
A BILL FOR AN ACT

RELATING TO SEX-BASED DISCRIMINATION.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

1 SECTION 1. The legislature finds that the Patsy Mink Equal
2 Opportunity in Education Act, also known as Title IX, triggered 3 a seismic shift in the education landscape by prohibiting 4 discrimination on the basis of sex by any education program or 5 activity receiving federal funds. Hawaii is proud of 6 Congresswoman Mink's signature legislation, which has given 7 millions of girls and women educational opportunities in the 8 classroom, on playing fields, in employment, in graduate
9 schools, and in research, teaching, medicine, law, and other 10 professions that were out of reach prior to the enactment of 11 Title IX.

12 The legislature recognizes, however, that Congresswoman
13 Mink's goals for Title IX have not been fully realized, and that 14 the efficacy of Title IX federal protections against sex
15 discrimination in education has been diminished and eroded.
16 Decades after Title IX's enactment, the state department of

1 education remains out of compliance, as does the university of 2 Hawaii system.

3 The legislature notes that annual reports from the 4 university of Hawaii, department of education schools, and state
5 public charter schools on Title IX sex-based discrimination and 6 non-Title IX sexual harassment complaints received by the 7 schools suggest that, when compared with data from student 8 surveys, incidents of sex-based discrimination and sex-based 9 harassment go largely unreported. This creates a hostile
10 environment and can negatively impact a student's learning, 11 mental health, physical wellbeing, and ability to continue their 12 education. Stronger state protections are needed to ensure that 13 no student is denied, or faces barriers to, equal educational 14 opportunities on the basis of the student's sex.

15 The legislature also notes that the current federal 16 administration has expressed an intention to eliminate certain 17 federal civil rights protections and leave these issues to the 18 states. Maintaining a vague framework in state law and relying 19 primarily on federal Title IX protections may not be sufficient 20 in these times.

1 The legislature further finds that the courts have 2 consistently interpreted the relationship between federal and 3 state protections in areas where states have enacted stronger
4 laws as one where federal law establishes a baseline or "floor", 5 allowing states to provide greater protections without being 6 preempted, as long as there is no direct conflict with federal 7 law. This principle is rooted in the concept of federalism,
8 which permits states to legislate in areas not exclusively
9 reserved for federal authority, as long as their laws do not 10 obstruct federal objectives.

11 In State v. Viglielmo, 105 Haw. 197 (2004), the Hawaii
12 supreme court emphasized that states have a sovereign right to 13 adopt constitutional provisions and laws that confer broader 14 individual liberties than those provided by the federal 15 constitution. The court noted that Hawaii's constitution has 16 often been interpreted to afford greater protections than its 17 federal counterpart, particularly when a sound regard for the 18 purpose of the rights involved warrants such an expansion. This 19 case illustrates that state courts can interpret their 20 constitutions and statutes to provide enhanced protections, even 21 in areas where federal law applies, as long as the state law

1 does not contravene federal constitutional provisions or amount
2 to a taking without just compensation.

3 Accordingly, the purpose of this Act is to clarify and 4 strengthen the State's protections against sex-based harassment,
5 sex discrimination, and retaliation, including discrimination
6 based on gender identity, sexual orientation, pregnancy, and 7 pregnancy-related conditions.

8 SECTION 2. Chapter 368D, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is 9 amended by adding eight new sections to be appropriately
10 designated and to read as follows:

21 status, upon the student's return.

1 (e) A covered entity shall consult with a student who is

6 bathroom lactation space for students who are pregnant or have a 7 related condition.

8 (g) A covered entity shall not apply a policy, practice,

4 how to contact the university of Hawaii's Title IX coordinator.

5 §368D-E Consent; when ineffective. (a) Consent to sexual

4 proceedings regarding instances of discrimination
5 based on race or disability, the covered entity shall 6 use that standard.

7 (c) A covered entity may require an employee or other
