Bill No. and Title: Senate Bill No. 2565, Relating to Certiorari Review by the Hawai'i Supreme Court.

Purpose: Establishes a fixed disposition deadline requiring the Supreme Court to decide an application for certiorari within 60 days after the application is filed. Applies prospectively to cases in which the judgment or dismissal order of the Intermediate Court of Appeals was filed on or after the effective date of this Act.

Judiciary's Position:

The Judiciary strongly supports this bill, which is part of the Judiciary's package legislation.

This measure improves judicial efficiency by setting a fixed deadline for the Hawai'i Supreme Court to decide whether to review decisions from the Intermediate Court of Appeals — a process known as a writ of certiorari.

The current law set forth at Hawai‘i Revised Statutes (HRS) § 602-59(c), requires the Hawai‘i Supreme Court to decide whether to accept an application for writ of certiorari “within thirty days after a response is or could have been filed.” The challenge is that response dates vary widely. In cases with multiple parties, responses may be filed on different dates, creating uncertainty.

Under current law, responses are due 15 days after the application is filed, with an optional 15-day extension upon request (HRS § 602-59(c)).

Early responses shorten the court’s review period, limiting time for thorough consideration of legal issues. In addition, law clerks, court staff, and justices must continually monitor whether or when a response is filed and whether an extension was granted. This continual monitoring is needed to confirm the court decides the application in a timely manner before its disposition deadline.

This measure amends HRS § 602-59(c) to set a clear, fixed deadline: 60 days from the application’s filing. This change brings consistency, reduces administrative burden, and ensures adequate time for review. A fixed deadline would also benefit the public and litigants by making it easier to understand when the court will issue decisions on applications for writ of certiorari.

The impact of this measure is expected to substantially improve judicial economy. Consider that in fiscal year 2025, 185 applications for certiorari were filed in the Hawai‘i Supreme Court. For each case, considerable judicial resources were spent continually monitoring whether a request to extend the initial 15-day response deadline was granted and whether or when a response was filed. Next, depending on when the response is filed, the court and its staff work to adjust the court’s internal disposition deadline. These resources should be devoted to analyzing the merits of applications—not tracking deadlines.

The Judiciary appreciates the Committee’s consideration of this measure.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify.

Chair Rhoads and Members of the Committee:

The Department of the Attorney General supports this bill.

Section 602-59(c), Hawaii Revised Statutes, currently provides that the Supreme Court must determine whether to accept an application for a writ of certiorari within thirty days after a response to the application is or could have been filed. This bill would amend the statute to require that the determination be made within sixty days after the application is filed. It would further provide that, when the disposition deadline falls on a weekend or state holiday, the deadline is extended to the end of the next business day.

Section 1 of the bill succinctly summarizes its merits. Applications for writs of certiorari regularly present important, difficult, or novel questions of state or federal law, or involve cases of significant public interest. Under current law, the time in which the Supreme Court must consider these applications can range from as few as thirty days to as many as sixty days, depending entirely on the actions of the respondents. This bill would ensure that all applications receive a full sixty-day period of consideration. Setting a fixed deadline triggered by the filing of an application would provide more certainty to parties and their counsel and would save the Supreme Court from having to review an application within an initially variable time period. The public would also benefit from the additional consideration given to applications that might otherwise need to be decided in fewer than sixty days.

This bill would also clarify how the Supreme Court's deadline to decide whether to accept an application interacts with weekends and state holidays, an issue that is currently unclear under existing law.

We respectfully ask the Committee to pass this bill.

SB2565: RELATING TO CERTIORARI REVIEW BY THE HAWAII SUPREME COURT

Chair Rhodes, Vice Chair Gabbard, and Members of the Committee on Judiciary

The Office of the Public Defender (OPD) supports SB2565, which establishes a fixed disposition deadline of sixty (60) days after filing for the Hawaii Supreme Court to decide an application for certiorari.

The OPD agrees that a fixed disposition deadline will promote efficiency for the Court as well as the parties and provide transparency for the public.

The OPD supports SB2565.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this measure.
