Committee: HSH

Department: Education

Person Testifying: Keith T. Hayashi, Superintendent of Education

Title of Bill: HB1626, RELATING TO YOUTH PENALTIES.

Purpose of Bill: Prohibits the assessment of any fees, fines, or court costs against a person who was adjudicated for an offense committed during the person's minority, or against the person's parent or guardian, and discharges all related debt obligations assessed before the effective date of the Act. Encourages the use of community service and other programs that employ aina-based principles. Repeals certain penalties imposed on parents, guardians, or other persons associated with unaccompanied children in streets and unmarried minors in dance halls.

Department's Position:

The Hawai'i State Department of Education (Department) respectfully provides comments on HB1626.

Shifting from monetary penalties to community service for vandalism promotes restorative justice, reduces financial burdens on families, and fosters accountability, empathy, and stronger school connections, consistent with existing disciplinary practices under the Hawai'i Administrative Rules (HAR), Chapter 19 Student Misconduct, Discipline, School Searches, and Seizures, Reporting Offenses, Police Interviews and Arrests, Restitution for Vandalism, Complaint Procedure and Investigation of Discrimination, Harassment (Including Sexual Harassment), Bullying and/or Retaliation.

Under HAR Chapter 19, the Department already addresses property damage and vandalism through a range of interventions. Existing guidelines allow school administrators to respond using measures such as community service, restorative actions, and conferences with students and parents, rather than relying solely on financial penalties.

Accordingly, to ensure operational efficiency, student safety, and continued alignment with HAR Chapter 19, the Department proposes the following amendments to Part III, Section 15:

- Page 49, Lines 4: “(C) The principal or designee of the school in which...”
- Page 49, Lines 6: When appropriate, the principal or designee shall assess the...”
- Page 49, Lines 8: If after the investigation, the principal or designee has reasonable cause to believe...”
- Page 49, Line 10: “...the principal or designee shall schedule a conference...”
- Page 49, Line 12: “Except for the principal or designee of the school in which the vandalism...”
- Page 49, Line 16: “(d) At the conference, the principal or designee of the school in which the vandalism occurred...”
- Page 49, Line 21: “...findings of the principal or designee and the manner in which...”
- Page 50, Line 2: “...the principal or designee and the pupil and parent or guardian shall execute...”
- Page 50, Line 12: “...findings made by the principal or designee, the principal or designee shall report the findings...”

The Department remains committed to fostering a school environment that prioritizes accountability, student growth, and meaningful learning experiences over financial penalties. By leveraging the existing strengths of HAR Chapter 19, schools can continue to support student development through appropriate interventions.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony on this measure.

H.B. 1626: RELATING TO YOUTH PENALTIES

Chair Marten, Vice-Chair Olds, and Members of the Committee:

The Office of the Public Defender strongly supports H.B. 1626:

The Office of the Public Defender represents indigent juveniles in the criminal justice system. Most of our juvenile clients come from families with limited incomes and live in poverty. Many of our juvenile clients are not only entangled in the criminal justice system but may also be in foster care and have limited access to resources that many in our community take for granted. We strongly support the purpose of H.B. 1626 and join in the call for the elimination of fines, fees, and court costs against any person adjudicated for an offense committed during the person's minority, or against the person's parent or guardian.

The core principles and goals espoused in HRS § 571-1, which established the Family Courts, read in part as follows:

This chapter shall be liberally construed to the end that children and families whose rights and well-being are jeopardized shall be assisted and protected, and secured in those rights through action by the court; that the court may formulate a plan adapted to the requirements of the child and the child's family and the necessary protection of the community and may utilize all state and community resources to the extent possible in its implementation.

This chapter created within the State a system of family courts and it shall be a policy and purpose of said courts to promote the reconciliation of distressed juveniles with their families, foster the rehabilitation of juveniles in difficulty, render appropriate punishment to offenders, and reduce juvenile delinquency.

Many of our juveniles involved in the court system are struggling with everything – from access to food and basic amenities, access to a safe place to live, access to transportation, access to a computer and internet access, and access to a working phone. Juveniles in distress include children who are victims of physical and sexual abuse, children who have experienced traumas and face mental health challenges resulting from those traumas. They include children in our foster care system who do not have a loving responsible parent to care and provide for them.

This measure will help juveniles and their families and caregivers concentrate their financial resources on accessing other services more in line with rehabilitation: providing basic needs, maintaining safe and stable housing, accessing counseling services, educational services, mental health services, and reducing some of the daily pressures on families living in poverty by eliminating court-imposed debt that does nothing to promote rehabilitation, education, or the personal growth of youth in the criminal justice system.

We also note and strongly support the important inclusion of aina-based principles and options for juvenile community service as noted on page 56 of the measure.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this measure.

Bill No. and Title: House Bill No. 1626, Relating to Youth Penalties.

Purpose: Prohibits the assessment of any fees, fines, or court costs against a person who was adjudicated for an offense committed during the person’s minority, or against the person’s parent or guardian, and discharges all related debt obligations assessed before the effective date of the Act. Encourages the use of community service and other programs that employ ‘āina-based principles. Repeals certain penalties imposed on parents, guardians, or other persons associated with unaccompanied children in streets and unmarried minors in dance halls.

Judiciary's Position:

The Judiciary supports House Bill No. 1626, which prohibits the assessment of fines, fees, or court costs against adjudicated minors and places guardrails on community service orders, and requests an effective date of July 1, 2027 to make and test the necessary operational changes in the district courts that would be required to implement this measure. We note, as indicated in the preamble, that the intent and purpose of this bill are admirable and evidence-based. As Hawai'i family courts rarely impose fines, fees, or court costs against minors or their parents, this bill would not present a significant change in court operations.

The proposed statutory language regarding the family court's consideration of programs employing 'āina-based principles is sound and our experience has shown us that youth who form connections to their communities are less likely to recidivate and engage in law violating behavior; the bill also allows the court the ability to exercise its discretion based upon the unique circumstances of each child and family. It is also noteworthy that orders relating to victim restitution are still available to the family court under this bill. Further, as noted in the Judiciary's Report on the Assessment of Fees, Court Costs, Fines, and Restitution in Cases Against Minors, and acknowledged in the bill's preamble, collection rates on fines, fees, and court costs imposed on minors is relatively low.

We thank you for the opportunity to offer testimony on this bill.

RE: H.B. No. 1626: RELATING TO YOUTH PENALTIES

Dear Chair Marten, Vice-Chair Olds, and Members of the Committee:

Debt Free Justice Hawai'i respectfully submits the following testimony to express our support for H.B. No. 1626, relating to youth penalties.

Fees and fines assessed against youth in the juvenile system are punitive and impose long-lasting financial and emotional harm on youth and their families. Juvenile financial penalties can range dramatically, from $10 to $5,000 for any given fee or fine.ⁱ These costs can accumulate, quickly becoming an insurmountable debt that imposes long-lasting financial and emotional harm on youth and their families.ⁱⁱ These monetary sanctions exacerbate existing economic inequality and disproportionately harm low-income, and Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander (NHPI) families. By ending this ineffective and criminogenic practice, the Legislature would join the majority of states across the country in achieving debt free justice for our youth.

Fees and fines are unaffordable for the youth and families who make up Hawai'i's juvenile legal system. Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander youth are disproportionately represented in the juvenile legal system, making up 56% of all youth adjudicated in the state.ⁱⁱⁱ This burden tends to fall more heavily on NHPI youth and families, who are assessed an estimated $40,000 each year in juvenile court financial penalties.^{iv} This functions as a regressive tax against NHPI youth and families, who have the lowest median income of all major ethnic groups throughout the state.^v

Fees and fines do not support youth rehabilitation or fund court administration. A report submitted to the Hawai'i State Legislature by the Administrative Director of Hawai'i Courts revealed that, from 2019 to 2024, youth and families managed to pay only 17% of fines assessed to them in juvenile cases.^{vi} Hawai'i courts do not rely on these costs to operate, and many judges use their discretion to enter court orders without fines because they are ineffective and unaffordable for low-income youth and their families. In fact, criminology studies have confirmed that youth, specifically youth of color, had significantly higher likelihood of recidivism (reoffending) when assessed court-ordered fees and fines, even when controlling for demographics and case characteristics.^{vii} Data from other states show that jurisdictions often spend more on collection than they generate in revenue from fees and fines charged to youth.^{viii}

The federal Department of Justice, national associations of judges,^{ix} prosecutors,^x correctional leaders,^{xi} and law enforcement professionals^{xii} all support the elimination of fees and fines for young people. The majority of states in the country have taken action to achieve Debt Free Justice for youth, including the elimination of court costs and the discharge of outstanding debt.^{xiii}

Hawai‘i is an outlier in continuing to authorize monetary sanctions under state law. By removing court-assessed fees and fines against system-involved youth, this bill would bring Hawai‘i in-step with the national movement to repeal youth fees and fines. Advocates from across the state of Hawai‘i, from juvenile system attorneys to community-led restorative justice organizations, have already joined the call to end youth fees and fines.^{xiv} Removing authorization for assessing fees and fines on youth aligns the law with Hawai‘i’s existing general practices and its dedication to reforming its justice system.

ⁱ See, e.g., Haw. Rev. Stat. § 291E-61 (providing for mandatory fines of up to $3,000 for first-time juvenile vehicular offenses), § 291E-61.5 (providing for mandatory fines of up to $5,000 for repeat juvenile vehicular offenses).

ⁱⁱ Depending on the circuit, youth and families are charged, on average, over $600 in court costs per case. See HAW. ST. JUD., A REPORT ON THE ASSESSMENT OF FEES, COURT COSTS, FINES, AND RESTITUTION IN CASES AGAINST MINORS 3 (2024), <https://www.courts.state.hi.us/wp-content/uploads/2025/01/RPT-Assessment-of-Fees-Court-Costs-Fines-Restitution-for-Minors-FINAL.pdf>.

Support for HB 1626- Relating to Youth Penalties

Aloha Chair Marten, Vice-Chair Olds and Members of the Committee,

My name is Jamee Māhealani Miller, and I submit this testimony in strong support of HB 1626 on behalf of 'EkoLu Mea Nui, where I serve as Co-Executive Director. Our organization is also one of the co-authors of this measure, developed in direct response to long-standing implementation gaps we have observed across Hawai'i's juvenile justice system.

Much of the past years' testimonies has rightly focused on the moral and research-based case for eliminating fines and fees imposed on youth and their families. I would like to offer an additional perspective on why HB 1626 is not only just, but operationally necessary.

In our work throughout the continuum of the juvenile justice system, we have seen that juvenile monetary penalties are rarely enforced in practice, inconsistently assessed across jurisdictions, and inefficient to administer. Judiciary data confirms that only a small fraction of juvenile fines are ever collected¹. Despite this, the State continues to carry the administrative burden of tracking, billing, enforcing, and referring these debts, often for years, long after a youth has exited the system.

HB 1626 resolves this inefficiency. By eliminating youth fines and fees entirely, the bill reduces administrative overhead, prevents the accumulation of uncollectible debt, and allows courts and agencies to redirect time and resources toward supervision, diversion, and services that actually improve outcomes.

Importantly, HB 1626 does not remove accountability. It replaces ineffective financial penalties with community service and 'āina-based, culturally grounded alternatives that are already being used successfully across Hawai'i, but without consistent statutory support.

¹ HAW. ST. JUD., A REPORT ON THE ASSESSMENT OF FEES, COURT COSTS, FINES, AND RESTITUTION IN CASES AGAINST MINORS 3 (2024), <https://www.courts.state.hi.us/wp-content/uploads/2025/01/RPT-Assessment-of-Fees-Court-Costs-Fines-Restitution-for-Minors-FINAL.pdf>.

These approaches allow youth to repair harm, remain connected to school and family, and build skills and responsibility without destabilizing their households.

From an implementation standpoint, this bill also creates clarity. It standardizes practice across courts, reduces discretion-based inequity, and prevents families from being penalized simply because a case was handled in one circuit instead of another.

Finally, HB 1626 proactively discharges legacy juvenile debt, therefore preventing childhood court involvement from continuing to block employment, housing, education, and military eligibility well into adulthood. This is not only equitable; it is fiscally sound.

HB 1626 reflects what Hawai‘i is already doing in practice—but does so clearly, consistently, and lawfully. As bill co-authors, we can confidently say this measure is ready, workable, and overdue.

For these reasons, ‘Ekolu Mea Nui respectfully urges your support for HB 1626.

Re: HB 1626, Relating to Youth Penalties - Support

Aloha e Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds and members of the Committee:

On behalf of the Opportunity for Youth Action Hawai'i hui, we submit this testimony in strong support of HB 1626, which prohibits the assessment of any fees, fines, or court costs against a person who was adjudicated for an offense committed during the person's minority, or against the person's parent or guardian, and discharges all related debt obligations assessed before the effective date of the Act. It encourages the use of community service and other programs that employ āina-based principles.

The imposition of fines, fees, and court costs on minors, and often their families, creates long-term financial burdens that disproportionately impact low-income families. These penalties do not promote accountability or public safety; instead, they perpetuate cycles of poverty and justice system involvement that can follow young people into adulthood. Therefore, this bill represents an important step toward a more equitable and developmentally appropriate justice system for young people.

We also strongly support the bill's emphasis on community service and āina-based approaches. Culturally grounded, community-centered programs foster accountability, connection, and healing, while aligning with what we know best supports healthy youth development. The Opportunity for Youth Action Hawai'i hui is a collaboration of nonprofit partners co-located at the Kawaiiloa Youth and Family Wellness Center since 2018. OYAH's culturally rooted, therapeutic programs support youth to connect to community resources and mentors, find their purpose, and thrive. Many youth come to Kawaiiloa seeking to overcome the negative impacts of inequitable systems of housing, education, health, child welfare, and justice. OYAH partners (RYSE, Kinai 'Eha, and Partners in Development Foundation) offer tailored programming for individual youth's needs. OYAH has worked closely with State agency partners, legislators, and policy leaders toward a shared goal: to replace punitive policies and practices with restorative and healing-centered approaches rooted in indigenous knowledge systems.

Together, we are creating a pu'uhonua, or place of peace and healing, for youth, staff, and partners.

Mahalo for the opportunity to submit testimony.

TESTIMONY IN STRONG SUPPORT OF HB 1626
Relating to Youth PENALTIES

Committee: House Committee on Human Services & Homelessness

Hearing Date: Thursday February 12, 2026

Time: 10:30 am

Position: STRONG SUPPORT

Aloha Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the Committee,

My name is Brytni Kalei K-aloha and I submit this testimony in strong support of House Bill 1626 from the perspective of a parent and a member of this community who deeply cares about the future of Hawai'i's children.

As parents, our greatest hope is that our children will thrive, live meaningful lives, and grow into adults who are connected to their communities and confident in their ability to contribute to society. We also know that young people are still learning. They make mistakes not because they are bad, but because growth requires guidance, patience, and support. When a young person makes a mistake, our response matters. We can either punish and burden them, or we can nurture, teach, and redirect them toward better paths. This bill recognizes that learning does not just happen from financial punishment. Penalties do not build accountability. Instead, it creates barriers, traps families in cycles of debt, and keeps youth unnecessarily entangled in systems.

As a parent, I want our youth to learn responsibility through community engagement, connection, and restoration, not through debt. 'Āina-based service, mentorship, and culturally grounded programs allow young people to understand the impact of their actions while remaining connected to their families, culture, and community. These are the lessons that last. It is also critical to acknowledge that Native Hawaiian youth are already overrepresented in the juvenile system. Continuing to impose fees and fines only deepens inequities and disproportionately harms Native Hawaiian families, the very people of this land. Justice should never depend on income. HB 1626 takes an important step toward ensuring that Hawai'i's juvenile system reflects our values fairness, restoration, and mālama for the next generation. As parents, caregivers, and community members, we want systems that help our keiki grow, not ones that hold them back. I respectfully urge the Committee to pass HB 1626 with a favorable recommendation and move Hawai'i closer to a future where all youth are given the chance to learn, heal, and thrive.

Mahalo for your time and consideration.

Aloha Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the Committee,

We Aubree K-aloha, Zoe Martinez, 'Ōhāwai Manuel and Hailee K-aloha of Nā 'Ōpio Waiwai collective committed to uplifting Native Hawaiian youth and dismantling intergenerational incarceration through cultural practices and advocacy. As young leaders rooted in the values of aloha 'āina (love for the land) and 'ohana (family), we strive to empower justice-impacted communities and transform systems that disproportionately harm our people. We would have preferred to provide testimony in person today however, we are in school.

We submit this testimony in strong support of House Bill 1626, on behalf of youth leaders, community advocates, and partners who have spent years championing the elimination of juvenile system fees and fines in Hawai'i.

Building on the Legislature's unanimous adoption of House Concurrent Resolution 174 last session, HB 1626 also takes an important step forward by encouraging 'āina-based community service programs as alternatives to harmful and ineffective financial punishment. These approaches reflect Hawai'i values, accountability rooted in restoration, connection to place, and pathways to healing rather than debt.

Importantly, concerns about system funding should not be used to justify continued financial punishment of youth. The Judiciary and the Department of Human Services already maintain independent contracts and purchasing agreements to provide court-ordered services, including drug treatment, probation supervision, and community-based programs. These services remain fiscally solvent through state-allocated funds, not youth-paid fees. HB 1626 simply ensures that the cost of the system is not shifted onto children and their families.

Re: Testimony of the ACLU of Hawai'i in SUPPORT of HB1626 Relating to Youth Penalties

Dear Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Committee Members:

The American Civil Liberties Union of Hawai'i ("ACLU-HI") supports HB1626, which prohibits the assessment of any fees, fines, or court costs against a person who was adjudicated for an offense committed during the person's minority, or against the person's parent or guardian, and discharges all related debt obligations assessed before the effective date of the act.

A U.S. Department of Justice's 2023 Dear Colleague Letter recommended that, in addition to juvenile justice agencies, state and local courts should operate with the understanding that "children and youth under the jurisdiction of the juvenile justice system should be presumed indigent and unable to pay fines and fees."¹

This guidance is moral, fair, just, and pragmatic. In a U.S. Department of Justice report, former Associate Attorney General Vanita Gupta wrote: "eliminating the unjust imposition of fines and fees is one of the most effective ways for jurisdictions to support the success of youth and low-income individuals, honor constitutional and statutory obligations, and reduce racial disparities in the administration of justice."²

Studies from criminologists found that youth who had fees and fines imposed on them had a significantly higher likelihood of recidivism, even when controlling for demographics and case characteristics.³ As fees and fines increased, so did the youth's chances of recidivism.⁴

Fees are designed to cover administrative costs associated with the system. Fines are intended to punish or deter future behavior. However, research shows that fines and fees usually make up less than 1% of state and local budgets, and they are notoriously difficult to collect — with some localities even losing money.⁵ Data from other states show that jurisdictions often spend more on collection than they generate in revenue from fees and fines charged to youth.⁶

Financial costs for juveniles associated with fines, fees, or court costs are unnecessarily punitive and can result in long-lasting financial harm and stress for these youth and their families. The majority of youth have no means to pay fees and fines as they have little to no income or assets of their own. As a result, the burden falls largely on their families. Because Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander youth are disproportionately represented in the juvenile legal system, this burden tends to fall more heavily on those families.

By passing HB1626, Hawai'i will join dozens of states that have already achieved debt free justice for youth and their families.

Over 20 states and localities are acknowledging the harm created by imposing fines and fees on young people by abolishing them from their juvenile justice systems. Others are reducing fees as well.⁷ Research on these localities suggest that eliminating fees for

Aloha e Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, a me Members of Ke Kōmike Hale o ka Lawelawe Kānaka a me ka Pilikia Ho‘okuewa:

The Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA) SUPPORTS HB1626, which prohibits the assessment of fees, fines, and court costs against persons adjudicated for offenses committed as a minor, discharges outstanding youth court debt, and promotes community-based and ‘āina-based alternatives to financial penalties.

Research in Hawai‘i has consistently shown that Native Hawaiian youth are disproportionately represented at multiple stages of the juvenile legal system.¹ Prior OHA and Native Hawaiian Justice Task Force findings recognize that justice-system involvement often begins in youth and can function as an early pipeline into deeper system contact later in life.² Policies that add financial penalties to youth cases compound this harm without improving accountability or public safety.

Youth fees and fines are not an effective accountability tool. Judiciary reporting has shown that only a small fraction of fines assessed against minors are ever paid, demonstrating low collection value and limited deterrent effect.³ Instead, these penalties often prolong court involvement, create administrative burdens, and transfer debt to 'ohana who may already be struggling with Hawai‘i's high cost of living. Financial sanctions tied to youth behavior function less as accountability and more as a poverty penalty.

Further, Native Hawaiian households experience higher rates of economic hardship relative to other groups in the State.⁴ As a result, youth monetary sanctions can have disproportionate and compounding impacts — increasing family financial strain, destabilizing housing and employment, and eroding trust in public systems. Removing these penalties promotes fairness and aligns consequences with rehabilitative goals.

HB1626 appropriately shifts accountability toward community service, restorative approaches, and culturally grounded, ‘āina-based programs that strengthen connection to culture, place, and community. These approaches are more consistent with best practices in youth development and long-term behavior change, while still preserving meaningful accountability. The measure also clears uncollectible legacy youth debt, reduces administrative collection costs, and aligns Hawai‘i with a growing number of jurisdictions nationwide that have reformed or eliminated youth fees and fines.

For these reasons, the Office of Hawaiian Affairs respectfully urges this Committee to PASS HB1626. Mahalo nui for the opportunity to provide testimony on this important measure.

TESTIMONY IN STRONG SUPPORT OF HB 1626 Relating to Youth Penalties

TO: House Committee on Human Services and Homelessness

FROM: Efren Berrones- Co-Chair of O'ahu Youth Action Board, Partners In Care (PIC)

Hearing: February 12th, 2026 10:30 AM

Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the House Committee on Human Services & Homelessness,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony in strong support of HB 1626, Relating to Youth Penalties.

My name is Efren Berrones, and I serve as the Chair of the O'ahu Youth Action Board (OYAB). OYAB is a designated board composed of youth with lived experience of homelessness on O'ahu, advocating for policy changes that directly impact houseless young people. We firmly believe that any decisions affecting us must include our voices, perspectives, and lived experiences.

Many of our young people have lived experience with the justice system, and they know firsthand how fees, fines, and court costs create barriers that follow them long after their cases are closed. These financial penalties do not promote accountability—they create debt that makes it harder for young people to secure housing, find employment, and build stable lives. For youth already experiencing homelessness, these fees compound an already impossible situation.

HB 1626 eliminates fees, fines, and court costs for offenses committed as minors and discharges all related debt assessed before this law takes effect. This is not just about financial relief—it is about giving young people a real chance to move forward without being punished for the rest of their lives for mistakes they made as children.

According to a report by the Juvenile Law Center, most juvenile justice fees and fines do not deter crime or support rehabilitation, and instead create barriers for justice-involved youth and their families. A national survey found that 84% of jurisdictions reported challenges collecting juvenile fees and fines, with only 21% recovering more than half of assessed amounts. These fees do not work. They drain resources from families who can least afford it and keep young people trapped in cycles of debt and instability.

What does work is what HB 1626 encourages: community service and 'āina-based programs. Our young people who have participated in 'āina-based programs report that these experiences taught them accountability, responsibility, and connection to community in ways that fines and fees never could. Healing happens through action and relationship—not through debt.

We urge you to pass HB 1626 and invest in what actually helps young people change.

Mahalo for your consideration and commitment to Hawai'i's youth.

LIBERTARIAN
PARTY of HAWAII
IN SUPPORT OF SB2048/HB1626

The Libertarian Party of Hawaii supports SB2540/HB1626. This legislation takes important steps toward reducing government coercion toward families and restoring fairness to individuals who were minors at the time of an offense. Fining minors or holding their parents financially accountable for actions taken during childhood or adolescence creates lasting barriers to economic opportunity and family stability. These debts often follow individuals into adulthood, hindering employment, housing, education, and credit access long after the offense has been addressed. Discharging them retroactively and prohibiting future assessments for the same offenses removes an unnecessary layer of state punishment that disproportionately harms low-income families and young adults trying to grow beyond their childhood to build independent lives.

The government should minimize its role in extracting money from citizens, especially when the extraction targets parents for the conduct of their children. Punitive fines on families for things like unaccompanied minors in public or dance hall attendance are overbroad mechanisms for control that infringe on parental autonomy and personal liberty without any clear evidence of victim harm. “Nobody puts Baby in a corner.” Replacing financial penalties with voluntary, community-oriented alternatives respects individual responsibility while avoiding coercive state extraction.

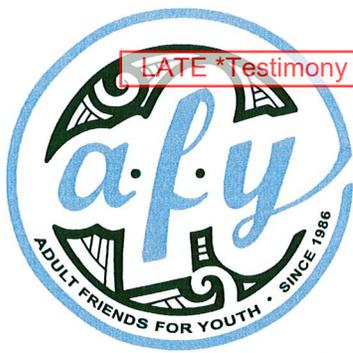

SB2540/HB1626 promotes fairness, predictability, and limited government by:

- Ending the cycle of debt that traps people in poverty rather than encouraging rehabilitation.
- Protecting parental rights from arbitrary financial liability for the ordinary and non-violent activities of minors.
- Shifting from punitive models toward restorative approaches that emphasize personal growth over state revenue.

Existing mechanisms already allow courts to consider ability to pay and offer alternatives in many cases. This bill codifies and expands those protections, ensuring the state does not profit from or perpetuate hardship on families for youthful mistakes.

We urge the Committee to advance SB2540/HB1626. Reduce financial coercion on individuals and families, preserve parental autonomy, and prioritize restorative justice.

In Strong Support of HB1626 – Relating to Youth Penalties

Mahalo nui loa for allowing me to testify.

As President & CEO of Adult Friends for Youth (AFY) for the past 18 years—and having worked directly with high-risk youth for more than 20 years—I lead a nonprofit organization dedicated to the safety, stability, and well-being of children and youth in our communities. We work closely with young people who are often involved in destructive behaviors that lead to involvement with the judicial system.

Many of the youth we serve are raised in low-income households, including those living in public housing. Assessing fees or fines on families who are already struggling financially does not provide meaningful impact—neither for the youth nor for the community. Instead, it adds further burden to the very families who are trying to support their children through difficult circumstances.

In contrast, we have found that community service is significantly more impactful. It allows youth to give back to their communities in constructive ways, without placing additional financial strain on their families.

HB1626 provides an alternative that:

1. Creates a clear path for meaningful community service.
2. Allows youth to interact positively with their communities.
3. Offers a more appropriate and impactful form of accountability for the youth.

From a youth-serving perspective, stability—especially housing and financial stability—is foundational to reducing long-term recidivism. HB1626 offers fairness, accountability, and an approach that aligns with what we know works for youth development and rehabilitation.

For these reasons, Adult Friends for Youth respectfully urges your strong support of HB1626. Thank you for your consideration and for your continued commitment to promoting the well-being of Hawai'i's youth.

I appreciate your time on this matter.

Support for H.B. 1626 Relating to Youth Penalties

Dear Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the Committee:

My name is Carrie Ann Shirota, and as an attorney deeply committed to restorative justice, I strongly support H.B. 1626 Relating to Youth Penalties.

Hawai'i has made strides in implementing best practices in juvenile justice reform. However, we have yet to codify the best practice of debt-free justice for youth in Hawaii's statutes.

The time for transformative change is now. Contrary to myth, research shows that fines and fees do not support youth rehabilitation. In fact, recent criminology studies have confirmed that imposing court-ordered financial penalties significantly increases the likelihood of recidivism, particularly for youth of color, even accounting for all other factors.¹

This crisis is amplified by systemic inequity: Native Hawaiian and Pacific youth are tragically overrepresented in the juvenile legal system, constituting 56% of all youth adjudicated in Hawai'i. Instead of imposing financial penalties against families who have the lowest median income of all major ethnic groups throughout Hawai'i, we should look to meaningful alternatives that promotes accountability and restoration.

The youth of Nā 'Ōpio Waiwai have advocated for the passage of this measure for several years, and have consistently testified about the transformative and healing power of engaging in 'Āina- based education as a profound alternative to imposing financial penalties.

¹ Alex Piquero, Justice System–Imposed Financial Penalties Increase the Likelihood of Recidivism in a Sample of Adolescent Offenders, YOUTH VIOLENCE AND JUVENILE JUSTICE, 15(3), 325 (2017); Alex Piquero, Michael Baglivio, Kevin Wolff, A Statewide Analysis of the Impact of Restitution and Fees on Juvenile Recidivism in Florida Across Race & Ethnicity, YOUTH VIOLENCE AND JUVENILE JUSTICE, 21(4), 279 (2022).

In a literature review prepared by Dr. Jackie Ng-Osori, she notes the essential benefits of 'Āina-based education for Native Hawaiians and other ethnic groups:

“'Āina-based education goes beyond traditional classroom learning and incorporates cultural practices, values, and perspectives. It promotes a holistic learning process that integrates indigenous knowledge and honors the qualities and values of Hawaiian culture. The inclusion of 'āina-based education in schools is seen as essential for the overall well-being of students, as it allows them to see themselves within the curriculum and develop a deeper sense of belonging and resiliency. Research has shown that skills were learned by all students, those that identified as Native Hawaiian and nonNative Hawaiian, therefore, demonstrating that 'āina-based education can be beneficial beyond culturally specific groups.²”

H.B. 1626 is not a radical proposal. It is a moral imperative and a standard practice strongly supported by the U.S. Department of Justice, national associations of judges, prosecutors, correctional leaders and law enforcement professionals.

Finally, I would like to address the fiscal implications of this bill. The Judiciary and Department of Human Services each maintain their own contracts and purchasing agreements for the provision of services to youth in the juvenile system. Drug treatment, community service, probation supervision, and other court-ordered programs remain fiscally solvent through state-allocated funds.

In closing, now is the time for Hawai'i to pivot from punitive fines to meaningful, restorative alternatives that promote true accountability and healing for our youth and their families.

Mahalo for your consideration and for the opportunity to submit testimony in strong support of H.B. 1626 to establish debt-free justice for youth in Hawai'i.

Sincerely,

Carrie Ann Shirota

Aloha Committee Members,

I appreciate the intent of this proposal to reduce the legal burdens on young people who make mistakes and bad choices while still growing up. Leniency and grace are important to show. However, I remain undecided on this bill. Young people still need discipline and I am concerned that parts of this bill will instead open the door to no consequences on an youth misconduct.

I ask the committee to consider amending the bill to remove "aina-based" accountability. I do not trust this will provide adequate resolution to youth committed offenses.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON HUMAN SERVICES & HOMELESSNESS
THE THIRTY-THIRD LEGISLATURE, 2026 SESSION
WRITTEN TESTIMONY IN SUPPORT OF HB1626 — RELATING TO YOUTH PENALTIES

Submitted by: Naomi Manuel

Hearing Date: Thursday, February 12, 2026 - 10:30 am

Aloha e Chair Lisa Marten, Vice Chair Ikaika Olds, and Members of the Committee on Health and Human Services & Homelessness,

I respectfully submit this testimony in strong support of HB1626, which seeks to prohibit the assessment of fines, fees, and court costs against individuals for offenses committed while they were minors, and to encourage restorative, community-based practices in lieu of punitive financial penalties.

HB1626 represents a meaningful step toward equity-driven justice reform in Hawai'i's juvenile legal system. The current practice of imposing fines and court costs on youth has been shown to be ineffective at promoting rehabilitation or accountability, disproportionately impacts Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander minors, and often exacerbates economic hardship for families. By eliminating these financial penalties, Hawai'i can instead uplift alternatives that focus on healing, connection, and community responsibility.

For Native Hawaiian youth, justice cannot be defined solely by abstract legal processes divorced from 'ohana, 'āina, and cultural identity. True accountability is rooted in relationship, responsibility to community, and restoration of balance — values central to Native Hawaiian epistemologies and practices.

HB1626's emphasis on community service and other programs that "employ 'āina-based principles, connecting youth and their parents or guardians to their culture, community, and the land itself" reflects this grounding. By lifting up these alternatives, we:

- Reduce racial and economic disparities in juvenile justice outcomes;
- Strengthen youth identity, purpose, and connection to 'ohana and 'āina;
- Nurture leaders who can contribute positively to their communities;
- Interrupt cycles of intergenerational incarceration.

HB1626 is not soft on accountability; it is forward-looking, evidence-based, culturally anchored, and aligned with restorative practices that uplift youth instead of compounding harm. It affirms that mistakes made in youth should not be compounded by lifelong financial penalties that limit future opportunity — especially for Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander families who disproportionately shoulder these burdens.

For the sake of equity, dignity, and the strengthening of Hawai'i's young people, I urge this committee to pass HB1626 with strong support.

TESTIMONY IN STRONG SUPPORT OF HB 1626 Relating to Youth Penalties

FROM: Bameron Emilio

Hearing: Thursday, February 12, 2026, 10:30 AM

LATE

Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the House Committee on Human Services & Homelessness,

Thank you for the opportunity to testify in strong support of HB 1626.

My name is Bameron Emilio and I am a member of the O‘ahu Youth Action Board. I have lived experience with both homelessness and the justice system, and I am here to say that charging minors fees and fines is not helping young people learn accountability.

When you are a minor and you make a mistake, you should have the chance to learn from it and move forward. But instead, the system piles on fees and fines that follow young people for years—sometimes into adulthood. These fees do not help anyone. They do not make minors more accountable. They just make it harder for young people and their families to survive. How is a minor supposed to get their life together when they are buried in debt before they even turn 18?

HB 1626 would stop charging minors these fees and fines, and it would wipe out the debt for young people who are still carrying it. This is the right thing to do. Minors should not be punished with large amounts of debt before their 18th birthday because of mistakes they made when they were young.

This bill also encourages ‘āina-based programs and community service instead of fines, and I can tell you from experience that those programs actually work. I am currently in an ‘āina-based program, and it has taught me more about accountability and responsibility than any fine ever could. Working on the land, connecting to culture, giving back to the community—this is what helps young people change. Debt does not.

Young people deserve the chance to learn and grow without being buried under fees they can never pay off. HB 1626 gives us that chance.

I urge you to pass HB 1626.

TESTIMONY IN STRONG SUPPORT OF HB 1626 Relating to Youth Penalties

TO: House Committee on Human Services & Homelessness

FROM: Rommy Espin

Hearing: Thursday, February 12, 2026, 10:30 AM

Chair Marten, Vice Chair Olds, and Members of the House Committee on Human Services & Homelessness,

Thank you for the opportunity to testify in strong support of HB 1626.

My name is Rommy Espin, and I am a member of the O'ahu Youth Action Board. I have lived experience with both homelessness and the justice system, and I am here to say that charging minors fees and fines is not helping young people learn accountability.

When you are a minor and you make a mistake, you should have the chance to learn from it and move forward. But instead, the system piles on fees and fines that follow young people for years—sometimes into adulthood. These fees do not help anyone. They do not make minors more accountable. They just make it harder for young people and their families to survive. How is a minor supposed to get their life together when they are buried in debt before they even turn 18?

HB 1626 would stop charging minors these fees and fines, and it would wipe out the debt for young people who are still carrying it. This is the right thing to do. Minors should not be punished with large amounts of debt before their 18th birthday because of mistakes they made when they were young.

This bill also encourages 'āina-based programs and community service instead of fines, and I can tell you from experience that those programs actually work. I am currently in an 'āina-based program, and it has taught me more about accountability and responsibility than any fine ever could. Working on the land, connecting to culture, giving back to the community—this is what helps young people change. Debt does not.

Young people deserve the chance to learn and grow without being buried under fees they can never pay off. HB 1626 gives us that chance.

I urge you to pass HB 1626.

Aloha Chair and Members:

I support HB1626 because it advances accountability that actually works, while preventing long-term harm to youth and families.

Court fines, fees, and surcharges in juvenile cases function less as “accountability” and more as a poverty penalty. They routinely fall on parents and guardians, compound financial instability, and can drive noncompliance, without improving public safety. When the vast majority of youth monetary sanctions go uncollected, that is a clear signal the system is generating paperwork and debt, not better outcomes.

HB1626 takes a more effective approach: it ends the assessment and collection of fees, fines, and costs for conduct committed while a person was a minor, and it voids uncollectible legacy debt that can follow people into adulthood. This is sound policy because it restores proportionality; youth should face consequences that are developmentally appropriate and connected to repair, learning, and behavior change, not lifelong financial encumbrances.

Importantly, the bill preserves meaningful accountability tools such as community service, restorative justice, and community-based programs, including culturally grounded and ‘āina-based options that strengthen connection and responsibility. It also protects school and work commitments, ensuring that accountability does not undermine education or stability, the very factors most associated with reduced recidivism.

Finally, eliminating youth monetary sanctions improves administrative efficiency. It reduces collection activity, avoids costly enforcement against families with limited ability to pay, and focuses limited justice resources on interventions that prevent future harm.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge you to pass HB1626.

Mahalo for the opportunity to testify.
