are made without the youth having legal guidance or an advocate whose sole responsibility is to represent their wishes and protect their rights.

There have been many instances in our youth shelters where young people have shared that they felt unheard, lacked a clear understanding of their legal cases, and experienced a sense of isolation throughout the process. There is such a need to help these youth navigate the child welfare system and complex and unfamiliar court system.

HB1565 takes an important step forward by establishing a working group within the Judiciary to improve family court processes, including access to legal representation for youth in the child welfare system. This bill recognizes a fundamental truth: youth deserve to be seen, heard, and meaningfully included in decisions that shape their lives.

When youth have an attorney, the impact is profound. Research consistently shows that youth with legal representation experience better outcomes, including:

- 40% greater likelihood of exiting foster care within six months
- 45% higher rates of reunification with biological parents
- 30% fewer placement changes
- 65% fewer unnecessary school moves

These outcomes are not abstract statistics they reflect greater stability, improved safety, and stronger long-term well-being for our keiki.

Today, Hawai‘i remains one of only 13 states where foster youth do not yet have a guaranteed right to their own attorney. HB1565 represents a meaningful opportunity for Hawai‘i to lead with compassion, equity, and accountability by examining how our family court system can better serve the voices and needs of young people.

As someone who works closely with youth who have experienced trauma, instability, and loss, I can say with confidence: having a trusted legal advocate can be life-changing. It can be the difference between feeling powerless and feeling protected; between being spoken about and being spoken with.

I respectfully urge you to support HB1565 and invest in a child welfare system that honors the dignity, rights, and voices of our keiki.

Mahalo for your commitment to Hawai‘i’s children and families.

Testimony in Support of HB 1565 Relating to Child Welfare Services

As a community advocate and the former Executive Director of Hawaii Youth Services Network, I strongly support HB 1565.

The Malama Ohana Work Group's report contains recommendations to strengthen the Family Court process in child welfare cases. This includes reducing delays in legal proceedings and ensuring access to legal representation for youth.

Hawai'i is 1 of 13 states where foster youth do not have the right to an attorney in their court cases. Our youth deserve more. They deserve to be heard in decisions about their lives, their families, and their futures. This bill creates a working group to advance foster youths' access to legal representation, to ensure youth are included in decisions and that their rights are upheld in their cases.

Youth with lawyers have better outcomes, including 40% more likely to exit the foster system within 6 months, 45% more likely to reunify with biological parents, and 65% fewer unnecessary school moves.

Thank you for this opportunity to testify.

Aloha, members of the Human Services and Homelessness Committee.

My name is Gloria Kwon and I am currently a social work student, in the process of receiving my master's degree at the University of Hawaii at Manoa. My career path is set to work with children and families.

House Bill 1565 can potentially alter the course of many lives that are enmeshed with family court. I personally know many families that have been negatively affected by the resources they did not have access to, while facing challenges in family court. Delayed court proceedings and lack of legal representation have changed the trajectory of their lives, for the worse. This results in broken families, confusion, and unprotected children. This bill would aid those who have no legal representation within the family court system, serving as a needed layer of protection for families, youth, and underprivileged populations. People cannot afford legal representation, in most cases they may not understand legal jargon, and are stuck dealing with individuals that are only half invested in their case. As a state, we need to be there for the families who can be better represented in court to ensure their safety and well-being. There are far worse consequences from youth and families who feel the system has failed them, especially when they are doing everything to right their wrongs, have no one who understands what they're going through, and have no further resources to rely on. These families will be at risk of living negative lifestyles thereafter. Resiliency should not be tested so vigorously. I urge you to pass HB 1565.

Respectfully,

IN SUPPORT

Aloha Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the Committee, my name is Richard Dominguez. As a social work student I am testifying in support of House Bill 1565.

As an emerging social worker, I have seen firsthand how system gaps disproportionately affect vulnerable youth, particularly Native Hawaiian and other historically marginalized communities within Hawai‘i. Providing legal representation is not only a matter of fairness, but also a preventative measure that can reduce prolonged court involvement and system-related harm and trauma. House Bill 1565 is a critical step toward improving outcomes for youth involved in child protection proceedings by establishing a working group focused on strengthening family court process and access to legal representation for children.

Youth and young adults involved in child welfare are the experts of their own lives, and case plans and services are more effective with their input. Studies show that engaging youth in casework leads to improved safety, wellbeing, and permanency outcomes. This authentic engagement means creating a safe, supportive space where youth feel heard, respected, and protected when sharing their experiences. It honors the youth's voice but also provides the support they need from the working group, helping them maneuver the complex child welfare system.

By establishing a working group that includes lived experiences and examines best practices, HB1565 creates an opportunity for child welfare professionals to meet youth where they are at, provide clear information and support, and follow their lead throughout the court process. For these reasons, I respectfully urge you to support HB1565, as this bill represents a thoughtful, collaborative, and necessary approach to improving Hawai‘i child welfare and family court systems.

Position: SUPPORT

Dear Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Committee Members:

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony in support of HB 1565 which establishes a working group for legal services for youth in the child welfare system within the judiciary.

My name is Karen Worthington, and I am a children's law and policy attorney with a consulting business on Maui, Karen Worthington Consulting. I have worked as a lawyer in and around state systems affecting children and families throughout my 30-year career. I am certified as a Child Welfare Law Specialist by the National Association of Counsel for Children. I have worked extensively with Hawai'i state departments and nonprofit organizations that support children and families who exist at the margins of our society.

Please pass HB 1565, which seeks to improve the lives of children involved with the state's child welfare system and addresses a critical gap in our child welfare system. In a child welfare case, the person whose life is most impacted by the process and outcomes is the child, yet children's perspectives are often not shared with the courts. In fact, across the state, our children and youth are often not seen or heard during the legal proceedings about their lives.

Youth with lived experience in Hawai'i's child welfare system report being left uninformed about their cases, having decisions made without their input, and facing retaliation when reporting unsafe conditions. As one youth powerfully stated, "How can you make decisions that change our lives forever without ever even hearing from us?"

The Mālama 'Ohana Working Group report includes input from youth who shared their insights and experiences by participating in the 11 community meetings, serving on or informing the Permitted Interaction Groups, or submitting written testimony. These youth consistently expressed two fundamental needs: they want to have a say in decisions about their lives and they want their rights and well-being protected.

While Hawai'i law requires children to have a Guardian ad Litem (GAL) in these proceedings, GALs are not bound by attorney-client confidentiality—they advocate for what they believe is in the child's best interest rather than representing the child's expressed wishes. This means that that children's experiences, wishes, and insights are filtered through an adult who may never have experienced being placed in foster care, being forcibly separated from family members and close friends, or other traumatic events. Furthermore, if a GAL is not an attorney, the child's representative is not able to protect the child's essential legal rights or appropriately support the youth through complex decision-making in a legal context. In my experience as a lawyer, I have seen that non-lawyer advocates are at a disadvantage in legal proceedings when all other parties have a lawyer because a non-lawyer does not have the legal tools needed to protect a person's rights. Finally, many children in the Hawai'i child welfare system do not even have a GAL; in Child Maltreatment 2023, Table 6-5, Hawai'i reports that only 50.5% of child victims have a court appointed representative.

Young people who are represented by a lawyer are more likely to experience stability while in foster care—they experience fewer placement moves, fewer school changes, and are more likely to be reunified with a parent than youth who do not have legal counsel.

Research shows that providing children with legal counsel is not only the right thing to do, it is a smart financial move because over time, it reduces costs within the child welfare system, with studies showing a 40% faster exit from foster care when children have legal representation. And, federal funds through Title IV-E are available to offset some of the costs of providing lawyers for youth.

Creating this working group is an important step in the direction of properly caring for youth who are involved with the child welfare system and protecting their rights, especially those provided through the Hawai'i Foster Youth Bill of Rights.

Aloha Chair Representative Marten, Vice Chair Representative Olds and Members of the Committee on Human Services and Homelessness.

Please support HB 1565, and thank you, Chair Representative Marten for introducing this bill. I understand that this bill would improve family court processes in the child welfare system, and ultimately would be helpful to the children in this system.

Mahalo.

Aloha Chair, Vice Chair, and Members of the Committee,

My name is Melissa Mayo, and I am submitting testimony in strong support of HB1565, which establishes a working group to improve family court processes, including access to legal representation for youth involved in the child welfare system.

I am a former foster youth and a proud former member of the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group, which was tasked with seeking, designing, and recommending transformative changes to Hawai‘i’s existing child welfare system. I am also the former chair of the Keiki and ‘Opio Permitted Interaction Group. In addition, I bring over eight years of experience in youth advocacy work, supporting and uplifting the voices of young people navigating systems that make life-altering decisions on their behalf.

Through both my lived experience and my advocacy work, I have often shared my belief that Hawai‘i’s child welfare system operates as a system of luck. While I consider myself fortunate to have had a guardian ad litem and social worker who valued my voice and supported me during my time in foster care, I know many others have not been as lucky. This disparity fuels my passion for ensuring that every young person in Hawai‘i’s foster care system has access to the resources and support they need—not just to survive, but to thrive and live meaningful lives.

Throughout my time as a member of the Mālama ‘Ohana Working Group and the Keiki and ‘Opio Permitted Interaction Group, I listened to many stories from youth whose experiences in the foster care system were marked by a lack of resources, support, and connection to family. Many of the young people I spoke with urged those working with youth in foster care to “stop making decisions about our lives without even hearing from us.” They shared that having a supportive adult who listened, advocated for their needs, and valued their input could have significantly improved their experience in care.

HB1565 is a vital step toward ensuring that no young person’s future is left to chance. By establishing this working group, the State can build on prior recommendations and focus on improving access to legal representation for youth—advocates who will prioritize their voices, rights, and well-being. This is especially critical in a system where major decisions about a young person’s life, including family separation, placement changes, and school moves, are often made without their meaningful participation.

Through my continued work advocating for improved outcomes for youth in foster care, I have seen how centering youth voice leads to more just, effective, and humane systems. In listening sessions and conversations with current and former foster youth, the need for trusted advocates—particularly legal advocates—has been consistently clear.

Research confirms what lived experiences already tell us:

- Children with access to trained legal counsel are 40% more likely to achieve permanency within six months and experience a 45% higher rate of reunification with their families.
- Legal representation reduces unnecessary placements, school moves, and the trauma associated with instability.

Thank you for your time, dedication, and commitment to improving the lives of Hawai‘i’s foster youth. I respectfully urge your support of HB1565.

Mahalo nui loa,

Melissa Mayo
